PREFACE.

In the study of any language, the foundation of success must be laid in a thorough acquaintance with its principles. This being once attained, future progress becomes easy and rapid. To the student of language, therefore, a good Grammar, which must be his constant companion, is of all his books the most important. Such a work, to be really valuable, ought to be simple in its arrangement and style, so as to be adapted to the capacity of youth, for whose use it is designed; comprehensive, and accurate, so as to be a sufficient and certain guide in the most difficult as well as in easy cases; and its principles and rules should be rendered familiar by numerous examples and exercises.

The fundamental principles are nearly the same in all languages. So far as Grammar is concerned, the difference lies chiefly in the minor details—in the forms and inflections of their words, and in the modes of expression peculiar to each, usually denominated idioms. It would seem, therefore, to be proper, in constructing Grammars for different languages, that the principles, so far as they are the same, should be arranged in the same order, and expressed as nearly as possible in the same words. Where this is carefully done, the study of the Grammar of one language becomes an important aid in the study of another;—an opportunity is afforded of seeing wherein they agree, and wherein they differ, and a profitable exercise is furnished in comparative or general grammar. But when a Latin Grammar is put into the hands of the student, differing widely in its arrangement or phraseology from the English Grammar which he had previously studied, and afterwards a Greek Grammar different from both, not only is the benefit derived from the analogy of the different languages in a great measure lost, but the whole subject is made to appear intolerably intricate and mysterious. By the publication of this series of Grammars, English, Latin, and Greek, on the same plan, this evil is now remedied probably as far as it can be done.

The work here presented to the public, is upon the foundation of ADAM'S LATIN GRAMMAR, so long and so well known as a text book in this country. The object of the present undertaking was, to combine with all that is excellent in the work of Adam, the many important results of subsequent labors in this field; to supply its defects; to bring the whole up to that point which the present state of classical learning requires, and to give it such a form as to render it a suitable part of the series formerly projected. In accomplishing this object, the author has availed himself of every aid within his reach, and no pains have been spared to render this work as complete as possible in every part. His acknowledgments are due for the assistance derived from the excellent works of Scheller, Crombie, Zumpt, Andrews & Stoddard, and many others, on the whole or on separate parts of this undertaking; and also for many hints kindly furnished by distinguished teachers in this country. As in the other grammars, so here, the rules and leading parts which should be first studied, are printed in larger type; and the filling up of this outline is comprised in observations and notes under them, made easy of reference by the sections and numbers prefixed. The whole is now committed to the judgment of an intelligent public; in the hope that something has been done to smooth the path of the learner in the successful prosecution of his studies, and to subserve the interests of both English and Classical literature in this country.

REVISED EDITION.

New plates having become necessary for this work, the opportunity has been embraced of thoroughly revising and improving it. The rules, definitions, and leading parts, with very few exceptions, remain just as they were; but still, some things deemed important have been added in many places in the form of new Observations, or of additions to the former ones. On this account, the pages of this edition do not correspond to those of former editions; but this will occasion no difficulty, as the Sections, Observations, etc. are arranged and numbered as they were before. Besides this mode of reference, which is still retained, the simpler method, by a running series of numbers, from first to last, as in the English Grammars, has been added. A leading object kept constantly in view, in the revision of this work, as well as of the Greek Grammar just completed, has been, to bring about a still greater uniformity in the works composing this series, and to indicate more fully and distinctly wherein the languages agree, and wherein they differ. The additions that have been made to this work, amount in all to about twenty-eight pages, and no labor or expense has been spared to render the work in all respects more worthy of that favor with which it has already been received.

LATIN GRAMMAR.

1.—LATIN GRAMMAR is the art of speaking or writing the Latin language with propriety.

It is divided into four parts; namely, Orthography, Etymology, Syntax, and Prosody.

PART FIRST.

---

ORTHOGRAPHY.

2.—ORTHOGRAPHY treats of letters, and the mode of combining them into syllables and words.

§ 1. LETTERS.

3.—A LETTER is a mark or character used to represent an elementary sound of the human voice.

The Latin Alphabet consists of twenty-five letters, the same in name and form as those of the English Alphabet, but without the w.

Letters are either Vowels or Consonants.

VOWELS AND DIPHTHONGS.

4.—A VOWEL is a letter which represents a simple inarticulate sound; and, in a word or syllable, may be sounded alone.

The vowels are a, e, i, o, u, y. In Latin, y is never a consonant as in English.

5.—The union of two vowels in one sound, is called a Diphthong. - Diphthongs are of two kinds, proper and improper.

6.—A Proper Diphthong is one in which both the vowels are sounded. The Proper Diphthongs in Latin are three, viz: au, eu, ei; as, aurum, euge, hei.

7.—An Improper Diphthong is one in which only one of the vowels is sounded. The Improper Diphthongs in Latin are æ and œ, often written together, æ, œ; as, læda, pœna.

8.—OBSERVATIONS.

1. Ai and oi are found as diphthongs in proper names from the Greek, as Maia, Troia.

2. After g and q, and sometimes after s, u before another vowel in the same syllable, does not form a diphthong with it, but is to be regarded as an appendage of the preceding consonant, having nearly the force of u, as in the English words, linguist, quick, persuade; thus, lingua, sanguis, qui, quæ, quod, quum, suadeo, are pronounced as if written lingwa, sangwis, kwi, kwæ, kwod, kwum, swædo. So also after c and h in cui and huic, pronounced in one syllable, as if written cwi or kwi, and hwic; also ui after a consonant, in such words from the Greek as Harpua.

3. Two vowels standing together in different syllables, pronounced in quick succession, resemble the diphthong in sound, and, among the poets, are often run together into one syllable; thus de-in, de-inde, pro-inde, &c., in two and three syllables, are pronounced in one and two, æ-in, de-inde, pro-inde, &c.

CONSONANTS.

9.—A CONSONANT is a letter which represents an articulate sound, and, in a word or syllable, is never sounded alone, but always in connection with a vowel or diphthong.

10.—The consonants in Latin are b, c, d, f, g, h, j, k, l, m, n, p, q, r, s, t, v, x, z. Of these, eight, viz, p, b, t, d, c, k, q, and g, are called mutes, because they interrupt or stop the sound of the voice, as b in sub;—four, viz, l, m, n, r, are called liquids, because of their fluency, or the ease with which they flow into other sounds, or, in combining with other consonants, are changed one for another;—two are called double consonants, viz, x and z, because they are each equivalent to two other consonants; namely, x to cs or gs, and z to ds. The letter j, likewise, is sounded by us as a double consonant, equivalent to dg, and in prosody is so considered, because, except in compounds of jugum, it uniformly makes the vowel before it long. The letter s represents a sibilant or hissing sound. The h is only an aspirate, and denotes a rough breathing: in prosody, it is not regarded as a consonant. The letters k, y, and z, are used only in words derived from the Greek.

11.—Note. Anciently, the letter j seems to have been more nearly allied to a vowel than to a consonant, and was represented by i; thus, ejus, pejus, &c., were written eius, peius, &c.; and the j thus forming a sort of diphthong with the preceding vowel, of course made the syllable long; as, er-us, pei-us, &c. In like manner, u and v were represented by the same letter, namely, v.

MARKS AND CHARACTERS.

12.—The marks and characters used in Latin Grammar, or in writing Latin, are the following:

- ˘ Placed over a vowel shows it to be short.
- Placed over a vowel shows it to be long.
- ˉ Placed over a vowel shows it to be short or long.

ˉˉ Is called Diaresis, and shows that the vowel over which it is placed does not form a diphthong with the preceding vowel, but belongs to a different syllable; as, aër, pronounced a-er.

ˆ The circumflex shows that the syllable over which it stands has been contracted, and is consequently long, as nuntiârunt for nuntiaevêrunt, dimicâssent for dimicavissent; or that the vowel over which it is placed, has its long open sound; as, pennâ.

˘ The grave accent is sometimes placed over particles and adverbs, to distinguish them from other words consisting of the same letters; as, quòd, a conjunction, “that,” to distinguish it from quod, a relative, “which.”

˘ The acute accent is used to mark the accented syllable of a word; as, túba, domínus.

˘ Apostrophe is written over the place of a vowel cut off from the end of a word; as, men' for mena.

PUNCTUATION.

13.—The different divisions of a sentence are marked by certain characters called Points.

The modern punctuation in Latin is the same as in English. The marks employed are the Comma (,); Semicolon (;); Colon (:); Period (.); Interrogation (?); Exclamation (!).

14.—The only mark of punctuation used by the ancients, was a point (.), which denoted pauses of a different length, according as it stood at the top, the middle, or the bottom of the line—that at the top denoting the shortest, and that at the bottom the longest pause.

§ 2. PRONUNCIATION.*

15.—The pronunciation of the Latin language prevalent among the nations of continental Europe, is greatly preferable to the English, both because it harmonizes better with the quantity of the language, as settled by the rules of Prosody, and because, by giving one simple sound to each vowel, distinguishing the short and the long only by the duration of sounds, it is much more simple. The sound of the vowels, as pronounced alone or at the end of a syllable, is exhibited in the following—

16.—TABLE OF VOWEL AND DIPHTHONGAL SOUNDS.

Short	ă	sounds like	a	in Jehovah,	as	ămăt.
Long	ā	like	a	in father,	as	fāma.
Short	ĕ	like	e	in met,	as	pĕtĕrĕ.
Long	ē	like	ey	in they,	as	docēre.
Short	ĭ	like	i	in uniform,	as	unitas.
Long	ī	like	i	in machine,	as	pinus.
Short	ō	like	o	in polite,	as	indōles.
Long	ō	like	o	in go,	as	pōno.
Short	ŭ	like	u	in popular,	as	popŭlus.
Long	ū	like	u	in rule, or pure,	as	tūba, ūsu.
	ae or æ	} like	ey	in they,	as	} Pæan. Phœbus.
	oe or œ
	au	like	ou	in our,	as	aurum.
	eu	like	eu	in feud,	as	eurus.

17.—OBSERVATIONS.

1. The sound of the vowels a and e remains unchanged in all situations.
2. The sound of i, o, and u, is slightly modified when followed by a consonant in the same syllable, and is the same, whether the syllable is long or short. Thus modified,

* The ancient pronunciation of the Latin language, cannot now be certainly ascertained. The variety of pronunciation in different nations, arises from a tendency in all to assimilate it in some measure to their own. But of all varieties, that of the English—certainly the farthest of any from the original—is, in our opinion, decidedly the worst; not only from its intricacy and want of simplicity, but especially from its conflicting constantly with the settled quantity of the language. In English, every accented syllable is long, and every unaccented one is short. When, therefore, according to the rules of English accentuation, the accent falls on a short syllable in a Latin word, or does not fall on a long one, in either case, its tendency is, to lead to false quantity. —For the English orthoëpy of the Latin language, see p. 841

i	sounds like	i	in sit,	as mīttīt.
o	like	o	in not,	as pōterat, forma.
u	like	u	in tub,	as frūctūs.

Note. For the sound of u, before another vowel, after g, q, and sometimes s, &c., See 8-2.

3. The consonants are pronounced generally as in the English language. C and g are hard, as in the words cat, and got, before a, o, and u; and c is soft like s; and g, like j, before e, i, y, æ, and œ.

4. T and c, following or ending an accented syllable before i short, followed by a vowel, usually have the sound of sh; as in nuntius or nuncius, patientia, socius; pronounced nunshius, pashiēnshia, soshius. But t has not the sound of sh before i long, as totius; nor in such Greek words as Miltiades, Bootia, Ægyptius; nor when it is preceded by another t, or s, or x; as Bruttii, ostium, mixtio, &c.; nor, lastly, when ti is followed by the termination of the infinitive passive in er, as in nitier, quatier.

Note. The soft sound of c before e, i, y, æ, and œ, adopted by all European nations, is evidently a deviation from the ancient pronunciation, according to which c was sounded hard, like k, or the Greek κ, in all situations. Ti sounding shi is a similar corruption, chiefly English, which it might perhaps be well to change by giving ti the same sound in all situations; as, arti, arti-um, arti-bus.

5. S has always the sharp sound like ss, and never the soft sound like s; or like s in as, peas, dose, &c.; thus, nos, domīnos, rūpes, are pronounced as if written noss, domīnoss, rūpess, not nose, domīnose, rūpese.

§ 3. SYLLABLES.

18.—A SYLLABLE is a distinct sound forming the whole of word, or so much of it as can be sounded at once.

Every word has as many syllables as it has distinct vowel sounds.

A word of one syllable is called a Monosyllable.

A word of two syllables is called a Dissyllable.

A word of three syllables is called a Trissyllable.

A word of many syllables is called a Polysyllable.

19.—In a word of many syllables, the last is called the final syllable; the one next the last is called the penult, and the syllable preceding that is called the antepenult.

20.—The Figures which affect the orthography of words, are as follows :

- 1st. Prosthesis prefixes a letter or syllable to a word; as, gnātus for nātus, tetūlit for tūlit.
- 2d. Epenthesis inserts a letter or syllable in the middle of a word; as, navīta for nauta, Timōlus for Imōlus.
- 3d. Paragoge adds a letter or syllable to the end of a word; as, amarier for amāri, &c.
- 4th. Aphaeresis cuts off a letter or syllable from the beginning of a word; as, brēvis't or brēvist for brēvis est; rhābo for arrhābo.
- 5th. Syncope takes a letter or syllable from the middle of a word, as, oraculum for oracūlum; amārim, for amavērim; deūm for deōrum.
- 6th. Apocope takes a letter or syllable from the end of a word; as, Antōni for Antonii, men' for mēne, dic for dice.
- 7th. Antithesis substitutes one letter for another: as, olū for illi, vult, vultis, for voll, voltis, contractions for vōlit, vōlitis.
- 8th. Metathesis changes the order of letters in a word; as, pistris for pristis.
- 9th. Tmesis separates the parts of a compound word by inserting another word between them; as, quæ me cunque vocant terræ, for quæcumque me, &c.
- 10th. Anastrophe inverts the order of words; as, dāre circum for circumdāre.

QUANTITY AND ACCENT

21.—QUANTITY is the measure of a syllable in respect of the time required in pronouncing it.

In respect of quantity, a syllable is either long or short, and a long syllable is considered equal to two short ones.

22.—GENERAL RULES.

1. A diphthong is always long; as, aūrum, pæ-na.
2. A vowel before another vowel is short; as, vī-a, dē-us.
3. A vowel before two consonants or a double consonant is long; as, cōnsul, pēnna, trāxit.
4. A vowel before a mute and a liquid is common; i. e., sometimes long and sometimes short; as, cerēbrum, or cerēbrum.

[For special rules on this subject, see Prosody.]

23.—ACCENT is a special stress or force of voice on a particular syllable of a word, by which that syllable is distinguished from the rest.

Every word of more than one syllable has an accent; as Déus, hómo, dom'ínus, tolerábilis.

The last syllable of a word never has the accent. In a word of two syllables, the accent is always on the first. In a word of three or more syllables, if the penult is long, the accent is on the penult; as, sermō'nis, amaré'mus; but if the penult is short, the accent is on the antepenult; as, factis, dūcere, pectōri's, pectōribus.

24.—An enclitic syllable (que, ve, ne, &c.), being considered, in pronunciation, part of the word to which it is annexed, generally changes the place of the accent by increasing the number of syllables; as, virum, virúmque; dom'ínus, domínusve.

25.—A word of one syllable is properly without an accent; but if an enclitic is annexed, it becomes a dissyllable, and takes the accent on the first syllable; as, tu, túne.

26.—In English, an accented syllable is always long, or rather the accent makes it long; but in Latin, the accent makes no change in the quantity of its syllable, and, except in the penult, is as often on a short, as on a long syllable; as, fá'ciles, pe'tere, ví'rum.

Note 1. These rules respecting accent, in connection with the general rules for quantity, will be sufficient to guide the pupil in accenting words, without the artificial aid of marking the accented syllables. Where the quantity of the penult is not ascertained by the preceding rules (22), it will be marked in this work.

Note 2. In reading Latin, it is important, as much as possible, to distinguish accent from quantity—a matter not without difficulty to those accustomed to a language in which accent and quantity always coincide. It should be remembered that in Latin, the accent does not make a syllable long as in English, neither does the want of it make the syllable short. Hómínes, for example, should not be pronounced hómínes; and care should be taken to distinguish in reading the verbs l'go and l'go;—the noun póp'ulus (the people) from pópulus (a poplar);—or the verbs fá'ris, l'gis, r'gu, from the genitives fá'ris, l'gis, r'gis. The accented short syllable should be pronounced with greater force of voice, but be preserved short still; and the long syllable, whether accented or not, should be made long.

PART SECOND.

ETYMOLOGY.

27.—ETYMOLOGY treats of the different sorts of words, their various modifications, and their derivations.

§ 4. WORDS.

28.—WORDS are certain articulate sounds used by common consent as signs of our ideas.

1. In respect of Formation, words are either Primitive or Derivative; Simple or Compound.

A Primitive word is one that comes from no other; as, puer, bōnus, pāter.

A Derivative word is one that is derived from another word; as, pueritia, bonitas, paternus.

A Simple word is one that is not combined with any other word; as, pius, doceo, verto.

A Compound word is one made up of two or more simple words; as impius, dedoceo, animadverto.

2. In respect of Form, words are either Declinable or Indeclinable.

A Declinable word is one which undergoes certain changes of form or termination, to express the different relations of gender, number, case, &c., usually termed, in Grammar, Accidents.

An Indeclinable word is one that undergoes no change of form.

3. In respect of Signification and Use, words are divided into different classes, called Parts of Speech

§ 5. PARTS OF SPEECH.

29.—The Parts of Speech in the Latin language are eight, viz:

1. Noun or Substantive, Adjective, Pronoun, Verb, declined.

2. Adverb, Preposition, Interjection, Conjunction, undeclined.

30.—Any part of speech used simply as a word, and spoken of, is regarded as a noun (271). Thus used, it is indeclinable, and in the neuter gender.

§ 6. THE NOUN.

31.—A NOUN is the name of any person, place, or thing; as Cicero, Roma, homo, liber.

32.—Nouns are of two kinds, Proper and Common.

1. A Proper Noun is the name applied to an individual only; as, Cicero, Aprilis, Roma.

To this class belong,

Patronymics, or those which express one's parentage or family; as, Priamides, the son of Priam.

Gentile, or Patrial, which denote one's country; as, Romanus, Gallus.

Obs. A proper noun applied to more than one, becomes a common noun; as, duodecim Cæsares, the twelve Cæsars.

2. A Common Noun is a name applied to all things of the same sort; as, vir, a man; dõmus, a house; liber, a book.

Note. A Proper noun is the name of an individual only, and is used to distinguish that individual from all others of the same class. A Common noun is the name of a class of objects, and is equally applicable to all the individuals contained in it.

33.—Under this class may be ranged,

1. Collective nouns, or nouns of multitude, which signify many in the singular number; as, populus, a people; exercitus, an army

2. Abstract nouns, or the names of qualities; as, bonitas, goodness; dulcedo, sweetness.

3. Diminutives, or nouns which express a diminution in the signification of the nouns from which they are derived; as, libellus, a little book, from liber, a book.

4. Amplificative nouns, or those which denote an increase in the signification of the nouns from which they are derived; as, capito, a person having a large head, from caput, the head.

§ 7. ACCIDENTS OF THE NOUNS.

34.—To Latin nouns belong Person, Gender, Number, and Case.

1. PERSON.

35.—PERSON, in Grammar, is the distinction of nouns as used in discourse, to denote the speaker, the person or thing addressed, or the person or thing spoken of. Hence,

There are three persons, called First, Second, and Third.

A noun is in the first person, when it denotes the speaker or writer; as, Ego ille consul qui verbo cives in exilium ejicio.

A noun is in the second person, when it denotes the person or thing addressed; as, Catilina, perge quo coepisti.

A noun is in the third person, when it denotes the person or thing spoken of; as, Tempus fugit.

Note. Person has nothing to do either with the form of a noun, or with its meaning, but simply with the manner in which it is used. Hence, the same noun may at one time be in the first person; at another, in the second; and at another in the third.

2. GENDER.

36.—GENDER means the distinction of nouns with regard to Sex.

37.—There are three Genders, the Masculine, the Feminine, and the Neuter.

38.—Of some nouns, the gender is determined by their signification;—of others by their termination.

39.—The Masculine gender belongs to all nouns which denote the male sex.

40.—The Feminine gender belongs to all nouns which denote the female sex.

41.—The Neuter gender belongs to all nouns which are neither masculine nor feminine.

42.—Nouns which denote both males and females, are said to be of the Common gender; i. e., they are both masculine and feminine.

43.—Nouns denoting things without sex, and which are sometimes of one gender, and sometimes of another, are said to be Doubtful.

44.—The gender of nouns not determined by their signification, is usually to be ascertained by their termination, as will be noticed under each declension.

45.—GENERAL OBSERVATIONS ON GENDER.

1. Nouns denoting brute animals, especially those whose sex is not easily discerned or but rarely attended to, commonly follow the gender of their termination. Such are the names of wild beasts, birds, fishes, insects, &c.

2. A proper name often follows the gender of the common noun under which it is comprehended; thus.

The names of months, winds, rivers, and mountains, are masculine, because mensis, ventus, fluvius, mons, are masculine.

The names of countries, towns, trees, and ships, are feminine, because terra, urbs, arbor, nāvis, are feminine.

To these, however, there are many exceptions.

3. Some nouns are masculine and feminine both in sense and grammatical construction; as, adolescens, a young man or woman; Ajūnis, a relation by marriage; dux, a leader.

Some nouns are masculine or feminine in sense, but masculine only in grammatical construction; i. e., they have an adjective word always in the masculine gender; such as, Artifex, an artist; fur, a thief; sēnex, an old person; &c.

Some nouns are masculine or feminine in sense, but feminine only in grammatical construction; i. e., they have an adjective word always in the feminine gender; such as, copiæ, forces, troops; custodiæ, guards; op̄eræ, labourers; &c.

4. Some nouns denoting persons, are neuter, both in termi nation and construction; as, Acroāma, a jester; Auxilia, auxiliary troops; mancipium, or servilium, a slave.

5. Some nouns distinguish the masculine and feminine by a difference of termination; as, Victor, victrix; ultor, ultrix; cōquus, cōqua. Some names of animals distinguish the two sexes by different forms; as, Agnus, agna; cervus, cerva; columbus, columba; gallus, gallina, &c. In some cases, the words are altogether different; as, taurus, a bull; vacca, a cow. But, in general, the male and the female are expressed by the same term; passer, sparrow; corvus, a raven; fēlis, a cat; vulpes, a fox; cānis, a dog; hōmo, a man.

3. NUMBER.

46.—NUMBER is that property of a noun by which it expresses one, or more than one.

47.—Latin nouns have two numbers, the Singular and the Plural. The Singular denotes one; the Plural, more than one.

48.—Some nouns in the plural form, denote only one; as, Athēnæ, Athens; others signify one or more; as, nuptiæ, a marriage or marriages.

4. CASE.

49.—CASE is the state or condition of a noun with respect to the other words in a sentence.

50.—Latin nouns have six cases, the Nominative, Genitive, Dative, Accusative, Vocative, and Ablative.

1. The Nominative case, for the most part, denotes the name of an object simply, or as that of which something is affirmed.

2. The Genitive connects with the name of an object, the idea of origin, possession, or fitness.

3. The Dative represents the thing named, as that to which something is added, or to, or for which something is said or done.

4. The Accusative represents the thing named, as affected or acted upon by something else; and also, as the object to which something tends or relates.

5. The Vocative is used when persons or things expressed by the noun, are addressed.

6. The Ablative represents the thing named, as that from which something is separated, or taken; or, as that by or with which something is done, or exists.

51.—All the cases, except the nominative, are called Oblique cases.

52.—The signs of the oblique cases, or the prepositions by which they are usually rendered into English, are the following, viz: Genitive, of; Dative, to or for; Vocative, O; Ablative, with, from, in, by, &c., as in the following scheme:

Singular.		Plural.
Nom.	a king,	Nom.	kings,
Gen.	of a king,	Gen.	of kings,
Dat.	to or for a king,	Dat.	to or for kings,
Acc.	a king,	Acc.	kings,
Voc.	O king,	Voc.	O kings,
Abl. with, from, in, or by,	a king,	Abl. with, from, in, or by,	kings.

§ 8. DECLENSION

53.—DECLENSION is the mode of changing the terminations of nouns, &c.

54.—In Latin, there are five declensions, called the First, Second, Third, Fourth, and Fifth.

55.—The declensions are distinguished from one another by the termination of the genitive singular; thus,

The first declension has the genitive singular in	-æ,
The second	“ “ in -i,
The third	“ “ in -is,
The fourth	“ “ in -ūs,
The fifth	“ “ in -ei.

56.—All that part of a noun, or of an adjective, which precedes the termination of the genitive singular, is called the Root. All that follows the root, in any case or number, is called the Case-ending, or Termination.

57 -GENERAL RULES FOR THE DECLENSION OF NOUNS.

1 Nouns of the neuter gender have the nominative, accusative, and vocative, alike in both numbers, and these cases, in the plural, end always in a.

2. The vocative, for the most part in the singular, and always in the plural, is like the nominative.

3. The dative and the ablative plural are alike.

4. Proper names for the most part want the plural.

The difference between these declensions will be seen at one view in the following :

53.—TABLE OF TERMINATIONS.

	Singular.
	First.	Sec. & 2.		Third.	Fourth.		Fifth.
	M.	N.	M.	N.	M.	N.
N.	-ă,	-us, -ei,	-um,	—	—	-ŭ,	-es,
G.	-æ,	-i,	-is,	—	-ŭs,	-ŭs,	-ei,
D.	-æ,	-ō,	-ī,	—	-uī,	-ŭ,	-ei,
Ac.	-am,	-um,	-em,	—	-um,	-ŭ,	-em,

Ab.	-ă.	-ō.	-ē, or ī.	—	-ŭ.	-ŭ.	-ē

Plural.
N.	-æ,	-ī,	-ă,	-es, -ă, -iă,	-us,	-uă,	-es,
G.	-ărum,	-ōrum,	-um, -ium,	-um,	-uum,	-erum,	-erum,
D.	-is,	-is,	-ibus,	-ibus, or ŭbus,	-ibus, or ŭbus,	-ibus,	-ibus,
Ac.	-as,	-os,	-ă, -es,	-ă, -iă,	-us,	-uă,	-es,
V.	-æ,	-ī,	-ă, -es,	-ă, -iă,	-us,	-uă,	-es,
Ab.	-is.	-is.	-ibus.	-ibus, or ŭbus.	-ibus, or ŭbus.	-ibus.	-ibus.

59 —The terminations of the nominative singular in the third declension, being numerous, are omitted in the table, also those of the vocative, which, in this declension, is always like the nominative. The terminations of the genitive, dative, and ablative neuter, are the same as the masculine.

§ 9. FIRST DECLENSION.

60.—The first declension has four terminations of the nominative singular two feminine, a, e; and two masculine, as, es.

Latin nouns end only in a; the rest are Greek.

TERMINATIONS.

Singular.		Plural.
Nom.	-ā,	Nom.	-e,
Gen.	-æ,	Gen.	-arum,
Dat.	-æ,	Dat.	-is,
Acc.	-am,	Acc.	-as,
Voc.	-ā,	Voc.	-e,
Abl.	-ā,	Abl.	-is.

PENNA, a feather,—later, a pen. Fem.

Singular.		Plural.
N.	penn-ā, a pen,	N.	penn-æ, pens,
G.	penn-æ, of a pen,	G.	penn-ārum, of pens,
D.	penn-æ, to or for a pen,	D.	penn-is, to or for pens,
Ac.	penn-am, a pen,	Ac.	penn-as, pens,
V.	penn-ā, O pen,	V.	penn-æ, O pens,
Ab.	penn-ā, with a pen.	Ab.	penn-is, with pens.

VIA, a way. Fem.

Singular.		Plural.
N.	vi-ā, a way,	N.	vi-æ, ways,
G.	vi-æ, of a way,	G.	vi-ārum, of ways,
D.	vi-æ, to a way,	D.	vi-is, to ways.
Ac.	vi-am, a way,	Ac.	vi-as, ways,
V.	vi-ā, O way,	V.	vi-æ, O ways,
Ab.	vi-ā, with, &amp;c., a way.	Ab.	vi-is, with, &amp;c., ways.

Note. The words declined as examples in this and the other declensions, are not divided into syllables, and the hyphen (-) is never to be regarded as a division of syllables, but only as separating the root from the termination; as penn-a, agr-i, &c.

In like manner decline

Ara, an altar; Sella, a seat; Tuba, a trumpet; Litēra, a letter

ADDITIONAL EXAMPLES.

Ala , a wing.	Fāba , a bean.	Rīps , a bank.
Arca , a chest.	Hōra , an hour.	Turba , a crowd.
Casa , a cottage.	Mensa , a table.	Unda , a wave.
Causa , a cause	Norma , a rule.	Virga , a rod

61.—EXCEPTIONS IN GENDER.

1. Nouns in a, denoting appellations of men, as pincerna, a butler; names of rivers; (45-2,) likewise Hadriā, the Hadriatic; comēta, a comet; planēta, a planet; and sometimes talpa, a mole; and dāma, a fallow-deer, are masculine. Pascha, the passover, is neuter.

EXCEPTIONS IN CASE

2. The Genitive Singular.—The ancient Latins sometimes formed the genitive in āi; as, aulā, a hall; Gen. aulāi;—sometimes in as; as, mater-familias, the mother of a family, (See 96-9).

3. The Accusative Singular.—Greek nouns in a, have sometimes an in the accusative singular; as, Maian, Ossan.

4. The Dative and Ablative Plural.—The following nouns have abus instead of is, in the dative and ablative plural, to distinguish them from masculine nouns in us, of the second declension, viz:

Asīna , a she ass.	Filia , a daughter.
Dea , a goddess.	Mūla , a she mule.
Equa , a mare.	Nāta , a daughter.

Several others are found in inscriptions and in ancient authors. Still, except dea and filia, notwithstanding the ambiguity, they generally prefer the termination is.

GREEK NOUNS.

62.—Greek nouns in as, es, and e, are declined as follows, in the singular number:—

Ænēas , Æneas .	Anchīsēs , Anchises .	Penelōpē , Penelope .
N. Ænē-as ,	N. Anchīs-ēs ,	N. Penelōp-ē .
G. Ænē-æ ,	G. Anchīs-æ ,	G. Penelōp-ēs ,
D. Ænē-æ ,	D. Anchīs-æ ,	D. Penelōp-ē ,
Ac. Ænē-am , or an ,	Ac. Anchīs-en ,	Ac. Penelōp-ēn ,
V. Ænē-ā ,	V. Anchīs-ē ,	V. Penelōp-ē ,
Ab. Ænē-ā .	Ab. Anchīs-ē .	Ab. Penelōp-ē .

Like Ænēas, decline Boreas, the north wind; Midas, a king of Phrygia:—also, Gorgias, Messias.

Like Anchises, decline Alcides, a name of Hercules; comētes, a comet—also, Priamides, Tydidēs, dynastes, satrāpes.

Like Penelope, decline Circe, a famous sorceress; Cybèle, the mother of the gods; epitōne, an abridgment; grammaticæ, grammar;—also, albe, crambè, Circe, Danūe, Phœnicæ

Obs. 1. When the plural of proper names occurs, it is like the plural of penna; thus, Atridæ, Atridārum, &c.

Obs. 2. Nouns in es have sometimes ā in the vocative, more rarely ā. Nouns in stes have sta. They also sometimes have the accusative in em, and the ablative in ā.

EXERCISES ON THE FIRST DECLENSION.

[The words in the following exercises will be found in No. 60.]

1. Tell the case and number of the following words, and translate them accordingly.—Penna, pennam, pennārum, pennis, pennā, pennæ;—āram, āris; sellæ, sellā, sellārum; tūbis, tūbam, tūbæ; litērā, litērārum, pennis, āras, tūbæ, litēris;—Penelopēs, Penelopēn, Ænēan, Anchīsēs, Anchīsæ, Ænēā.

2. Translate the following words into Latin:—The pen, of pens, with pens, from a pen, in a pen, by pens; from the altars; of a trumpet; with letters; a seat; O altar; the seat of Penelope; of Æneas; with Anchises; a trumpet; from the altar; to a seat; with a pen; of the altars; &c., ad libitum.

§ 10. SECOND DECLENSION.

63.—The Second Declension has seven terminations of the nominative singular: namely,

Five masculine, er, ir, ur, us, and os.

Two neuter, um and on.

Of these terminations, os and on are Greek; the rest are Latin.

TERMINATIONS.

Masculine.		Neuter.
Singular.	Plural.	Singular.	Plural.
N. -er, -ir, -ur, -us,	N. -ī,	N. -um,	N. -ā,
G. -ī,	G. -ōrum,	G. -ī,	G. -ōrura
D. -ō,	D. -īs,	D. -ō,	D. -īs,
Ac. -um,	Ac. -ōs,	Ac. -um,	Ac. -ā,
V. -er, -ir, -ur, -e,	V. -ī,	V. -um,	V. -ā,
Ab. -ō.	Ab. -īs,	Ab. -ō	Ab. -īs.

64.—Nouns in er, ir, and ur, add i in the genitive; but us and um are changed into i. The only nouns in ir are vir, and its compounds duumviri, triviri, &c. The only word in ur of this declension, is the masculine gender of the adjective satur, full. All these are declined like puer.

PUER, a boy, Masc.

Singular.		Plural.
N. puer,	a boy,	N. puēr-i,	boys
G. puēr-i,	of a boy,	G. puer-ōrum,	of boys,
D. puēr-o,	to, or for a boy,	D. puēr-is,	to or for boys,
Ac. puēr-um,	a boy,	Ac. puēr-os,	boys,
V. puer,	O boy,	V. puēr-i,	O boys,
Ab. puēr-o,	with, &c., a boy.	Ab. puēr-is,	with, &c., boys.

65.—All the nouns in er declined like puer, are the compounds of fēro and gēro; as, Lucifer, the morning star; armiger, an armor bearer; also the nouns adulter, an adulterer; Celtiber, a Celtiberian; Iber, a Spaniard; Liber, Bacchus; sōcer, a father-in-law; vesper, the evening; and sometimes Mulciber, a name of Vulcan; also the plural liberi, children.

Words in er, ir, and ur, it is probable, originally ended in erus, trus, and urus; and hence, in some words, both forms are still found; as, socerus and sōcer.

66.—RULE 1. All other nouns in er, lose e in the root, by syncope, when the termination is added; as,

LIBER, a book, Masc.

Singular.		Plural.		Thus decline:
N. liber,	N. libr-i,	Ager,	a field.
G. libr-i,	G. libr-ōrum,	Aper,	a wild boar.
D. libr-o,	D. libr-is,	Culter,	a knife.
Ac. libr-um,	Ac. libr-os,	Magister,	a master.
V. liber,	V. libr-i,	Auster,	the south wind.
Ab. libr-o.	Ab. libr-is.	Cancer,	a crab.

67.—RULE 2. Nouns in us, have the vocative in e; as, ventus, vente.

DOMINUS, a lord, Masc.

Singular.		Plural.		Thus decline:
N. domin-us,	N. domin-i,	Ventus,	the wind,
G. domin-i,	G. domin-ōrum,	Oculus,	the eye.
D. domin-o,	D. domin-is,	Annus,	a year.
Ac. domin-um,	Ac. domin-os,	Fluvius,	a river.
V. domin-e,	V. domin-i,	Hortus,	a garden,
Ab. domin-o.	Ab. domin-is.	Radius,	a ray.

REGNUM, a kingdom, Neut.

Singular.	Plural.	Thus decline :
N. regn-um,	N. regn-a,	Ant-um,	a cave.
G. regn-i,	G. regn-ōrum.	Astr-um,	a star.
D. regn-o,	D. regn-is,	Dōn-um,	a gift.
Ac. regn-um,	Ac. regn-a,	Jūg-um,	a yoke.
V. regn-um,	V. regn-a,	Sax-um,	a stone.
Ab. regn-o.	Ab. regn-is.	Pōm-um.	an apple.

PROMISCUOUS EXAMPLES.

Arbiter, a judge.	Folium, a leaf.	Sōcer, a father-in-law
Bellum, war.	Gladius, a sword.	Telum, a dart.
Cōdus, a cask.	Lūpus, a wolf.	Tōrus, a couch.
Cervus, a stag.	Mūrus, a wall.	Tectum, the roof.
Collum, the neck.	Nidus, a nest.	Truncus, the trunk.
Equus, a horse.	Ovum, an egg.	Vēlum, a sail.
Fāber, an artist.	Prælium, a battle.	Vādum, a ford.
Ficus, f, a figtree.	Rāmus, a branch.	Vōtum, a vow.

68.—EXCEPTIONS IN GENDER.

Exc. 1. Of nouns ending in us, the names of plants, towns, islands, and precious stones, with few exceptions, are feminine, (45-2.)

Obs. In many cases, where the name of a tree ends in us, fem., there is a form in um denoting the fruit of the tree; as, cerāsus, cerāsūm; mālus, mālūm; mōrus, mōrūm; pīrus, pīrūm; prūnus, prūnūm; pōmus, pōmūm. But ficus means both a fig-tree, and a fig.

Exc. 2. Besides these, only four words, originally Latin, are feminine; viz, alvus, the belly; cōlus, the distaff; hūmus, the ground; and vannus, a winnowing fan.

Exc. 3. Vīrus, juice, poison; and pelāgus, the sea, are neuter, and have the accusative and vocative like the nominative. Vulgus, the common people, is both masculine and neuter. Pampīnus, a vine branch, is rarely feminine, commonly masculine.

Exc. 4. Many Greek nouns in us, are feminine, especially compounds of ὄδος; as, methodus, periodus, &c. So also, biblus: papīrus, diphtingus, paragraphus, diametrus, perimetrus.

EXCEPTIONS IN DECLENSION.

69.—Exc. 5. The Vocative Singular. 1st. Proper names in ius lose us in the vocative; as, Virgilius, V. Virgili; except Pius, which has Pie.

In like manner, filius, a son, has fili; and genius, one's guardian angel, has geni. But other common nouns in ius, and such epithets as Delius, Saturnius, &c., not considered as proper names, have ie. Also proper names in ius, from Greek nouns in εἶος, have ie.

2d. Deus has deus in the vocative, and in the plural more frequently dii and diis, (sometimes contracted dī and dīs,) than dei and deis. Meus, my, has the vocative mi, sometimes meus.

70.—Obs. The poets, sometimes, make the vocative of nouns in us, like the nominative, which is seldom done in prose. Sometimes, also, they change nouns in er into us; as, Evander or Evandrus; in the vocative, Evander or Evandre.

71.—Exc. 6. The Genitive Singular.—Nouns in ius and ium, in the purest age of the Latin language, formed the genitive singular in i, not in ii, both in prose and verse; as, fili, Tulli, ingeni; they are now frequently written with a circumflex; thus, fili, Tulli, ingenti; for, fili, Tulli, &c.

72.—Exc. 7. The Genitive Plural.—Some nouns, especially those which denote value, measure, weight, commonly form the genitive plural in ium, instead of orum; as, nummum, sestertiium, &c. The same form occurs in other words, especially in poetry; as, delum, Danaium, &c.; also, divom is used for divorum.

73.—DEUS, a god, is thus declined.

Singular.	Plural.
N. De-us,	N. De-i, or Di-i,	Contr. Dī,
G. De-i,	G. De-ōrum,
D. De-o,	D. De-is, or Di-is,	“ Dīs,
Ac. De-um,	Ac. De-os,
V. De-us,	V. De-i, or Di-i,	“ Dī,
Ab. De-o.	Ab. De-is, or Di-is,	“ Dīs.

GREEK NOUNS.

74.—Greek nouns in os and on, are often changed into us and um; as, Alpheos, Alpheus; Ilion, Ilium: and those in ros, into er; as, Alexandros, Alexander. When thus changed, they are declined like Latin nouns of the same termination. Otherwise,

Greek nouns are thus declined:

ANDROGÉOS, MASC; DELOS, FEM.—BARBITON, a lyre, Neut.

Singular.		Singular.		Plural.
N. Androge-os,	Dēl-os,	N. barbīt-on,		barbīt-a,
G. Androge-o, or -i,	Dēl-i,	G. barbīt-i,		barbīt-on,
D. Androge-o,	Dēl-o,	D. barbīt-o,		barbīt-is,
Ac. Androge-o, or -on,	Dēl-on,	Ac. barbīt-on,		barbīt-a,
V. Androge-os,	Dēl-e,	V. barbīt-on,		barbīt-a,
Ab. Androge-o.	Dēl-o.	Ab. barbīt-o.		barbīt-is.

75.—Some nouns in os, anciently had the genitive in u; as, Menandru. Panthu occurs in Virgil, as the vocative of Panthus. Proper names in eūs are declined like domīnus, but have the vocative in eus, and sometimes contract the genitive singular; as, Orpheī into Orphei, or Orphi. Proper names in which eu-is a diphthong, are of the third declension. Other nouns, also, are sometimes of the third declension; as, Androgeo, Androgeonis.

EXERCISES ON THE SECOND DECLENSION.

List of words in the following exercises:

Puer,	a boy.	Regnum,	a kingdom,	Solum,	the soil,
Domīnus,	a lord.	Ventus,	the wind.	Oculus,	the eye.
Liber,	a book.	Cælum,	heaven.	Filius,	a son.

Tell the case and number of the following words, and translate them accordingly:—Puēri, dominōrum, domīno, puēro, puērum, puēros, libri, libris, librum, libro, domīnis, domīne, regnum, regna, regnōrum—ventus, vento, ventum—oculus, oculōrum—filii, fili, filii, filios.

Translate the following words into Latin:—To a boy, from a boy, O boy, O boys, of boys; books, of books, for books, in books, with a book; a lord, from a lord, to a lord, of lords, the lords; of a kingdom, the kingdom, to the kingdoms; to the winds of heaven, lords of the soil, &c., ad libitum

§ 11. THE THIRD DECLENSION.

76.—Nouns of the third declension are very numerous: they are of all genders, and generally increase one syllable in the oblique cases. Its final letters, in the nominative, are thirteen, a, e, i, o, y, c, d, l, n, r, s, t, x. Of these, a, i, y, are peculiar to Greek nouns.

Obs. A noun is said to increase, when it has more syllables in any case than it has in the nominative.

TERMINATIONS.

Masculine and Feminine.		Neuter.
Singular.	Plural.	Singular.	Plural.
N. —,	N. -es,	N. —,	N. -a,
G. -is,	G. -um, or -ium,	G. -is,	G. -um, or -ium,
D. -i,	D. -ibus,	D. -i,	D. -ibus,
Ac. -em,	Ac. -es,	Ac. —,	Ac. -a,
V. —,	V. -es,	V. —,	V. -a,
Ab. -e, or -i.	Ab. -ibus.	Ab. -e, or -i.	Ab. -ibus.

77.—GENERAL OBSERVATIONS.

1. In this declension, the nominative and vocative of masculine and feminine nouns are always alike. As the final syllables of the nominative are very numerous, a dash (—) supplies their place in the preceding table. Neuter nouns come under the general rule, (57-1).

2. All nouns of this declension are declined by annexing the above case-endings, or terminations to the root.

3. The Root consists of all that stands before is in the genitive (56) and remains unchanged throughout. Hence, when the genitive case is found, the cases after that are alike in all nouns, except as noticed hereafter. In most nouns of this declension, the root does not appear in full form in the nominative, nor in the vocative singular. See 78, 80, 81.

4. The genitive singular of nouns, in this declension, will be most easily learned from the Dictionary, as all rules that can be given are rendered nearly useless by the number of exceptions under them.

5. In the following examples, the root and terminations are separated by a hyphen (-), in order to show more distinctly the regularity of the declension. This being mentioned, it will occasion no difficulty, though standing, as it often does, in the middle of syllables; as, pá tr-is.

78.—§ 12. EXAMPLES OF THE THIRD DECLENSION.

1. SERMO, a speech, Masc.

Singular.	Plural.	Thus decline :
N. Sermo,	N. Sermōn-es,	Carbo,	a coal.
G. Sermōn-is,	G. Sermōn-um,	Leo,	a lion.
D. Sermōn-i,	D. Sermon-ibus,	Oratio,	an oration.
Ac. Sermōn-em,	Ac. Sermōn-es,	Pāvo,	a peacock.
V. Sermo,	V. Sermōn-es,	Prædo,	a robber.
Ab. Sermōn-e,	Ab. Sermon-ibus,	Titio,	a fire-brand.

NOTE. Hōmō, nēmō, Apollo, and turbo; also, cardo, ordo, margo, and likewise, nouns in do and go, of more than two syllables, change o into i before the terminations; as, Hōmō, hēmōnis; Cupido, Cupidinis; imāgo, imaginis. But Comēdo, unēdo, and harpāgo, retain o; as, Comēdo, comedōnis. Anio and Nerio change o into e; as, Anio, Anienis; and cāro has carnis, by syncope for carōnis.

2. COLOR, a color, Masc.

Singular.	Plural.	Thus decline :
N. cōlor,	N. colōr-es,	Arbor,	a tree
G. colōr-is,	G. colōr-um,	Cantor,	a singer.
D. colōr-i,	D. color-ibus,	Hōnor,	honor.
Ac. colōr-em,	Ac. colōr-es,	Lābor,	labor.
V. cōlor,	V. colōr-es,	Lector,	a reader.
Ab. colōr-e.	Ab. color-ibus.	Pastor,	a shepherd.

3. MILES, a soldier, Masc.

Singular.	Plural.	Thus decline :
N. miles,	N. milit-es,	Ales,	a bird.
G. milit-is,	G. milit-um,	Cōmes,	a companion.
D. milit-i,	D. milit-ibus,	Līmes,	a limit.
Ac. milit-em,	Ac. milit-es,	Trānes,	a path.
V. miles,	V. milit-es,	Sēges -ētis,	a crop.
Ab. milit-e	Ab. milit-ibus.	Tēges, -ētis,	a mat.

79.—RULE 1. Nouns in es and is, not increasing in the genitive singular, have ium in the genitive plural; as,

4. RŪPES, a rock, Fem.

Singular.	Plural.	Thus decline :
N. rūp-es,	N. rūp-es,	Apis,	a bee.
G. rūp-is,	G. rūp-ium,	Clas-is,	a fleet.
D. rūp-i,	D. rūp-ibus,	Mōles,	a mass.
Ac. rūp-em,	Ac. rūp-es,	Nūbes,	a cloud.
V. rūp-es,	V. rūp-es,	Vītis,	a vine.
Ab. rūp-e.	Ab. rūp-ibus.	Vulpes,	a fox.

Exc. Strues, a pile; vātes, a prophet; cānis, a dog; juvēnis, a young man; mugilis, a mullet; pānis, bread; strigilis, a scraper, have um. Sedes, mensis, āpis or āpes, and volūcris, have um or ium.

80.—RULE 2. Nouns of one syllable in as and is, and also, in s and x, after a consonant, have ium in the genitive plural; as,

5. PARS, a part, Fem.

Singular.	Plural.	Thus decline :
N. pars,	N. part-es,	Calx, -cis,	the heel.
G. part-is,	G. part-ium,	Vas, -dis,	a surety.
D. part-i,	D. part-ibus,	Lis, -tis,	a law-suit.
Ac. part-em,	Ac. part-es,	Arx, -cis,	a citadel.
V. pars,	V. part-es,	Urbs, -is,	a city.
Ab. part-e,	Ab. part-ibus.	Pons, -tis,	a bridge.

81.—RULE 3. Nouns of more than one syllable in as and ns, have um, and sometimes ium, in the genitive plural; as,

6. PARENS, a parent, Masc. or Fem.

Singular.	Plural.	Thus decline :
N. pārens,	N. parent-es,	Bīdens,	a fork
G. parent-is,	G. parent-un,-ium,	Rūdens,	a cable.
D. parent-i,	D. parent-ibus,	Cliens,	a client.
Ac. parent-em,	Ac. parent-es,	Serpens,	a serpent.
V. pārens,	V. parent-es,	Sextans,	a sixth of an as.
Ab. parent-e.	Ab. parent-ibus.	Torrēns,	a torrent.

82.—Obs. 1 Masculine and feminine nouns, which have ium in the genitive plural, sometimes have is, or eis, as well as es in the nominative, accusative, and vocative plural; as, partes, partium;—nominative, accusative, and vocative, partes, parteis, or partis.

7. OPUS, a work, Neut. (57-1.)

Singular.	Plural.	Thus decline:
N. ōpus,	N. opēr-a,	Fūnus, a funeral
G. opēr-is,	G. opēr-um,	Lātus, the side.
D. opēr-i,	D. oper-ibus,	Corpus, -ōris, the body.
Ac. ōpus,	Ac. opēr-a,	Cāput, capītis, the head
V. ōpus,	V. opēr-a,	Fēmur, -ōris, the thigh.
Ab. opēr-e.	Ab. oper-ibus,	Iter, itinēris, a journey.

83.—RULE 4. Nouns in e, al, and ar, have i in the ablative singular; ium in the genitive plural; and ia in the nominative, accusative, and vocative plural; as,

8. SEDĪLE, a seat, Neut.

Singular.	Plural.	Thus decline:
N. sedī-e,	N. sedī-ia,	Ancīle, a shield.
G. sedī-is,	G. sedī-ium,	Mantile, a towel
D. sedī-i,	D. sedī-ibus,	Māre, the sea

EXERCISES ON THE EXAMPLES.

Tell the case and number of the following words, and translate them accordingly:—Sermōnis, sermōnum; coloribus, colōri, colōre, colōres; militum, militis, militem, militibus, rūpis, rūpe, rupium, rūpi, rupibus; partium, partes, parte, partis; parenti, parente, parentum, parentes, parentis; opēra, opēre, opēri, operibus, opērum; sedilis, sedilia, sedilibus, sedili sedilium; animalia, animālis, animāli; carminis, carmini, carminibus.

Translate the following words into Latin:—Of a rock, of rocks; from a soldier, with soldiers; to a seat, seats, of seats; the works, of a soldier; to the color, of a rock, a seat, for a parent, the speech, of a parent, to a soldier, the color, of an animal, from rocks, to rocks, of a region, for a serpent, the night &c., ad libitum.

§ 13. GENDER OF NOUNS IN THE THIRD DECLENSION.

1. MASCULINE NOUNS.

85.—RULE 1. Nouns in n, o, er, or, es increasing (76, Obs..) and os, are generally masculine.

86.—The following are exceptions; viz:

1. Exceptions in N.

- FEM. Sindon, ādor; halcyon, and īcon, are feminine.
NEUT. Glūten, unġuen, inguen, pollen, and all nouns in men; as carmen, nōmen, etc., are neuter

2. Exceptions in O.

- FEM. 1. Nouns in io, denoting things incorporeal, are feminine.
 2. Nouns in do and go, of more than two syllables, with grādo, virgo, and sometimes margo, are feminine.
 But harpāgo, comēdo, and Cupīdo, Cupid, are masculine.
 NOTE. Cupīdo, desire, in prose, is always feminine; in poetry often masculine.
 3. Cūro, flesh, is feminine, and Greek nouns in o; as, echo, Argo.

3. Exceptions in ER.

- FEM. Tūber, the tuber-tree, and sometimes linter, a boat, are feminine.
NEUT. Acer, cadāver, cīcer, īter, lūser, lūver, papāver, pīper, sīler, spinther, sūber, tūber, a swelling, ūber, ver, verber, zingūber, and sometimes sīser, are neuter.

4. Exceptions in OR.

- FEM. Arbor, a tree, is feminine. (45-2.)
NEUT. Ador, æquor, marmor, and cor, the heart, are neuter.

5. Exceptions in ES, increasing (76, Obs).

- FEM. Umpes, merces, merges, quies, requies, inquiries, sēges, tēges, tūdes, and sometimes ales, a bird, are feminine.
NEUT. Æs, brass, is neuter.

6. Exceptions in OS.

- FEM. Arbos, (45-2) cos, dos, eos, are feminine.
NEUT. Os, the mouth; os, a bone; also, the Greek chaos, ethos, tyros, and mēlos, are neuter.

2. FEMININE NOUNS.

87.—RULE 2. Nouns in as, es not increasing, is, ys, and rus;—also in s after a consonant, and æ, are, for the most part, feminine.

88.—The following are exceptions; viz:

1. Exceptions in AS.

MASC. As, a piece of money, and Greek nouns in as, -antis, are masculine.
NEUT. Vas, a vessel, and Greek nouns in as, -ätis, are neuter.

2. Exceptions in ES not increasing.

MASC. Acināces, cōles, and sometimes palumbes, and vepres.
NEUT. Cacoëthes, hipponānes, nepenthes, and panāces, Greek.

3. Exceptions in IS.

MASC. 1. Latin nouns in nis are masculine. But amnis, cīnis, clūnis, fīnis, and fūnis, are sometimes feminine. Fīnes, boundaries, in the plural, is always masculine.

2. The following nouns are masculine, viz:

Axis,	Cossis,	Lāpis,	Semissis,
Aquālis,	Cucūnis,	Mensis,	Sentis,
Callis,	Decussis,	Mugilis,	Sodālis,
Cassis,	Ensis,	Orbis,	Torris,
Caulis, or }	Fascis,	Piscis,	Unguis,
Cōlis, }	Follis,	Pollis,	Vectis,
Centussis,	Fustis,	Postis,	Vermis,
Collis,	Glis,	Sanguis,	Vōmis.

MASC. or FEM. Anguis, canālis, cenchris, corbis, pulvis, scrōbis, tigris, torquis, are masculine or feminine.

4. Exceptions in YS.

MASC. Names of rivers and mountains, as Halys, Othrys, &c., are commonly masculine. (45-2.)

b. Exceptions in S after a consonant.

MASC. 1. Dens, fons, mons, and pons; also, chālybs, ellops, ēpops, gryps, hydrops, mērops, and seps, are masculine.

2. Nouns in ns, originally participles, and compounds of dens, as occīdens, oriens, bidens, a two-pronged hoe; also sextans, quadrans, triens, &c., parts of as, are masculine; but bidens, a sheep, is feminine.

MASC. or FEM. Adeps, forceps, rūdens, scrobs, serpens, stirps.

NOTE Animans, a living creature, is of all genders.

6. Exceptions in X.

- MASC. 1. AX. Cōrax, cordax, drōpax, styrax, thōrax, are masculine.
 2. EX. All nouns in ex are masculine, except lex, nex, supellex, feminine; cortex, imbrex, ūber, rīnax, sīlex, sometimes feminine; grex and pūmex, rarely feminine; and atriplex, neuter.
 3. IX. Cālix, fornix, phœnix, spādix, are masculine, and sometimes perdix and vārix; otherwise feminine.
 4. OX. Box, ēsox, and volvox are masculine.
 5. UX. Trādix is masculine.
 6. YX. Bombyx, a silk worm; cālyx, coccyx, dryx, are masculine; but ōnyx, and sandyx, are masculine or feminine.
 7. NX. Quincunx, septunx, dēcunx, devnax, parts of as, are masculine; lynx is masculine or feminine.
Calx, lime, is feminine; calx, the heel, masculine or feminine.
Bombyx, silk, is feminine.
- NEUT. Atriplex, gold-herb, is neuter.

3. NEUTER NOUNS.

89.—RULE 3. Nouns in a, e, i, c, and t, are always neuter; those in l, ar, ur, and us, are almost always neuter.

90. The following are exceptions; viz:

1. Exceptions in L.

- MASC. Mūgil and sol are masculine; sal, in the singular, is commonly masculine or feminine, sometimes neuter; in the plural, always masculine.

2. Exceptions in AR.

- MASC. Sālar is masculine. Par, in the sense of "mate," is masculine or feminine; in the sense of "a pair," it is neuter.

3. Exceptions in UR.

- MASC. Astur, furfur, turtur, and vultur, are masculine.

4. Exceptions in US.

- MASC. Lēpus, mus, rhus, meaning a seed, or spice, and Greek nouns in pus, (except lagōpus, feminine,) are masculine.
FEM. Nouns in us, having ūtis, or ūdis in the genitive; also pēcus, -ūdis, tellus, lagōpus, and rhus, meaning a tree, are feminine. Grus, is masculine or feminine.

90.—§ 15. EXCEPTIONS IN DECLENSION

THE ACCUSATIVE SINGULAR.

1. The following nouns in is have im in the accusative.

Amussis, f, a measure, rule.	Rāvis, f, a hoarseness
Būris, f, the beam of a plough.	Sināpis, f, mustard.
Cannābis, f, hemp.	Sītis, f, thirst.
Cucūmis, m, a cucumber.	Tussis, f, a cough
Gummis, f, gum.	Vis, f, strength.
Mephūtis, f, a strong smell.

2. Proper names in is not increasing in the genitive, have im in the accusative; viz :

Names of cities and other places; as, Bilbilis, f., a city of Spain; Syrtis, f., a quicksand on the coast of Africa.

Names of rivers; as, Tibēris, m., the Tiber; Bætis, m., the Guadalquivir.

Names of gods; as, Anūbis, m.; Osiris, m., Egyptian deities.

Note. These nouns have sometimes in in the accusative.

3. The following nouns in is have em or im in the accusative; viz :

Aquālis, f, a water pot.	Puppis, f, the stern of a ship.
Clāvis, f, a key.	Restis, f, a rope.
Cūtis, f, the skin.	Secūris, f, an axe.
Febris, f, a fever.	Sementis, f, a sowing.
Lens, f, lentiles.	Strigīlis, f, a curry-comb
Nāvis, f, a ship.	Turris, f, a tower.
Pelvis, f, a basin.

Note 1. Puppis, restis, secūris, and turris, have generally im; the others commonly em. The oldest Latin writers form the accusative of some other nouns in im; as, avis, auris.

4. Nouns which have been adopted from the Greek, sometimes retain a in the accusative; as, hēros, m., a hero, heroa; Tros, m., a Trojan, Troa. (See No. 13 below.)

Note 2. This form of the accusative singular is seldom used by the best prose writers, and is chiefly confined to proper names, except in atr, m, the air; æther, m., the sky; delphin, m., a dolphin; Pan, m., the god of the shepherds, which commonly have aera, athēra, delphina, and Pāna.

Obs. 1. Many Greek nouns in es have en, as well as em, in the accusative; as, Euphrāten, Oresten, Pylāden.

ABLATIVE SINGULAR.

5. Nouns in is, which have im in the accusative, have i in the ablative; as, sītis, sītim, sīti.

But cannūbis, Bætis, sināpis, and Tigris, have e or i.

6. Nouns in is, which have em or im in the accusative, have e or i in the Ablative; as, clāvis, clāve or clāvi.

Note 3. But cūtis, and restis, have e only; secūris, sementis, and strigūlas, seldom have e.

7. The following nouns, which have em in the accusative, have e or i in the ablative; viz :

Amnis, m., a river.	Occiput, n., the hind-head.
Anguis, m. and f., a snake.	Orbis, m., a circle.
Avis, f., a bird.	Pars, f., a part.
Cīvis, c., a citizen.	Postis, m., a door post.
Classis, f., a fleet.	Pūgil, c., a pugilist.
Finis, m. and f., an end.	Rus, n., the country.
Fustis, m., a staff.	Sors, f., a lot.
Ignis, m., a fire.	Supellex, f., furniture.
Imber, m., a shower.	Unguis, m., a nail.
Mūgil, m., a mullet.	Vectis, m., a lever.

Note 4. Finis, mūgil, occiput, pūgil, rus, supellex, and vectis, have e or i indifferently; the others much more frequently have e.

Obs. 2. Names of towns, when they denote the place in or at which any thing is done, take e or i; as, Carthogīne, or Carthagīni.

Obs. 3. Canālis, m. or f., a water pipe, has canāli only. Likewise names of months in is or er; as, Aprīlis, September, Aprīli, Septembri; and those nouns in is which were originally adjectives; as, ādīlis, affīnis, bipennis, familiāris, natālis, rivālis, sodālis, volucris, &c. This class of nouns also admits e in the ablative: Rūdis, f., a rod, and juvēnis, c., a youth, have e only.

8. The following neuter nouns in al and ar have e in the ablative; viz :

Baccar, lady's glove.	Jūbar, a sunbeam.	Par, a pair.
Far, corn.	Nectar, nectar.	Sal, salt.

Obs 4. Māre, the sea, has the ablative in e or i.

GENITIVE PLURAL

[See Rules, 79—83.]

9. The following nouns have ium in the genitive plural :

Căro, f., flesh .	Lar, m., a household god .	Par, n., a pair .
Côhors, f., a cohort .	Lintor, m. or f., a boat .	Quiris, m., a Roman .
Cor, n., the heart .	Mas, m., a male .	Samnis, m., a Samnite
Cos, f., a whetstone .	Nix, f., snow .	Strix, f., a screech-owl
Dos, f., a dowry .	Nox, f., night .	Uter, m., a bottle .
Fauce, f., the jaws .	Os, n., a bone .	Venter, m., the belly .

Obs. 5. The compounds of uncia and as have likewise ium; as, Septunz, m., seven ounces, septuncium; scztans, m., two ounces, seztantium.

Obs. 6. Apis, f., a bee, has ăpum and apium; fraus, fraud; and mus, a mouse, generally, and fornax, lar, pălus, and rădix, sometimes, have ium; ôpis, f., power, has ôpum only. Gryps, m., a griffon; lynx, m. or f., a lynx; and Sphinx, f., the Sphinx, have um. Bôs, c., gen. bôvis, an ox, has boum

DATIVE PLURAL

10. Bos, c., an ox or a cow, has bôbus or bûbus in the dative plural; and sus, c., a sow, has suibus, or sûbus. Nouns in ma have tis as well as ibus; as, poëma, n., a poem, poematibus or poemătis. The Greek termination si or sin is very uncommon in prose, and is admissible only in words purely Greek. (See No. 13, below.)

ACCUSATIVE PLURAL

11. The form of the accusative plural in as is admissible in all words which have that termination in Greek, but is rarely used in prose. Livy, however, frequently uses Macedônas; and Allobrogas is found in Cæsar (For the accusative plural in is, or eis, see 82.)

12. Some nouns of the third declension are somewhat peculiar in different cases, as follows :

JUPITER.		VIS, force, power, Fem.
Singular.		Singular.	Plural.
N. Jupĭter		N. vis,	N. vĭr-es,
G. Jôv-is,		G. vis,	G. vir-ium,

§ 16. FOURTH DECLENSION.

91.—The Fourth Declension has two terminations of the nominative singular, us and u. Those in u are neuter.

TERMINATIONS.

Masculine and Feminine.		Neuter.
Singular.	Plural.	Singular.	Plural.
N. -us,	-us,	N. -u,	-ua,
G. -ūs,	-uum,	G. -ūs,	-uum,
D. -ui,	-ibus,	D. -u (ui),	-ibus,
Ac. -um,	-us,	Ac. -u,	-ua,
V. -us,	-us,	V. -u,	-ua,
Ab. -u,	-ibus.	Ab. -u.	-ibus.

FRUCTUS, fruit, Masc.

Singular.	Plural.	Thus decline
N. fruct-us,	N. fruct-us,	Cantus, a song.
G. fruct-ūs,	G. fruct-uum,	Cāsus, a fall.
D. fruct-ui,	D. fruct-ibus,	Currus, a chariot.
Ac. fruct-um,	Ac. fruct-us,	Fluctus, a wave.
V. fruct-us,	V. fruct-us,	Grādus, a step.
Ab. fruct-u	Ab. fruct-ibus.	Senātus, the senate.

CORNU, a horn, Neut.

Singular.	Plural.	Thus decline :
N. corn-u,	N. corn-ua,	Gēlu, ice
G. corn-ūs (93-4),	G. corn-uum,	Gēnu, the knees.
D. corn-u,	D. corn-ibus,	Pæcu, cattle
Ac. corn-u,	Ac. corn-ua,	Vēru, a spit.
V. corn-u,	V. corn-ua,
Ab. corn-u.	Ab. corn-ibus.

Note. The only neuters in this declension are cornu, gēlu, gēnu, vēru, and pæcu, which has the dative pecui: tonitrus, ūs, m., and tonitruum, i, n., (thunder, are in common use; tonitru is hardly ever found in classic writers, and never in the nominative or accusative singular.

ADDITIONAL EXAMPLES.

Flātus, a blast.	Mōtus, a motion.	Rītus, a ceremony.
Ictus, a stroke.	Nūtus, a nod.	Sīnus, a bosom.
Mānus, f., the hand.	Passus, a pace.	Sītus, a situation.

92.—EXCEPTIONS IN GENDER.

Exc. 1. The following nouns are feminine; viz :

Acus, a needle.	Ficus, a fig.	Porticus, a gallery.
Annus, an old woman.	Mānus, the hand.	Spēcus,* a den.
Dōmus, a house.	Pēnus,* a storehouse.	Tribus, a tribe.

* Sometimes masculine.

EXCEPTIONS IN DECLENSION.

Exc. 2. The Genitive and Dative singular :—In some writers the genitive singular is occasionally found in uis; as, ejus anvis causā, for ānūs. TERENCE: sometimes also in i; as, senāti and tumultī. SALL. In others, the dative is sometimes found in u, as, resistere impētū, for impetui; Esse ūsū sibi, for usui. CIC.

Exc. 3. The Genitive, Dative, and Ablative plural :—The genitive plural is sometimes contracted; as, currúm, for curruum. The following nouns have ibus instead of ibus in the dative and ablative plural; viz :

Acus, a needle.	Lācus, a lake.	Spēcus, a den.
Arcus, a bow.	Partus, a birth.	Tribus, a tribe.
Artus, a joint.	Portus,* a harbour.	Vēru,* a spit.
Gēnu,* the knee

* These words also have -ibus in the dative plural.

93.—OBSERVATIONS.

1. Nouns of this declension seem to have belonged anciently to the third, and were declined like grus, gruis; thus, fructus, fructu-is, fructu-i, &c. So that all the cases, except the Dative singular and the genitive plural, may be regarded as contracted forms of that declension.

2. Several nouns of this declension are, in whole or in part, of the second also; such as, Ficus, laurus, pēnus, pīnus, dōmus, senātus, tumultus, and several others. Capricornus, m., and the compounds of mānus, as unimānus, centimānus, &c., are always of the second.

3. JESUS, the name of the Saviour, has um in the accusative, and u in all the other oblique cases. This word does not properly belong to this declension, but is after the Greek: Ἰησοῦς, οὔ, οὔ, οὔν, οὔ.

4. Nouns in u were formerly considered indeclinable in the singular; but the recent investigations of Freund and others, have shown this opinion to be incorrect, at least with regard to the genitive; and that u, the only termination of the dative now found, is probably a contraction for ui—just as ūsu is contracted for usui. (Exc. 2.)

5. DŌMUS, a house, Fem., is thus declined :

Singular.	Plural.
N. dōm-us,	N. dōm-us,
G. dōm-ūs, or -i,	G. dom-ōrum, or -um,
D. dōm-ui, or -o,	D. dom-ibus,
Ac. dōm-um,	Ac. dōm-us, or -os,
V. dōm-us,	V. dōm-us,
Ab. dōm-o.	Ab. dom-ibus.

Note.—Dōmus in the genitive, signifies of a house. Dōmī is used only to signify at home, or of home.

EXERCISES ON THE FOURTH DECLENSION.

1. Tell the gender, number, and case, of the following words, from the paradigm and additional examples, pp. 34 and 35, and translate :

Fructus, fructûs, fructuum, flatibus, flātu, manuum, manūbus, nūtu, passuum, passibus, passûs, cornua, tonitribus, verūbus, cāsu, currum, curruī, fluctu, fluctibus, cornibus, &c.

2. Translate the following words into Latin, and tell the gender, number, and case, in which the words are put ; viz :

Of fruit, to fruit, with the hand, for the hand, of a horn, to a horn, with a horn, from horns, horns, the horns, of the chariot, for a chariot, of chariots, from the waves, for the waves, from his hands, with a nod, &c.

§ 17. FIFTH DECLENSION.

94.—The Fifth Declension has but one termination of the nominative singular, namely, es; as, res, a thing: dies, a day.

All nouns of this declension are feminine, except dies, a day, which is masculine or feminine in the singular, and always masculine in the plural; and meridies, the mid-day; which is masculine in the singular, and wants the plural.

1. DIES, a day.

Singular.	Plural.	TERMINATIONS.
		Singular.	Plural.
N. di-es,	N. di-es,	-es,	-es,
G. di-ēī,	G. di-ērum,	-ēī, -ēī,	-ērum.

Ac. di-em,	Ac. di-es,	-em,	-es,
V. di-es,	V. di-es,	-es,	-es,
Ab. di-ē.	Ab. di-ēbus.	-ē.	-ēbus,

Obs. 1. Dies, res, and species, are the only nouns of the fifth declension which have the plural complete; acies, effigies, facies, series, and spes, in the plural, have only the nominative, accusative, and vocative; the other nouns of this declension have no plural.

2. FACIES, the face, Fem.

Singular.	Plural.	Thus decline.
N. faci-es,	N. faci-es,	Acies, an army.

Ac. faci-em,	Ac. faci-es,	Spes, -ēi, hope.
V. faci-es,	V. faci-es.
Ab. faci-ē.	Ab. —

Exc. The poets sometimes make the genitive, and more rarely the dative singular, in e; as, fīde for fidei, Ov.: sometimes in i; as, pernicii for perniciēi, NĒP.; and plēbi or plēbēi, LIV. Requies is both of the third and the fifth declension.

EXERCISES ON THE FIFTH DECLENSION.

1. Tell the gender, number, and case of the following nouns, and translate them:—Diēi, spēi, aciem, acie, faciēi, facies, diēbus, diērum, dies, faciem, effigiem, series, rērum, diēbus, diem, &c., ad libitum.

2. Translate the following English words into Latin, and tell the gender, &c.:—The image, of the face, the things, of the army, the hope, of the army, a series, of days, to a day from the days, with the army, to an image, &c.

PROMISCUOUS EXAMPLES ON ALL THE DECLENSIONS.

Tell the gender, declension, case, and number, of the following nouns, in the order here mentioned, and give the translation, thus, Pennā, a noun feminine, of the first declension, in the ablative singular, "with a pen" *:

Via, puēri, genēro, ventis, puerōrum, sermo, sedīle, sedili, sedilium, sedilibus, fructuum, fructūs, sellæ, tūbam, regno,

* The following are the words used in these exercises; the declension is indicated by the genitive, according to No. 55.

Ala, -æ, a wing.	Iter, itinēris, a way.	Sedile, -is, a seat.
Bellum, -i, war.	Mānus, -ūs, a hand.	Sella, -æ, a seat.

Dies, -ei, a day.	Pārens, -tis, a parent.	Tempus, -ōris, time.
Dominus, -i, a lord	Part, -tis, a part.	Tāba, -æ, a trumpet.
Facies; -ei, the face.	Puer, -i, a boy.	Urbs, -is, a city.
Fructus, -ūs, fruit,	—Regnum, -i, a kingdom.	Ventus, -i, the wind
Gēner, -i, a son-in-law	—Res, rei, a thing.	Vin, -æ, a way.
Hōnor, -is, honor.	Rāpes, -is, a rock.	Vulpen, -is, a fox templi, dies, rerum, capite, capitum, itineribus, partis, parentibus, rupe, urbis, vulpem, vulpibus, parente, sedilia, die, colorem, militis, militibus, sermones, honore, manus, manus, manibus, faciem, ala, tubam, mensuram, bellum, dominorum, templum, puerorum, bella, bello, &c.

Translate the following into Latin, and state the gender, declension, case, and number, always following the same order; thus, "Of boys," puerorum, a noun, masculine, of the first declension, in the genitive plural :

From the way, to a speech, with a part, of a seat, of seats, to the wind, a kingdom, to a boy, of boys, with lords, foxes, of tables, to parents, with seats, of soldiers, from the head, heads, to a part, with a trumpet, in a time, of war, the time, of color, in a journey, to a seat, of a rock, to sons-in-law with fruit, of the face, with a seat, to tables, of rocks, &c.

§ 18. IRREGULAR NOUNS.

95. Irregular Nouns are divided into Variable, Defective, and Redundant.

I. VARIABLE NOUNS.

96.—Nouns are variable either in Gender, or Declension, or in both. Nouns varying in gender are called, Heterogeneous. Those which vary in declension are called, Heteroclites.

Heterogeneous Nouns.

1. Masculine in the singular, and neuter in the plural; as,

Avernus, a hill in Campania.

Dindymus, a hill in Phrygia.

Iamarus, a hill in Thrace.

Mænalus, a hill in Arcadia.

Pangæus, a promontory in Thrace.

Tenarus, a promontory in Laconia.

Tartarus, hell.

Taygetus, a hill in Laconia.

2. Masculine in the singular, masculine and neuter in the plural; as, jocus, a jest, plural joci and joca; locus, a place, plural loci and loca.

3. Feminine in the singular, neuter in the plural; as, carbāsus, a sail, plural carbāsa; Pergāmus, the citadel of Troy, plural Pergāma.

4. Neuter in the singular, masculine in the plural; as, Argos, Argos, a city in Greece, plural Argi; Elysium, the Elysian fields, plural Elysii; cælum, heaven, plural cæli.

Note 1.—Argos, in the Singular, is used only in the Nom. and Acc.

5. Neuter in the singular, masculine and neuter in the plural; as, frënum, a bridle, plural frëni and frëna; rastrum, a rake, plural rastri and rastra.

6. Neuter in the singular, feminine in the plural; as, balneum, a bath, plural balneæ, seldom balneæ; epulum, a banquet, plural epulæ; delicium, a delight, plural deliciæ.

Heteroclitcs.

7. Vas, vâsis, neuter, a vessel, of the third declension, plural vâsa, vasôrûm, of the second. Jugërum, jugëri, neuter, an acre, of the second declension, plural jugëra, jugërum, of the third. Jugëris and jugëre from jûgus, are also found in the singular. (See Num. 11 below.)

8. Some Greek proper nouns are declined both by the second declension and the third, as follows:

Nom.	Gen.	Dat.	Acc.	Voc.	Abl.
Orpheus,	{ -eï.	-eo,	-eum, or -eon,	—	-eo;	2d Decl.
	{ -eos,	-eï,	-ea,	-eu,	—	8d Decl.
Œdïpus,	{ -i,	-o,	-um,	—	-o;	2d Decl.
	{ -ödïs,	-ödï,	-ödëm,	-u,	-öde;	3d Decl.
Achilleus,	-eï,	-eo,	—	-eu,	-eo;	2d Decl.
Achillea,	-lia, or -lëos,	-li,	-lem, or -len,	-les, or -le,	-le;	3d Decl.

DOUBLE NOUNS.

9. To this class may be referred a few double nouns, the parts of which are of different declensions. When the two nominatives combine, both parts are declined like a substantive and adjective; thus,

RESPUBLICA, a commonwealth, Fem.

	Singular.	Plural.
N.	reipublica,	reipublicæ,
G.	reipublicæ,	rerumpublicarum,
D.	reipublicæ,	rebuspublicis,
Ac.	republicam,	republicas,
V.	republica,	republicæ,
Ab.	republicâ.	rebuspublicis.

JUSJURANDUM, an oath, Neut.

Singular.	Plural.
N. jusjurandum,	N. jurajuranda,
G. jurisjurandi,	G. _____
D. jurijurando,	D. _____
Ac. jusjurandum,	Ac. jurajuranda,
V. jusjurandum,	V. jurajuranda.
Ab. jurejurando,	Ab. _____

When the one part is a nominative, and the other an oblique case, the part in the nominative only is declined; as,

MATERFAMILIAS, a mistress of a family, Fem.

Singular.

N. materfamilias,
G. matrisfamilias,
D. matrifamilias,
Ac. matrefamilias,
V. materfamilias,
Ab. matrefamilias.

Note 2.—Here, familias is an old form of the genitive, and is governed by mater. So, Pater-familias, filius-familias, filia-familias. Pl. matres-familiarum, &c. In this way, familia is used as well as familias.

II. DEFECTIVE NOUNS.

Nouns are defective either in Case or in Number.

Obs. 1. Indeclinable nouns, i. e., nouns which have the same form in all cases, though commonly ranked under this class, do not properly belong to it, because none of the cases are wanting. They are such as pondo, n., a pound or pounds; sēmis, n., the half; mille, a thousand; cæpe, an onion; opus, need or needful, used both as a substantive and an adjective. To these may be added any word used as a noun; as, velle, in the phrase, suum velle (for sua voluntas), his own inclination; —proper names adopted from a foreign language; as, Elizabet, Jerusălem, &c.

I. Nouns defective in particular cases.

Note.—A noun used in one case only, is called a monoptote; in two cases, a diptote; in three, a triptote; in four, a tetraptote; in five, a pentaptote. A diptote indeclinable word is called an aptote.

10. The following nouns are used only in one case .

Nominative. Inquies, f., want of rest.

Ablative.

Admonitio, m., an admonition.	Ingratiis, f., in spite of.
Ambāge, f., a winding.	Injussu, m., without order
Casse, m., a net.	Interdiu, by day.
Diu, by day.	Nātu, m., by birth.
Ergō, on account of.	Noctu, f., by night.
Fauca, f. the jaws.	Promptu, m., in readiness

Obs. 2. Many verbal nouns of the fourth declension are used only in the ablative singular; as, accītu, promptu, &c. Dicis, f., and nauci, n., are used only in the genitive singular; as dicis gratia, for form's sake; res nauci, a thing of no value. Inficias, f., and incīta, f., or incītas, have only the accusative plural; as, inficias ire, to deny; ad incītas reductus, reduced to extremities. Ambāges, casses and fauces, are regularly declined in the plural.

11. The following nouns are used only in two cases :

Nominative and Accusative.

Astu, n., the city of Athens.	Instar, n., likeness, bigness.
Inferiæ, -as, f., sacrifices to the dead.	Suppetiæ, -as, f., help.

Nominative and Ablative.

Astus, -u, m., cunning.	Vesper, -e, or -i, m., the evening.
-------------------------	-------------------------------------

Genitive and Ablative.

Compēdis, -e, f., a fetter	Spontis, -e, f., of one's own accord
Impētis, -e, m., force.	Verbēris, -e, n., a stripe.
Jugēris, -e, n., an acre.	Repetundārum, -is, f., extortion.

Obs. 3. Compēdes, jugēra and verbēra are regularly declined in the plural. Astus is found in the nominative and accusative plural.

12. The following nouns are used only in three cases

Nominative, Accusative and Vocative.

Cacoēthes, n., a bad custom.	Nēfas, n., impiety.
(Ala. other Greek nouns in -es.)	Nihil; and Nil, a, nothing.
Cēte, n., whales.	Tempe, n., the vale of Tempe
Dīca, -am, f., a process; pl. -as.

Nominative, Accusative and Ablative.

Epos, n., a heroic poem.	Mēlos, n., a song; pl. -e.
Fas, n., divine law.	Māne, -e, -e, n., the morning.
Grātes, f., thanks.	Tābes, f., consumption.
Lues, f., a plague.	Vepres, or -is m., a briar

Nom., Gen. and Abl. Tābum, n., putrid gore.

Nom., Gen. and Acc. Munia, -ōrum, n., offices.

Opis, f., genitive, help, (from ops.) has ōpem in the accusative, and ōpe in the ablative singular, with the plural complete, ōpes, ōpum, &c., wealth; and prēci, f., dative, a prayer, (from prex.) has prēcem and prēce, with the plural entire, prēces, prēcum, &c. Femīnis, n., genitive, the thigh, (from femen.) has femīni and femīne, in the dative and ablative singular, and femīna in the nominative, accusative and vocative plural.

Obs. 4. Vēpres has the plural entire; and tābes and gratibus, the nominative and the ablative plural of tābes and grātes, are also found.

The following nouns want the genitive, dative, and ablative plural :

Mel, n., honey.

Rus, n., the country

Hiems, f., winter.

Mētus, m., fear.

Thus, n., frankincense.

(For nouns of the Fifth Declension, see 94.)

13. The following nouns want the nominative and vocative, and are therefore used only in four cases :

Ditiōnis, f., power.

Sordis, f., filth.

Pecūdis, f., a beast.

Vīcis, f., a change.

To these may be added daps, f., a dish; frux, f., corn; and nex, f., slaughter, which are seldom used in the nominative. The plural of frux is entire; daps wants the genitive; and nex seems to have the nominative, accusative, and vocative only.

Chaos, n., a confused mass, wants the genitive and dative singular, and is not used in the plural.

Obs. 5. Pecūdis and sordis have the plural entire; vīcis is defective in the genitive; ditiōnis has no plural.

14. Some nouns are defective in one case.

The following want the genitive plural :

Fæx, f., dregs.

Ros, m., dew.

Lābes, f., a stain.

Sobōles, f., offspring.

Lux, f., light.

Sol, m., the sun.

Os, n., the mouth.

salias, f., a glut of any thing, and sālum, n., the sea, want the genitive singular and the plural entirely. Situs, m., a situation, mustiness, wants the genitive, and perhaps the dative singular, and probably the genitive, dative, and ablative plural. Nemo, c., nobody, wants the vocative singular, and has no plural.

II Nouns defective in number.

15. Some nouns, from the nature of the things which they express, cannot be used in the plural. Such are the names of virtues and vices; of arts, herbs, metals, liquors, different kinds of corn, abstract nouns, &c.; as, justitia, justice; luxus, luxury; musica, music; apium, parsley; aurum, gold; lac, milk; trifidum, wheat; magnitudo, greatness; senectus, old age; macies, leanness, &c. But some of the nouns included in these classes are occasionally found in the plural.

16. The following masculine nouns, for the most part, want the plural:

Aër, æris, the air.	Pënus, -i, or -ûs, all manner of provisions.
Æther, æris, the sky.	Pontus, -i, the sea.
Fïmus, -i, dung.	Pulvis, -ëris, dust.
Hespërus, -i, the evening star.	Sanguis, -inis, blood.
Jïmus, -i, mud.	Söpor, -öris, sleep.
Meridies, -iëi, mid-day.	Veternus, -i, a lethargy.
Mundus, -i, a woman's ornaments.
Muscus, -i, moss.

Note 8.—Aër, pulvis, and söpor are found in the plural.

17. The following feminine nouns, for the most part, want the plural:

Argilla, -æ, potter's earth.	Sälus, -ütis, safety.
Fämes, -is, hunger.	Sitis, -is, thirst.
Hünuus, -i, the ground.	Supellex, -ctilis, household furniture.
Indöles, -is, a disposition.	Venia, -æ, pardon.
Plebs, -is, the common people.	Vespëra, -æ, the evening.
Pübes, -is, the youth.

The following are sometimes found in the plural:

Billis, -is, bile.	Pituïta, -æ, phlegm.
Cholëra, -æ, cholera.	Pix, -cis, pitch.
Cütis, -is, the skin.	Pröles, -is, offspring.
Fäma, -æ, fame.	Quies, -ëtis, rest.
Gloria, -æ, glory.	Soböles, -is, offspring.
Läbes, -is, a stain.	Tellus, -üris, the earth.
Pax, -cis, peace.

18. The following neuter nouns, for the most part, want the plural :

Lardum, -i, bacon.	Viscum, -i, the mistletoe.
Lëthum, -i, death.	Vulgus, i, the rabble.

Obs. 6. Ebur, lardum, lütum, and pus, are found in the plural ; and peläge is found, in some cases, as the plural of pelägus ; sal, as a neuter noun, is not used in the plural.

19. Many nouns want the singular ; such as the names of feasts, books, games, and many cities and places ; as,

Apollinäres, -ium, games in honor of Apollo .	Olympia, -örum, the Olympic games
Bacchanalia, -ium, and -örum, the feasts of Bacchus .	Syracüsæ, -ärum, Syracuse .
Bucolica, -örum, a book of pastorals.	Hierosolyma, -örum, Jerusalem .
	Thermopylæ, -ärum, the straits of Thermopylæ .

20. The following masculine nouns are scarcely used in the singular :

Antes, the front rows of vines.	Infëri, the gods below.
Cancelli, lattices, or windows made with cross-bars.	Lemüres, -um, ghosts, hobgoblins.
Cäni, gray hairs.	Libëri, children.

	Postëri, posterity.
	Procëres, -um, the nobles.
	Pugilläres, -ium, writing tables.
	Supëri, the gods above.

Obs 7. Libëri and procëres are also found in the singular (procërem). Some of the others, as infëri, majöres, &c.. are properly adjectives, and agree with the substantives which are implied in their signification.

21. The following feminine nouns want the singular :

Clitellæ, a pannier.	Kalendæ, Nōnæ, Idus, Parietīnæ, ruinous walls.
Cūnæ, a cradle.	-uum, names which the Phalēræ, trappings.

§ 19. THE ADJECTIVE.

97.—An ADJECTIVE is a word used to qualify a substantive; as, vir BONUS, a GOOD man; DECEM nāves, TEN ships.

A noun is qualified by an adjective when the object named is thereby described, limited, or distinguished from other things of the same name.

1. The accidents of the adjective are gender, number, and case, and, of most adjectives, also comparison.

2. Adjectives, in Latin, indicate the gender, number, and case, by the termination; as, bōn-us, bōn-a, bōn-um. (98.)

3. Participles have the form and declension of adjectives, while, in time and signification, they belong to the verb.

4. Some adjectives denote each gender by a different termination in the nominative, and consequently have three terminations. Some have one form common to the masculine and feminine, and are adjectives of two terminations; and some are adjectives of one termination, which is common to all genders.

5. Adjectives are either of the first and second declensions, or of the third-only.

6. Adjectives of three terminations (except thirteen), are of the first and second declensions; but those of one or two terminations, are of the third.

Exc. Thirteen adjectives in er, of three terminations, are of the third declension. (See 99-5.)

§ 20. ADJECTIVES OF THE FIRST AND SECOND DECLENSIONS.

98. — Adjectives of the first and second declensions have the masculine always in us or er; the feminine always in a, and the neuter always in um; as, masculine bōnus, feminine bōna, neuter bōnum, good.

The masculine in us and er, is declined like domīnus, and gener; the feminine in a, like penna; and the neuter in um, like regnum: thus,

1. BONUS, BONA, BONUM, good.

Singular.			Plural.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N. bōn-us,	a,	um,	N. bōn-i,	æ,	a,
G. bōn-i,	æ,	i,	G. bon-ōrum,	ārum,	ōrum.
D. bōn-o,	æ,	o,	D. bōn-is,	is,	is,
Ac. bōn-um,	am,	um,	Ac. bōn-os,	as,	a,
V. bōn-e,	a,	um,	V. bōn-i,	æ,	a,
Ab. bōn-o,	â,	o.	Ab. bōn-is,	is,	is.

In the same manner decline :

Altus , high.	Cavus , hollow.	Lætus , joyful.
Amplus , large.	Doctus , learned.	Plēnus , full.
Blandus , flattering.	Dūrus , hard.	Privatus , private.
Cārus , dear.	Fīdus , faithful.	Rectus , right.

Also all participles, numerals, and pronouns, in us; as, amā-tus, amātūrus, amandus,—prīmus, secundus, &c.,—meus, tuus, vūus.

Note <sup>1</sup> —Mūs has mī in the vocative masculine, seldom meus.

2. TENER, TENERA, TENERUM, tender.

Singular.			Plural.
Mas.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N. tēn-or,	a,	um,	N. tenēr-i,	æ,	a,
G. tener-i,	æ,	i,	G. tener-ōrum,	ārum,	ōrum,
D. tener-o,	æ,	o,	D. tenēr-is,	is,	is,
Ac. tener-um,	am,	um,	Ac. tenēr-os,	as,	a,
V. tēner,	a,	um,	V. tenēr-i,	æ,	a,
Ab. tenēr-o,	â,	o.	Ab. tenēr-is,	is,	is.

In the same manner decline

Asper , rough	Miser, wretched.	Exter, foreign.
Liber , free.	Prosper, prosperous.	Satur, full.

Also compounds derived from gêro and fêro; as, laniger, bearing wool, epifer, bringing help.

But most adjectives in er lose the e in all the genders (§60); as.

3. ATER, ATRA, ATRUM, black.

Singular.			Plural.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N. âter,	atr-a,	atr-um,	N. atr-i,	atr-æ,	atr-a,
G. atr-i,	atr-æ,	atr-i,	G. atr-orum, atr-ârum, atr-örum,
D. atr-o,	atr-æ,	atr-o,	D. atr-is,	atr-is,	atr-iä,
Ac. atr-um,	atr-am,	atr-um,	Ac. atr-os,	atr-as,	atr-a,
V. âter,	atr-a,	atr-um,	V. atr-i,	atr-æ,	atr-a,
Ab. atr-o,	atr-â,	atr-o.	Ab. atr-is,	atr-is,	atr-is.

In like manner decline :

Æger , sick.	Mæcer, lean.	Sæcer, sacred.
Cræber , frequent.	Pulcher, fair.	Sinister, left.

Dexter, right, has dextra, dextrou; or dextera, dextërum.

4. The following adjectives have the genitive singular in ius, and the dative in i; namely,

Alius , another of many.	Solus, alone.	Uterlibet, which of the two you please.
Alter , the other of two.	Totus, whole.	Uterque, both.
Alteruter , the one or other.	Ullus, any.	Utervis, which of the two you please.
Neuter , neither.	Unus, one.
Nullus , none.	Uter, whether.

In the other cases, they are like bönus, tëner, or äter; as.

TÖTUS, TÖTA, TÖTUM, whole.

Singular.			Plural.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N. töt-us,	a,	um,	N. töt-i,	æ,	a,
G. tot-i- is ,	ius,	ius,	G. tot-orum,	ârum,	örum,
D. töt-i,	i,	i.	D. töt-is,	is,	is,
Ac. töt-um,	am,		Ac. töt-os,	as,	a,
V. töt-e	a,		V. töt-i,	æ,	a,
Ab. töt-o,	â,	o.	Ab. töt-is,	is,	is.

Note 2.—Alius has aliud in the neuter; and in the genitive alius, contracted for aliius; dative, alii. The genitive in ius, in poetry, has the i either long or short; in prose, always long. Uter, neuter, alter, alius, ullus, and nullus, instead of ius in the genitive, and i in the dative, occasionally, in the early writers, have the regular genitive i, æ, i, and dative o, æ, o.

§ 21. ADJECTIVES OF THE THIRD DECLENSION

99.—RULE 1. Adjectives of the third declension, have e or i, in the ablative singular; but if the neuter is in e, the ablative has i only.

RULE 2. The genitive plural ends in ium, and the neuter of the nominative, accusative, and vocative, in ia.

Exc. Except comparatives, which have um and a.

I. Adjectives of one termination.

1. FELIX, happy.

Singular.			Plural.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N. fēlix,	fēlix,	fēlix,	N. felic-es,	es,	ia,

	Flural.
Masc.	Fem.		Neut.
N. prudent-es,	prudent-es,		prudent-ia,
G. prudent-ium,	prudent-ium,		prudent-ium,
D. prudent-ibus,	prudent-ibus,		prudent-ibus,
Ac. prudent-es,	prudent-es,		prudent-ia,
V. prudent-es,	prudent-es,		prudent-ia,
Ab. prudent-ibus,	prudent-ibus,		prudent-ibus.

In like manner decline :

Clēmens, -tis, gentle.      Ingens, great.      Rēcens, fresh.

Also all participles in ns ; as, āmans, dōcens, lēgens, audiens, &c.

Note.—Participles have e oftener than i in the ablative singular, and in the ablative absolute, they have e only.

II. Adjectives of two terminations.

3. MĪTIS, MĪTE, meek.

Singular.			Plural.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N. mīt-is,	is,	e,	N. mīt-es,	es,	ia,
G. mīt-is,	is,	is,	G. mīt-ium,	ium,	ium,
D. mīt-i,	i,	i,	D. mīt-ibus,	ibus,	ibus,
Ac. mīt-em,	em,	e,	Ac. mīt-es,	es,	ia,
V. mīt-is,	is,	e,	V. mīt-es,	es,	ia,
Ab. mīt-i,	i,	i,	Ab. mīt-ibus,	ibus,	ibus.

In the same manner decline :

Agĭlis, active.      Debĭlis, weak.      Tālis, such.
 Brēvis, short.      Incolūmis, safe.      Utĭlis, useful.

4. Comparative Degree,—MITIOR, MITIUS, more meek.

Singular.			Plural.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N. mitior,	mitior,	mitius,	N. mitiōr-es,	es,	a,
G. mitiōr-is,	is,	is,	G. mitiōr-um,	um,	um,
D. mitiōr-i,	i,	i,	D. mitiōr-ibus,	ibus,	ibus,
Ac. mitiōr-em,	em,	mitius,	Ac. mitiōr-es,	es,	a,
V. mitior,	mitior,	mitius,	V. mitiōr-es,	es,	a,
Ab. mitiōr-e or i,	e or i,	e or i.	Ab. mitiōr-ibus,	ibus,	ibus.

In like manner decline :

Altior, higher.      Felicior, happier.      Melior, better.
 Brevior, shorter      Fortior, braver.      Mollior, softer.
 Durior, harder.      Mājor, greater.      Pējor, worse.

Exc. Plus, more, has only the neuter gender in the singular, and is thus declined :

Singular.		Plural.
Neut.		Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N. plus,		N. plūr-es,	es,	a, (ia,)
G. plūr-is,		G. plur-ium,	ium,	ium,
D. ———		D. plur-ibus,	ibus,	ibus,
Ac. plus,		Ac. plūr-es,	es,	a, (ia,)
V. ———		V. ———	———	———
Ab. plūr-e, or i.		Ab. plur-ibus,	ibus,	ibus.

Note.—The neuter plural in ia is hardly ever used. The compound, con-plūres, has no singular.

III. Adjectives of three terminations.

5. ACER or ACRIS, ACRE, sharp.

Singular.			Plural.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N. ācer, or ācr-is.	is,	e,	N. ācr-es,	es,	ia,
G. ācr-is	is,	is,	G. acr-ium,	ium,	ium,
D. ācr-i,	i,	i,	D. acr-ibus,	ibus,	ibus,
Ac. ācr-em,	em,	e,	Ac. ācr-es,	es,	ia,
V. ācer, or ācr-is,	is,	e,	V. ācr-es,	es,	ia,
Ab. ācr-i,	i,	i.	Ab. acr-ibus,	ibus,	ibus,

Besides ācer, the following twelve are declined in this way :

Alācer, cheerful.	Equester, equestrian.	Salūber, wholesome.
Campester, flat, level.	Paluster, marshy.	Silvester, woody.
Celēber, famous.	Pedester, on foot.	Terrester, terrestrial.
Cēler, swift.	Pūter, putrid.	Volūcer, swift.

100.—Exceptions in the Ablative Singular and Genitive Plural.

Exc. 1. The following adjectives have e in the ablative singular, and um in the genitive plural; viz :

Cælebs, unmarried.	Pauper, poor.	Sospes, safe.
Compos, master of.	Juvēnis, young.	Impūbes, beardless.
Hospes, strange.	Pūbis, marriageable.	Superstes, surviving.
Impos, unable.	Sēnex, old.	Vētus, old.

The compounds of cōlor, corpor, cuspis, and pes, have likewise e and um.

Note.—Colebs, ompos, impos, and superstes, have sometimes i in the ablative. Vetus has commonly vetēri in the ablative, but always vetēra and vetērum in the plural.

Exc. 2. The following adjectives have e or i in the ablative singular, and um in the genitive plural; viz:

Ales , winged.	Degēner , degenerate.	Particeps , sharing.
Anceps , double.	Dispar , unequal.	Præceps , headlong
Artifex , artificial.	Dives , rich.	Princeps , chief.
Cicū , tame.	Impar , unequal.	Supplex , suppliant.
Compar , equal.	Inops , poor.	Vigil , watchful.

Note.—Memor, mindful; immemor, unmindful; par, equal; uber, fertile; volucer, swift, have i only in the ablative singular, and um in the genitive plural; except par, which has ium.

Locuples, rich; sons, guilty, and insons, innocent, have um, as well as ium, in the genitive plural.

101.—§ 22. IRREGULAR ADJECTIVES.

Irregular adjectives are Defective or Redundant.

I. DEFECTIVE ADJECTIVES.

1. The adjectives frūgi, temperate; sat or sātis, sufficient; semis, half; and the plurals quot, how many? tot, so many; aliquot, some; quotquot, and quotcunque, how many soever; totidem, just so many, are indeclinable. Nēquam, worthless, is also indeclinable, but used in both numbers.

2. Exspes, hopeless; and pōtis, neuter pōte, sometimes pōtis, able, are used only in the nominative. They are of all genders, and pōtis is also found joined with plural nouns.

Tantundem, as much, has tantidem in the genitive, and tantundem, m. and n., in the nominative and accusative singular.

Necesse, or necessum, necessary; and volūpe, pleasant, are used only in the nominative and accusative singular.

3. Mactus, -e, and plural -i, a common word of encouragement, brave! gallant! is used only in the nominative and vocative singular, and nominative plural.

Plus, more, in the singular, is neuter only; wants the dative, and probably the vocative; has e only in the ablative, and a, seldom ia, in the nominative, accusative, and vocative plural neuter.

Primōris, genitive, first, wants the nominative and vocative singular, and the nominative, accusative, and vocative plural neuter; likewise semīnēcis, half dead, which is not used in the neuter, and has semīnēcum in the genitive plural.

Pauci, few; and plerīque, the most part, are seldom used in the singular.

4. The following classes of words want the vocative; viz: Partitives; as, quīdam, alius: Relatives; as, quālis, quantus: Negatives; as, nullus, neuter: Interrogatives; as, quōtus? ūter?

Except alīquis, quicumque, quilibet, and quisque. (See 131.)

5. The following adjectives of one termination, in the subjoined list, are scarcely used in the nominative, accusative, or vocative plural of the neuter gender; viz:

Adjectives in ER: as, pauper, pūber, cēler, degēner, ūber.

Adjectives in FEX: as, artīfex, carnīfex.

Adjectives in OR: as, mēmōr, concolor, bicorpor.

Adjectives in ES: as, āles, dīves, locuples, sospes, superstes, dēsēs, rēsēs, hēbes, tēres, præpes.

Adjectives in OS: as, compos, impos, exos.

Also pūbis, impūbis, supplex, cōmis, īnops, vīgil, sons, insons, intercus, rēdux, and perhaps some others.

Cæter, or cætērus, the rest, is scarcely used in the nominative singular masculine.

Victrix, victorious, and ultrix, revengeful, are feminine only in the singular, but feminine and neuter, in the plural; victrices, victricia.

II. REDUNDANT ADJECTIVES.

6. Some adjectives compounded of clīvus, frēnum, bacillum, arma, jūgum, litmus, somnus, and anīmus, have two forms of declension; one in us, of the first and second declensions; and another in is, of the third; as, acclīvus, -a, -um, and acclīvis, -e, steep; imbecillus, and imbecillis, weak; semisomnus, and semisomnis, half-sleeping; exanīmus, and exanīmis, dead. Also, hilāris, and hilārus, merry.

Obs. Some of these compounds do not admit of this variation; as, magnanīmus, flexanīmus, effrēnus, levisomnus, not magnanīmis, &c. On the contrary, pusillanīmis, injūgis, illīmis, insomnis, exsomnis, are used, and not pusillanīmus, &c. Semiaīmis, inermis, sublīmis, acclīvis, declīvis, proclīvis, are more common than semianīmus, &c. Inanīmis, and bijūgis, are scarcely used.

§ 23. EXERCISES ON ADJECTIVES.

1. Adjectives and Substantives to be declined together.

Parva cāsa, a small cottage.	Alta arbor, a high tree.

§ 24. NUMERAL ADJECTIVES.

102.—Numeral adjectives are those which signify number. In Latin, they are divided into four classes; viz:

1. Cardinal, which express number simply, or how many, as, one, two, three, four, &c.

2. Ordinal, denoting which one of a number; as, first, second, third, fourth, &c.

3. Distributive, denoting how many to each; as, ūni, two by two, or two to each.

4. Multiplicative, denoting how many fold.

I. CARDINAL NUMBERS.

Quinquaginta millia, or Quinquagies mille, }	IOOO, or L̄.	fifty-thousand
Centum millia, or Centies mille, }	CCCIOOO, or C̄.	a hundred thousand

104.—OBSERVATIONS.

1. Eighteen and nineteen are more properly expressed by duodeviginti, and undeviginti; from which Ordinals, Distributives and Adverbs are likewise formed. The same form is also used in the corresponding numbers of each of the other decades; as, duodetriginta, twenty-eight; undetriginta, twenty-nine, &c.

2. The Cardinal numbers, except ūnus and mille, want the singular.

3. Unus, as a numeral, is not used in the plural, except when joined with a substantive that wants the singular; as, ūna mœnia, one wall; or when several particulars are considered as one whole; as, ūna vestimenta, one suit of clothes. Unus is declined like tōtus (98-4).

DUO, two, and TRES, three, are thus declined :

Plural.			Plural.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N. duo,	duæ,	duo,	N. tres,	tres,	tria,
G. duōrum,	duārum,	duōrum,	G. trium,	trium,	trium,
D. duōbus,	duābus,	duōbus,	D. trībus,	trībus,	trībus,
Ac. duos, -o,	duas,	duo,	Ac. tres.	tres,	tria,
V. duo,	duæ,	duo,	V. tres,	tres,	tria,
Ab. duōbus,	duābus,	duōbus,	Ab. trībus,	trībus,	trībus,

Ambo, both, is declined like duo.

4. All the cardinal numbers, from quatuor to centum inclusive, are indeclinable; and from centum to mille, they are declined like the plural of bōnus (98-1).

5. Mille, when placed before a genitive plural, is a substantive indeclinable in the singular; in the plural, it is declined like the plural of sedīle (83-8); thus, millia, millium, millibus, &c. When it has a substantive in any other case than the genitive plural joined to it, it is a plural adjective indeclinable; as, mille homīnes, a thousand men; bis mille hominibus, with two thousand men.

ROMAN METHOD OF NOTATION BY LETTERS.

6. The capital letters used by the Romans to denote numbers, were C, I, L, V, X, which are therefore called Numeral Letters. I, denotes one; V, five; X, ten; L, fifty, and C, a hundred. By the various combinations of these letters, all numbers were expressed as follows :

The repetition of a letter repeats its value; thus, II signifies two; III, three; XX, twenty; XXX, thirty; CC, two hundred; CCC, three hundred, &c. V and L are never repeated.

When a letter of less value is placed before another of greater value, the value of the less is taken from the greater. When placed after it, the value of the less is added to the greater; thus,

IV. Four,	V. Five,	VI. Six.
IX. Nine,	X. Ten,	XI. Eleven.
XL. Forty,	L. Fifty,	LX. Sixty.
XC. Ninety	C. A hundred.	CX. A hundred and ten.

A thousand was marked CIO, which was afterwards expressed by M, the initial of mille. Five hundred is marked IO, afterwards changed into D.

The annexing of O to IO makes its value ten times greater; thus, IOO denotes five thousand; IOOO, fifty thousand.

In like manner, a C prefixed, together with another O annexed to the numerals CIO, always increases the value tenfold; thus, CIO, a thousand; CCIOO, ten thousand; CCCIOOO, a hundred thousand. Any higher number than this, according to Pliny, was expressed by repetition; thus, CCCIOOO, CCCIOOO, two hundred thousand.

Thousands are sometimes expressed by a line drawn over the numeral letters; thus,  $\overline{\text{III}}$  denotes three thousand;  $\overline{\text{X}}$ , ten thousand, &c.

II. ORDINAL NUMBERS.

105.—The Ordinal Numerals are formed from the cardinal; they all end in us, and are declined like bōnus (98-1); as, primus, first; secundus, second; &c. (See the following table.)

III. DISTRIBUTIVE NUMBERS.

106.—Distributive numerals distribute an equal number to each individual of several objects, or an equal number at different times. They answer the question, How many to each? or, How many each time? as, bīni, two each, or two at a time, two by two. They are all plural, and declined like the plural of bōnus (98-1); but usually have ūm instead of ōrum in the genitive; as, singūli, æ, a; &c.

The following table contains the ordinal and distributive numbers, and the corresponding numeral adverbs:

Ordinal.	Distributive.	Numeral Adverbs.
1. Primus, first,	Singūli, one by one,	Semel, once.
2. Secundus, second,	Bīni, two by two,	Bis, twice.
3. Tertius, third,	Terni, or trīni, &amp;c.,	Ter, thrice.
4. Quartus, &amp;c.,	Quaterni,	Quāter, four times
5. Quintus,	Quini,	Quinquies, &amp;c.
6. Sextus,	Sēni,	Sexies.
7. Septimus	Septēni,	Septies.
8. Octāvus,	Octōni,	Octies.
9. Nōnus,	Novēni,	Novies.
10. Decimus,	Dēni,	Decies.

Ordinal.	Distributive.	Numeral Adverbs
11. Undecimus,	Undēni,	Undecies.
12. Duodecimus,	Duodēni,	Duodecies.
13. Tertius decimus,	Terni dēni,	Terdecies.
14. Quartus decimus,	Quarterni dēni,	Quaterdecies.
15. Quintus decimus,	Quīni dēni,	Quindecies.
16. Sextus decimus,	Sēni dēni,	Sedecies.
17. Septimus decimus,	Septēni dēni,	Decies et septies.
18. Octāvus decimus,	Octōni dēni,	Decies et octies.
19. Nōnus decimus,	Novēni dēni,	Decies et nonies.
20. Vicesimus, or vigesimus, }	Vicēni,	Vicies.
21. Vicesimus primus.	Vicēni singūli,	Semel et vicies,
22. Vicesimus secundus.	Vicēni bīni,	Bis et vicies. &c.
30. Tricesimus, or trigesimus, }	Tricēni,	Tricies.
40. Quadragēsimus,	Quadragēni,	Quadragies.
50. Quinquagesimus,	Quinquagēni,	Quinquagies.
60. Sexagesimus,	Sexagēni,	Sexagies.
70. Septuagesimus,	Septagēni,	Septuagies.
80. Octogesimus,	Octogēni,	Octogies.
90. Nonagesimus,	Nonagēni,	Nonagies.
100. Centesimus,	Centēni,	Centies.
200. Ducentesimus,	Ducēni,	Ducenties.
300. Trecentesimus,	Trecēni, or trecentēni,	Trecenties.
400. Quadringentesimus, }	Quadringēni, or quadringentēni, }	Quadringenties.
500. Quingentesimus,	Quingēni.	Quingenties.
600. Sexcentesimus,	Sexcēni, or Sexcentēni,	Sexcenties.
700. Septingentesimus,	Septingēni,	Septingenties.
800. Octingentesimus,	Octingēni,	Octingenties.
900. Nongentesimus,	Nongēni,	Nongenties.
1000. Millesimus, }	Millēni, or singūla millia, }	Millies.
2000. Bis millesimus, &c., }	Bis millēni, or bīna millia, &c., }	Bis milles, &c.

7<sup>6</sup> Instead of primus, prior is used, if only two are spoken of. Alter is often used for secundus.

Twenty-first, thirty-first, &c., are often expressed by ūnus et vicesimus, ūnus et tricesimus, &c.; and twenty-second, &c., by duo, or alter et vicesimus, in which duo is indeclinable. In the other compound numbers. the larger precedes without et, or the smaller with et; as, vicesimus quartus, or quartus et vicesimus.

8. Distributives are used in a variety of ways, as 1st. in multiplication, with adverbial numerals; as, bis bina, twice two, i. e. four; bis senos, twice six, i. e. twelve. 2d. Instead of cardinals, with words which have no singular; as, bini codicilli, two writings; or with nouns in the plural having the meaning of a singular, but still different from the meaning of the same word in the singular number (§ 18, 24, or 96-24); as, bina castra, binae ades, binae literae; two camps, two houses, two epistles. Duo, duae, with these nouns, would mean two forts or castles; two temples; two letters of the alphabet. 3d. Bini is used for duo, to denote things which exist in pairs; as, bini boves, a pair of oxen; binae aures, two ears. In ordinary language, distributives occur only in the plural—among the poets sometimes in the singular in the sense of multiplicatives; as, centena arbore (= centum arboribus), literally “with a tree a hundred fold.” See also No. 11.

9. The singular of some distributives, is sometimes used in the sense of a multiplicative; as, binus, two-fold, &c.

IV. MULTIPLICATIVE NUMBERS.

107.—Multiplicatives denote how many fold; they all end in ex, and are declined like felix (99-1). They are as follows:

Simplex, single .	Quadruplex, fourfold .
Duplex, double .	Quintuplex, fivefold .
Triplex, threefold .	Centuplex, a hundredfold, &amp;c. &amp;c.

10. To these classes may be added:

- 1st. Proportionals, which denote how many times one thing is greater than another; as, duplus, twice as great.
- 2d. Temporals, which denote time; as, biemus, two years old; biennis, of two years' continuance.
- 3d. Those which denote how many parts a thing contains, as, binarius, of two parts.
- 4th Interrogatives; as, quot, how many? quotus, of what number? quoteni, how many each? quoties, how many times? which have for their correlatives, tot, totidem, &c.

11. The learner should carefully notice the distinction between the cardinal and distributive numerals in their ordinary use. Thus, for example, Duo consules VIGINTI naves habebant, means, "the two consuls together had twenty ships," i. e. twenty in all, or ten each; but Duo consules VICENAS naves habebant, means, "the two consuls had twenty ships each," or forty in all.

§ 25. COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.

108.—Adjectives have three degrees of comparison, the Positive, Comparative, and Superlative.

109.—The POSITIVE expresses a quality simply; as, bonus, good. The COMPARATIVE expresses a quality in a higher or lower degree in one object than in another, or than in several taken together. The SUPERLATIVE expresses a quality in the highest or lowest degree in one object compared with several taken separately; as, gold is heavier than silver; it is the most precious of the metals. Hence, those adjectives only can be compared whose signification admits the distinction of more and less.

110.—The Superlative is often used to express a very high or a very low degree of a quality, without implying comparison; as, vir doctissimus, "a very learned man;" hortus amoenissimus, "a most delightful garden." Thus used, it is called the superlative of eminence, and is commonly translated with the article a, or an;—when comparison is implied, the article the must be used.

111.—The Comparative is always of the third declension, and declined like mitior (99-4). The Superlative is always of the first and second, and declined like bonus (98-1).

112.—RULES OF COMPARISON.

1. The comparative is formed from the root of the positive (56), by adding ior for the mas culine and feminine, and us for the neuter; as,

Positive.	Root.	Comparative.
		Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Dūrus, hard ,	dūr-	dur-ior,	dur-ior,	dur-ius, harder .
Brēvis, short ,	brēv-	brev-ior,	brev-ior,	brev-ius, shorter .
Audax, bold ,	audāc-	audac-ior,	audac-ior,	audac-ius, bolder .

2. The superlative is formed from the root of the positive, by adding issimus, a, um; as,

Positive.	Root.	Superlative.
Dūrus, hard ,	dūr-	dur-issimus,	a, um, hardest .
Brēvis, short ,	brēv-	brev-issimus,	a, um, shortest .
Audax, bold ,	audāc-	audac-issimus,	a, um, boldest .

Exc. If the positive end in er, the superlative is formed by adding rīmus, a, um, to the nominative masculine, i. e. to the root uncontracted: as,

Positive.	Superlative.
Pulcher, fair ,	pulcher-rīmus, a, um.
Pauper, poor ,	pauper-rīmus, a, um.

Hence these adjectives are compared thus :

Dūrus,	durior,	durissimus;	Hard,	harder,	hardest.
Brēvis,	brevior,	brevissimus;	Short,	shorter	shortest
Audax,	audacior,	audacissimus;	Bold,	bolder,	boldest.
Pulcher,	pulchrior,	pulcherrīmus;	Fair,	fairer,	fairest.
Pauper,	pauperior,	pauperrīmus;	Poor,	poorer	poorest!

In the same manner compare :

Altus, high.	Firmus, strong.	Liber, free.
Cāpax, capacious.	Fortis, brave. *	Piger, slow.
Crēber, frequent.	Grāvis, heavy.	Prūdēns, prudent.
Dignus, worthy.	Intēger, entire.	Sapiēns, wise
Doctus, learned.	Lentus, slow.	Vehēmēns, vehement
Fēlix, happy.	Lēvis, tight.	Vēlox, swift.

113. — § 26. IRREGULAR AND DEFECTIVE COMPARISONS.

Pos.	Comp.	Sup.
Bonus,	melior,	optimus;	Good,	better,	best.
Magnus,	major,	maximus;	Great,	greater,	greatest.
Malus,	pejor,	pessimus;	Bad,	worse,	worst.
Multus,	plus, n.	plurimus;	Much,	more,	most.
Parvus,	minor,	minimus;	Little,	less,	least.

Obs. Plus has only the neuter in the singular. In the plural, it is regular, and is declined as 99-4. Exc.

1. The following adjectives form the superlative in imus :

Facilis, easy ,	facilior,	facillimus.
Gracilis, lean ,	gracilior,	gracillimus.
Humilis, low ,	humilior,	humillimus.
Imbecillis, weak ,	imbecillior,	imbecillimus.
Similis, like ,	similior,	simillimus.

2. The following adjectives have the comparative regular, but the superlative irregular.

Ofter, near ,	citerior,	citimus.
Dexter, right ,	dexterior,	dextimus.
Exter, outward ,	exterior,	extrēmus, or extimus.
Infērus, low ,	inferior,	infimus, or imus.
Intērus, inward ,	interior,	intimus.
Matūrus, ripe ,	maturior,	maturrimus, or maturissimus.
Postērus, behind ,	posterior,	postrēmus, or postumus.
Sinister, left ,	sinisterior,	sinistimus.
Supērus, high ,	superior,	suprēmus, or summus.
Vētus, old .	veterior,	veterrimus.

Note.—Dives, rich, has commonly ditior, ditissimus, for its comparative and superlative; contracted for divitior and divitissimus.

3. Compounds in dicus, ficus, loquus, and volus, form the comparative in entior, and the superlative in entissimus.

Beneficus, beneficent ,	beneficentior,	beneficentissimus.
Benevolus, benevolent ,	benevolentior,	benevolentissimus.
Magniloquus, boasting ,	magniloquentior,	magniloquentissimus.
Maledicus, railing ,	maledicentior,	maledicentissimus.
Mirificus, wonderful ,	mirificentior,	mirificentissimus.

Note.—Mirificus has also mirificissimus in the superlative. The compounds of loquus are not found in the superlative.

4. The following adjectives want the positive :

Dete.ior, worse,	deterrius.	Propior, nearer,	proximus.
Ocior, swifter,	ocissimus.	Uterior, farther,	ultimus.
Prior, former,	primus.

5. The following adjectives want the comparative :

Inclŷtus, renowned,	inclŷtissimus.	Nupŕerus, late,	nuperrimus.
Invictus, invincible,	invictissimus.	Par, equal,	parissimus.
Meritus, deserving,	meritissimus.	Persuāsus, persuaded,	persuasissimus.
Nŕvus, new,	novissimus.	Sācer, sacred,	sacerrimus.

6. The following adjectives want the superlative :

Adolescens, young,	adolescentior.	Opimus, rich,	opimior.
Diurnus, lasting,	diurnior.	Prŕnus, bending down,	pronior.
Ingens, huge,	ingentior.	Sātur, full,	saturior.
Juvēnis, young,	junior.	Sēnex, old,	senior.

Note.—The superlative of juvēnis, or adolescens, is supplied by minimus nātū, the youngest; sēnex takes maximus nātū, the oldest.

7. Almost all adjectives in ilis (penult long), ālis, and bilis, want the superlative; as, civilis, civil, civilior; regālis, regal, regalior; flebilis, lamentable, febilior.

Note.—Some adjectives of these terminations have the superlative also; as æquālis, frugālis, hospitālis, liberālis, vocālis—affubilis, amabilis, habilis, ignobilis, mirabilis, mobilis, mutabilis, nobilis, stabilis.

Some adjectives of other terminations also want the superlative; as, arcānus, ior, secret; declivis, ior, bending downwards; longinquus, far off, ior; propinquus, near, ior; salutāris, healthful, salutarior.

Anterior, former, and sequior, worse, are found only in the comparative.

Nŕquam, worthless (indeclinable), has nequior, nequissimus.

8. Many adjectives have no degrees of comparison at all, because they denote invariable qualities. They are such as denote substance, origin, possession, or definite time; as, aureus, adamantinus;—Græcus, Romānus, peregrinus;—paternus, equinus;—æstivus, hibernus, vivus, &c.

9. Many adjectives which do not denote invariable qualities, are yet without comparative and superlative forms. They are—

1st. Adjectives ending in imus, inus, orus, and most adjectives in ivus; as, legitimus, matutinus, canorus, fugitivus: also adjectives in us after a vowel; as, dubius, idoneus, arduus, &c.; except adjectives in quus, in which, however, the first u does not form a syllable (8-2); and sometimes assiduus, egregius, pious, strenuus and vacuus, which are also regularly compared.

2d. Compound adjectives, one of whose component parts is a noun or a verb; as, versicolor pestifer, degener, magnanimus, consensus, foedifragus, &c., and such as have the derivative terminations icus, idus, ulus, alis, ilis, bundus; as, modicus, trepidus, gurrulus, mortalis, hostilis, furibundus, &c.

3d. Diminutives, which in themselves imply a sort of comparison; as, tenellus, somewhat tender; majusculus, somewhat big.

4th. Many adjectives which cannot be classed under distinct heads, as albus, white; almus, gracious; egēnus, needy; lacer, torn; mēmōr, mindful; mirus, wonderful; præcox, early ripe; sospes, safe; and many others noted in the dictionaries.

In most, or in all adjectives of these classes, and sometimes in others also, the comparative is made by prefixing magis, more; and the superlative by prefixing valde or maxime, most, to the positive; as, arduus, high; magis arduus, higher; valde, or maxime arduus, highest, or very high. Sallust has maxime tūtos.

10. Comparison is sometimes made by means of the prepositions præ, ante, præter, or supra, with the positive; as, Præ nobis beātus, happier than we, Cic.; Ante alias insignis, most distinguished, Liv. A high degree of quality without comparison is expressed by prefixing valde, imprimis, apprime, admōdum, &c., or by the preposition per or præ prefixed in composition.

11. The force of the comparative is increased by prefixing etiam, even, yet, and of both comparative and superlative, by prefixing longe or multo, far, much; as, multo melior, much better; longe nobilissimus, far the noblest. Quam with the superlative renders it emphatic; as, quam doctissimus, extremely learned; quam celerrime, as speedily as possible. T

§ 27. DERIVATION OF ADJECTIVES.

114.—Derivative adjectives are formed chiefly from nouns, from other adjectives, and from verbs.

1. Those derived from nouns are called Denominatives. They are such as aureus, golden; capitālis, capital, relating to the life; puerilis, boyish; animōsus, full of courage, &c., from aurum, caput, puer, animus, &c.

2. Those derived from adjectives are also called denomina tives; they are chiefly diminutives; as, dulcicūlus, sweetish, duriuscūlus, somewhat hard, &c., from dulcis, dūrus, &c.

3. Adjectives derived from verbs are called Verbal adjectives. They commonly end in bundus, idus, bilis, ilis, itius, and ax; as errabundus, given to wandering; rapidus, rapid; credibilis, credible; flexibilis, easy to be bent; fictitius, feigned; cāpar, capacious, &c., from erro, rapio, crēdo, flecto, finjo, cāpio, &c.

4. Participles divested of the idea of time, and expressing merely a quality, become adjectives, and are of comparison; as, āmans, fond of; amantior, amantissimus; doctus, learned; doctior, doctissimus. These are called Participial adjectives.

Adjectives are also derived from adverbs and prepositions; as, hodiernus, contrarius, &c., from hodie, contra, &c.

§ 28. PRONOUNS.

115.—A PRONOUN is a word used instead of a noun.

116.—In Latin, there are eighteen simple pronouns, namely, Ego, tu, sui; ille, ipse, iste, hic, is, quis, qui; meus, tuus, suus, noster, vester; nostras, vestras and cujas.

Of these, Ego, tu, sui, are substantive or personal pronouns, the rest are adjectives.

SUBSTANTIVE OR PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

117.—The Substantive or Personal pronouns have the same accidents as nouns (34); in construction, they take the gender and number of the nouns for which they stand, and are thus declined:

Ego, I, First Person, Masc. or Fem.		N. nos,

Ab. se, with, &c.,	himself, &amp;c.,	Ab. se, with, &c.,	themselves.

118.—OBSERVATIONS.

1. In all speech, three things are implied, the person speaking, the person spoken to, and the person or thing spoken of. These are called, in Grammar, the First, Second, and Third persons; and the pronouns representing them are called Personal Pronouns.

2. The pronoun of the first person is Ego, I; of the second, Tu, thou or you; of the third, Sui, of himself, of herself, of itself. Also the adjective pronouns, ipse, ille, iste, is, and hic, without a substantive, in the gender of the nouns represented by them, and with the general meaning of he, she, it, may be called Substantive or Personal Pronouns.

Note 1.—The plural of the first person is often used for the singular, i. e. nos for ego; so also noster for meus; and the verb, without the pronoun expressed, is sometimes used in the first person plural for the first person singular; but the plural of the second person is not used for the singular, as in English.

Note 2.—"Thou" and "thee," are used as the rendering of tu and its cases in the singular, only in solemn addresses, or to mark special emphasis or contempt. In ordinary discourse, it is translated by "you." See Eng. Gram., 114. 4. An., and Pr. Gr., 244 and 245.

3. The personal pronouns of the third person, though all translated by one term in English,* differ from one another in meaning and use, as follows: †

1st. Sui, the substantive pronoun of the third person, is without the nominative, as the third person (in English he, she, it, they) is not usually expressed in Latin in the nominative, but is implied in the third person of the verb. But if it is to be expressed, a demonstrative pronoun, commonly ille, is used. The other cases of the English pronouns of the third person, not reflexive, are expressed by the oblique cases of is, ea, id, the nominative of which belongs to the demonstrative pronouns. Sui, sibi, se, are used in a reflexive sense referring, as a substitute, to the main subject of the sentence in which they occur; as, Laudat se, "He praises himself," Cato se occidit, "Cato killed himself." Cato dixit se esse Cæsare feliciorum, "Cato said that he (Cato) was happier than Cæsar." Puer putat hoc sibi nocere, "The boy thinks that this hurts him" (the boy). Proculus Julius dixisse fertur a se visum esse Romulum, "Proculus Julius is reported to have said that Romulus was seen by him" (Julius). But when the pronoun refers to another word, and there is a transition from the principal to a subordinate subject, the oblique cases of is, ea, id, must be used. Thus, if the words that he, him, by him, in the last three propositions, referred to any other than Cato, or the boy, or Proculus Julius, they would have to be made, in the first sentence, by eum; in the second, by ei; and in the third, by ab eo.

Exc. Sui, and its corresponding possessive pronoun suus, are sometimes used when the reference is not to the primary, but to a subordinate subject; but this is never done by good writers when it would cause ambiguity. The most common cases of this usage are:—1st. When the primary subject is in the first or second person, to which, of course, sui, being the third cannot refer; as, illum occidi suo gladio, "I slew him with his own sword." 2d. After quisque or unusquisque; as, suum cuique tribuant, "they give every man his own." 3d. When the word to which suus refers stands immediately or almost immediately before it; as, hunc civis sui ex urbe eje-

* The want of different pronouns of the third person, in English, is frequently the cause of ambiguity, which never can occur in Latin or Greek. Thus, if we say: "Lysias promised his father never to abandon his friends;" it is impossible to tell, from this sentence, whose friends are meant,—whether those of Lysias or of his father. If the former, "his," in Latin, would be suos; if the latter, "ejus," and if the latter in a special manner, "ipsius."

† The main subject is generally the nominative to the leading verb, as in the above examples. Sometimes, however, the construction requires it to be in a different case; as, Ab Antonio admonitus sum ut mane sibi adessem; here the leading subject is Antonio in the Ablative, and to this, of course, sibi refers; so in the following: Est libido homini suo animo obsæqui, the principal subject is homini.

cērunt, "his fellow citizens banished him from the city." 4th. When the noun with which suis agrees is coupled with another by cum; as, cum cum suis rēbus dimiserunt, "they dismissed him with his effects."

2a. Ipse is applicable to any of the three persons, and, in the nominative case, is used when either the primary or the subordinate subject is again introduced with emphasis in a subsequent or subordinate clause, or in the next sentence; as, Lycurgus nihil ulla lēge in alios sanxit, cujus non ipse primus in se documenta dāret, "Lycurgus bound nothing by any law upon others, of which he did not first give an instance in himself;" here ipse refers to Lycurgus, the primary subject. In the following sentence, ipsi refers to the subordinate, and ipse to the principal subject: Cæsar ad præfectos—mittit qui nunciarent ne hostes prælio lacesserent; et si ipsi (præfecti) lacesserentur, sustinerent quoad ipse (Cæsar) accessisset. Cæsar, B. G. IV, 11.

In the oblique cases, ipse hardly ever refers to the main subject (this being the proper office of sui), but to the subordinate, when that is to be expressed with emphasis, and distinguished from the primary or any other subject previously expressed; as, Senātus dixit non sua negligentia sed ipsius (Pompeji) subito adventu factum, "The senate said that it happened not through any negligence on their part, but owing to his (Pompey's) sudden arrival." Instances, however, occur in which the oblique cases refer to the principal subject; but these are rare, and such as to create no ambiguity.

Note.—When joined with the personal pronouns ego, tu, &c., used in a reflexive sense, and in an oblique case, ipse commonly agrees with the subject of the verb in the nominative or accusative, but is always to be translated with the oblique case, to which it adds the force of the word "self," or simply emphasis: thus (the subject being in the nominative), se ipse (not ipsum) interfecit, "he slew himself;" mihī ipse (not ipsi) favco, "I favor myself;" virtus est per se ipsa (not ipsam) laudabilis,—with the accusative as a subject; crēdis mihī ipsum (not ipsi) favere. Yet, when, for the word in the oblique case, special emphasis is required by antithesis or other cause, ipse is put in the case of the pronoun; as, Alios amas, te ipsum (not ipse odiisti, "Others thou lovest, THYSELF thou hatest." 282.

8d. Is, hic, iste, ille, without a substantive, in all genders, are used as pronouns of the third person, and are all rendered he, she, or it, as the word which they represent may require. In the nominative, they are applicable equally to the main or to the subordinate subject; but in the oblique cases, with few exceptions, they refer to the subordinate only. It must be carefully noticed, however, that though often rendered by the same term in English, still each word has its own specific meaning and use, as follows:

Is simply refers to some person or thing mentioned before, and is less emphatic and distinctive than any of the other terms. Before qui (is qui he who), it refers to the person or thing described in the relative clause, and in this construction, is often understood.

Hic is used in reference to objects which are nearest to the speaker. Hence, as nothing is nearer to the speaker than himself, hic hōmo, "this man," is often the same as ego. Hic is therefore called the demonstrative pronoun of the first person.

Iste refers to the person spoken to, or to the things pertaining to, or connected with him. Thus, iste liber, means "that book of thine," or "thy book." Hence it is called the demonstrative of the second person. It is often used, like the English thou, as an expression of worthlessness or contempt. An. and Pr. Gr., 244.

Ille, in opposition to hic, refers to objects at a distance from the speaker, or to that about which he is speaking to another, and is called the demonstrative of the third person. As substantive pronouns, then, these three words may be thus distinguished:

Hic means "he," namely, this man near me, or just spoken of.

Iste means "he," namely, that man by you, or of whom you spoke.

Ille means "he," namely, that man at a distance, or formerly spoken of.

In the use of these pronouns, however, these distinctions are not always strictly observed; ille and is especially, are often used indiscriminately, and in the same sentence, apparently for the sake of euphony or variety of expression.

4. The personal pronouns are rendered emphatic by annexing the definite ipse, or the syllable met or te, separately or variously combined; as, ēgo ipse, egōmet, tūte, tutēmet, nosmet-ipsi, &c. Se, the accusative and ablative of sui, is often doubled, as sēse. When the preposition cum is used with the ablative of the personal pronouns, it is commonly annexed; as, mēcum, tēcum, sēcum, nobiscum, &c.

5. In the accusative plural with inter, or after a transitive active verb, with invicem, se is used as a reciprocal pronoun; as, Fratres inter se similes, "Brothers like each other." Brūtus et Aruns se invicem occiderunt, "Brutus and Aruns slew each other." †

§ 29. ADJECTIVE PRONOUNS.

119.—ADJECTIVE PRONOUNS are words used sometimes like adjectives, to qualify a substantive and sometimes like pronouns, to stand instead of nouns. They are declined with three genders, to agree with substantives in these accidents.

120.—Adjective Pronouns may be divided into Possessive, Demonstrative, Definite, Relative, Interrogative, Indefinite, and Patrial.

§ 30. I. POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS.

121.—The POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS denote possession, and are derived from the substantive pronouns as follows:

Meus,	a,	um,	my, my own,	from	me.
Tuus,	a,	um,	thy, thy own,	"	tu.
Suus,	a,	um,	his, her, its, his own, &amp;c.,	"	sui.
Noster,	tra,	trum,	our, our own,	"	nos.
Vester,	tra,	trum,	your, your own,	"	vos.

Obs. 1. In signification, possessive pronouns correspond to the genitive of their primitives, for which they may be considered as a substitute; thus, frāter mei, "the brother of me," and meus frāter, "my brother," mean the same thing, and hence they are often connected with, and may be rendered as, the genitive; as, suo populique Romāni beneficio, "by the kindness of himself, and of the Roman people." Cæs. Hence, also, the genitive of the adjective is often put with the possessive pronoun in any case qualifying the substantive implied in it; as, tuo ipsius amico, "with thine own friend." Mea unius opēra, "through the agency of me alone." Vestra ipsorum causa hoc feci, &c.;—and hence, also, a substantive in apposition with the possessive pronoun is put in the genitive; as, tuum hominis simplicis pectus vidimus.

Obs. 2. In form, possessive pronouns are regular adjective of the first and the second declension. Meus, tuus, and suis, are declined like bōnus, 98-1; except that meus has mi, seldom meus, in the vocative singular masculine. Noster and vester are declined like ater, 98-3.

Obs. 3. Suus, like its primitive sui (118-3, Exc.), is used in a reflexive sense, referring to the main subject of the sentence, and must be rendered into English in the gender and number of that subject, without regard to the noun with which it stands; thus, suam rem familiarem perdidērunt, "they squandered their property;" here suam, though singular, to agree with rem, must be rendered "their," because it refers to the plural subject perdidērunt. Ille suos fratres dilexit, "she loved her brothers."

When the reference is not to the main subject, but to some other person or thing, the possessive is expressed in Latin, not by suus, but by the genitives of ille, ipse, iste, is, and hic; thus, ejus rem familiarem rapuerunt, "they plundered his property." Suos amicos amat, means "he loves his own friends;" ejus amicos amat, is "he loves his friends," meaning (not his own, but) the friends of some other person to whom ejus refers.

Obs. 4. The ablative singular of the possessive pronouns, especially suus and sua, frequently take the suffix pte, equivalent to the English word own; as, suapte mānu, "with his own hand;" and, in the same sense, all the cases of suus take the suffix met, usually followed by ipse; as, Hannibal, suamet ipse fraude captus, abiit, "Hannibal, being foiled by his own device, departed."

§ 31. II. DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

122.—DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS are such as point out with precision a person or thing already known.

They are hic, this; ille, iste, is, that. They are declined as follows:

1. HIC, HÆC, HOC, this; Plural, these.

Singular.			Plural.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc	Fem.	Neut.
N. hic,	hæc,	hoc,	N. hi,	hæc,	hæc,
G. hujus,	hujus,	hujus,	G. hōrum,	hārum,	hōrum,
D. huic,	huic,	huic,	D. his,	his,	his,
Ac. hunc,	hanc,	hoc,	Ac. hos,	has,	hæc,
V. hic,	hæc,	hoc,	V. hi,	hæc,	hæc,
Al hoc,	hæc,	hoc,	Ab. his,	his,	his.

Note.—Some suppose that the original form of this pronoun was hice, hæc, hœc, some cases of which still remain; that the present form was attained by dropping final e, and that this, and not hiece, hœcce, &c., is the proper emphatic form of the word. It is certain, however, that most writers and grammarians prefer the double e, as hiece, &c. See Obs. 3.

2. ILLE, ILLA, ILLUD, that; Plural, those.

Singular.			Plural.
Masc	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N. ille,	illa,	illud,	N. illi,	illæ,	illa,

V. ille,	illa,	illud,	V. illi,	illæ,	illa,
Ab. illo,	illā,	illo,	Ab. illis,	illis,	illis.

Note.—Virgil has olli, as a dative singular, and nominative plural; and Cicero, in an antique formula, has olla and ollos, from an ancient form ollus.

Iste, "that," is declined like ille.

3. IS, EA, ID, that; Plural, those.

Ab. eo,	eā,	eo,	Ab. iis or eis,	iis or eis,	iis or eis.

4. From is, and the syllable dem, is formed īdem eādēm, īdem, "the same," which is thus declined :

V. īdem,	eādēm,	eādēm,
Ab. eisdem, or iisdem, &c.

* See 98, Note 2.

123.—OBSERVATIONS.

1. When two persons or things are spoken of, ille refers to the former, and hic to the latter. This order, however, is sometimes reversed. When three are spoken of, ille refers to the first; iste, to the intermediate; and hic, to the last.

2. Hic means "this," referring to something near the speaker or just spoken of. Ille, "that," refers to something at a distance or before spoken of; sometimes to what is well known and celebrated, and therefore regarded as present; as, Medea illa, "the well known Medea;" Alexander ille, "the illustrious Alexander." Iste, "that," refers to something near, or belonging to, or some way connected with the person spoken to.

a. Is, "that," is less precise in its reference than the other demonstratives. It commonly refers simply to a person or thing as mentioned before.—Sometimes it points out that which is to be further described in a relative clause; as, ea legiōne quam sēcum habēbat, "with that legion which he had with him."—Sometimes after et, atque, que, and in a negative clause after nec, it is used to show that the noun referred to receives an additional predicate; as, in ūna dōmo, et ea quīdem angusta, "in one house, and that, too, a small one;" Adolescentes aliquot, nec in tenui lōco orti, "some young men, and these not of humble origin." The neuter (et id, idque) is used when the proposition itself receives an addition, and may be rendered "and that too," "especially," equivalent to the Greek καὶ ταῦτα.

b. Is (and sometimes hic and ille), before ut or qui, has the sense of tālis, "such;" as, nēque tu is es qui (or ut) quid sis nescias, "neither art thou such a one as not to know what thou art."

c. Idem, agreeing with the subject, but without a substantive, connects emphatically two predicates which belong to the same subject, and, when the predicates are similar, may be rendered "also," "and also;" as, Cicēro orātor ērat idemque philosophus, "Cicero was an orator and also a philosopher;" Vīros fortes eosdem bonos esse volūmus, "we wish brave men to be also good." When the predicates are opposite, idem is translated by "yet," "and yet;" as, hoc dicit, nēgat idem illud, "he affirms this, yet (or, and yet) he denies that."

3. Hic, and some cases of the other demonstratives, are rendered emphatic by adding ce; as, hicce, hujusce, huncce, &c. When ne interrogative is also added, ce is changed into ci; as, hiccine, hoscine, &c. 122. Note.

4. From ille and iste with hic, are formed the compounds illic and isthic or istic, used in some of the cases for ille and iste, but with greater emphasis. Those parts only are in use which end in c, as follows :

Istic is thus declined :

Singular.			Plural.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	N.	Neut.
N. istic ,	istæc ,	istoc, or istuc ,	} istæc .
Ac. istunc ,	istanc ,	istoc, or istuc ,
Ab. istoc ,	istac ,	istoc ,

Illic is declined in the same manner.

§ 32. III. THE DEFINITE PRONOUN.

124.—The Definite Pronoun ipse is used to give a closer or more definite signification of a person or thing; as, ad ipsam portam accessit, "he came up to the gate itself;" or "to the very gate." It is thus declined :

Singular.			Plural.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N. ipse ,	ipsă ,	ipsum ,	N. ipsi ,	ipsæ ,	ipsă ,
G. ipsius ,	ipsius ,	ipsius ,	G. ipsorum ,	ipsarum ,	ipsorum ,
D. ipsi ,	ipsi ,	ipsi ,	D. ipsis ,	ipsis ,	ipsis ,
Ac. ipsum ,	ipsam ,	ipsum ,	Ac. ipsos ,	ipsas ,	ipsă ,
V. _____	_____	_____	V. _____	_____	_____
Ab. ipso ,	ipsă ,	ipso ,	Ab. ipsis ,	ipsis ,	ipsis .

§ 33. IV. RELATIVE PRONOUN.

125.—A RELATIVE PRONOUN is one that relates to, and connects its clause with, a noun or pronoun before it, called the antecedent.

The simple relative qui is thus declined :

QUI, QUÆ, QUOD, who, which, that.

Singular.			Plural.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N. qui,	quæ,	quod,	N. qui,	quæ,	quæ,
G. cujus,	cujus,	cujus,	G. quōrum,	quārum,	quōrum,
D. cui,	cui,	cui,	D. queis, or	quībus, &c.,
Ac. quem,	quam,	quod,	Ac. quos,	quas,	quæ,
V. —	—	—	V. —	—	—
Ab. quō,	quā,	quō,	Ab. queis, or	quībus, &c.

Note.—Quis and queis are sometimes used in the dative and ablative, instead of quibus. Cui is commonly regarded as one long syllable, but is sometimes used as two short ones (cūi); so also the dative singular huic, or huic. 122-1.

(For the construction of the relative, see § 99.)

Obs. 1. Qui is sometimes used for the ablative singular in all genders, seldom for the plural. To all forms of the ablative, cum is frequently annexed; as, quōcum, quībuscum, &c.

Obs. 2. Quicumque, or quicumque, and quīvis, also used as relatives (293, Obs. 7), are declined like qui.

§ 34. V. INTERROGATIVE PRONOUN.

126.—The INTERROGATIVE PRONOUN is used in asking a question; as, Quis fēcit? “Who did it?”

The interrogatives are :

Quisnam?	} who? what?	Ecquis?	} is any one?
Quis?		Ecquisnam?
Qui?	} which? what?	Numquis?
Quīnam?		Cujus? whose?
		Cujas? of what country?

The simple interrogative quis is thus declined :

QUIS, QUÆ, QUOD, OR QUID? Who, which, what?

Singular.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N. quis or qui,	quæ,	quid or quod,
G. cujus,	cujus,	cujus,
D. cui,	cui,	cui,
Ac. quem,	quam,	quid or quod,
V. —	—	—
Ab. quō,	quā,	quō.

	Plural.
Masc.	Fem.		Neut.
N. qui,	quæ,		quæ,
G. quōrum,	quārum,		quōrum,
D. queis or quibus, &c.,
Ac. quos,	quas,		quæ,
V. ———	———		———
Ab. queis or quibus, &c.

(For the inflection of the compound interrogatives, see 181-1 and 2.,

127. OBSERVATIONS.

1. All interrogative pronouns used in a dependent clause, and without a question, are indefinites (128); as, nescio quis tu, "I know not who he is." In this sense, qui is often used for quis for the sake of euphony, when the following word begins with an s; as, qui sit apērit, "he shews who he is." So also such adjectives as quantus, quālis, &c.

2. The interrogative quis is commonly used as a substantive without a noun following it; qui, as an adjective before a noun. Quis means "what man?" or "Who?" and applies to both sexes;—qui means "which man," and has its feminine quæ. This distinction, however, is often disregarded, especially as mentioned in Obs. 1. But, in the neuter gender, quid is always used as a substantive, and governs its noun in the genitive; as, Quid facinōris commisit? "What crime has he committed?" Whereas, quod is always used as an adjective, and agrees with its noun; as, Quod facinus commisit?

Note.—Quid is often used elliptically thus: Quid? "why?" is for propter quid?—As an interrogative interjection at the beginning of a sentence, Quid? is for Quid ais? Quid censes? So also the expressions Quid vērō? Quid igitur? Quid enim? &c., are to be supplied. After Quid postea? Quid tum? supply sequitur. Quid quod may be supplied thus: Quid dicam de eo quod? "What shall I say about this, that, &c.?" With Quid multa? Quid plūra? &c., supply dicam, "Why should I say much?" &c.

3. Cujus, a, um? "whose?" used instead of the genitive of quis, is defective. The parts in use are as follows:

Singular.			Plural.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.
N. cujus,	cuja,	cujum,	N. cuji,	cujæ,
Ac. cujum,	cujam,	———	Ac. ——	cujas.
Ab. ——	cujā,	———

4. Cujas, "of what country," is declined like an adjective of one termination (99-1). Nom. cujas, gen. cujātis, &c.

§ 35. VI. INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

128.—The INDEFINITE PRONOUNS are such as denote persons or things indefinitely. Besides the interrogatives used indefinitely (127-1), they are

Alīquis, some one.  Siquis, if any one.  Nēquis, lest any, no one.  Quisque, each one, every one.  Quisquam, any one.	Quispīam, some one.  Unusquisque, each one.  Quīdam, a certain one.  Quilibet, } any one you please  Quivīs, }

§ 36. VII. PATRIAL PRONOUNS.

129.—The Patrial Pronouns are those which have reference to one's country. They are nostras, "of our country;" vestras, "of your country." They are both adjectives of one termination. Nom. nostras, gen. nostrātis, &c. (99-1.)

---

§ 37. COMPOUND PRONOUNS.

130.—The Compound Pronouns all belong to some of the classes enumerated above.

131.—In the compounds of qui and quis, qui is always the first part of the word compounded; quis is sometimes the first part, and sometimes the last.

1. The compounds of qui are quicumque, "whoever," "who-soever;" quīdam, "some;" quīlibet, quīvis, "any one," "whom you please." They are declined by adding the termination to the different cases and numbers of qui.

QUICUNQUE, whoever, whosoever, whatsoever.

Singular.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N. quicunque,	quæcunque,	quodcunque,
G. cujuscunque,	cujuscunque,	cujuscunque, &c.
Plural.
N. quicunque,	quæcunque,	quæcunque,
G. quorumcunque,	quarumcunque,	quorumcunque, &c.

So,

Quidam,	quædam,	quiddam, or quoddam.
Quilibet,	quælibet,	quidlibet, or quodlibet.
Quivis,	quævis,	quidvis, or quodvis.

Note.—Before dam, m is changed into n; as, quendam, quorundam, &c.

2. The compounds of quis, when quis is put first, are quisnam? “who?” quispiam, quisquam, “any one;” quisque, “every one;” and quisquis, “whoever, whosoever.”

QUISNAM, who, which, what?

Singular.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N. quisnam,	quænam,	quidnam, or quodnam,
G. cujusnam,	cujusnam,	cujusnam,
D. cuiñam,	cuiñam,	cuiñam,
Ac. quemnam,	quamnam,	quidnam, or quodnam.
V. ———	—————	—————
Ab. quõnam,	quãnam,	quõnam.
Plural.
N. quĩnam,	quænam,	quænam,
G. quorumnam,	quarumnam,	quorumnam,
D. quibusnam,	quibusnam,	quibusnam,
Ac. quosnam,	quasnam,	quænam,
V. ———	—————	—————
Ab. quibusnam,	quibusnam,	quibusnam.

So decline :

Quispiam,	quæpiam,	quidpiam, or quodpiam.
Quisquam,	quæquam,	quidquam, or quodquam.
Quisque,	quæque,	quidque, or quodque.
Quisquis,	—————	quidquid, or quicquid.

Obs. 1. Quisquam has quenquam in the accusative, without the feminine. The plural is scarcely used; quicque is also used for quidque. Quisquis, "whoever," has no feminine termination except in the ablative; and the neuter, only in the nominative and accusative. It is used as an indefinite adjective pronoun; and also instead of quīquī, not in use, as a double relative of the same meaning as quicumque. 131-1. The following are the parts in use :

	Singular.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N. quisquis,	—	quidquid, or quicquid,
Ac. quemquem,	—	quidquid, or quicquid,
Ab. quōquo,	quāqua,	quōquo.

The plural has the nominative masculine quīquī, and the dative quibusquibus. Quisquis is sometimes used for the feminine.

3. The compounds of quis, when quis is put last, have qua in the nominative singular feminine, and in the nominative and accusative plural neuter. These are :

Aliquis, some.	Numquis, whether any?
Ecquis, whether any?	Siquis, if any.
Nēquis, lest any.

The last three are often written separately; as, ne quis, num quis, si quis. These pronouns are thus declined :

	Singular.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N. aliquis,	aliquā,	aliquid, or aliquod,
G. alicujus,	alicujus,	alicujus,
D. alicui,	alicui,	alicui,
Ac. aliquem,	aliquam,	aliquid, or aliquod,
V. aliquis,	aliqua,	aliquid, or aliquod,
Ab. aliquō,	aliquā,	aliquō.
	Plural.
N. aliqui,	aliquæ,	aliqua,
G. aliquōrum,	aliquārum,	aliquōrum,
D. aliquibus,	aliquibus,	aliquibus,
Ac. aliquos,	aliquas,	aliqua,
V. aliqui,	aliquæ,	aliqua,
Ab. aliquibus,	aliquibus,	aliquibus.

Note.—Ecquis and siquis have sometimes quæ in the nominative singular feminine.

Obs. 2. Some of these are twice compounded; as, ecquisnam, ecquænam, ecquidnam, or ecquodnam, "who?" unusquisque, unaquæque, unumquidque, or unumquodque, "every one;" genitive uniuscujusque, &c. The former is scarcely declined beyond the nominative singular, and the latter wants the plural.

Obs. 3. All these compounds want the vocative, except quisque, aliquis, quilibet, and quicumque. They have seldom, if ever queis, but quibus in the dative and the ablative plural.

§ 38. THE VERB.

132.—A VERB is a word used to express the act, being, or state, of its subject.

Obs. 1. The use of the verb, in simple propositions, is to affirm. That of which it affirms, is called its subject, and, if a noun or pronoun, it is usually in the nominative case. But when the verb is in the infinitive, its subject is put in the accusative.

1. Verbs are of two kinds, Transitive, and Intransitive.

Note.—These two classes comprehend all the verbs in any language. According to this division, Transitive verbs include those only which denote transitive action; i. e. action passing over from, or done by, one person or thing to another; and Intransitive verbs, those which have nothing transitive in their meaning, but which represent their subject in a certain state or condition, and nothing more. For this purpose, not only are the terms Transitive and Intransitive more expressive and appropriate than Active and Neuter, but their use relieves the term "Active," to be employed solely as the name of the form called the Active Voice; and the term "Neuter," to be appropriated to the gender of nouns.

2. A TRANSITIVE verb expresses an act done by one person or thing to another. It has two forms, called the Active, and the Passive voice. 135

3. AN INTRANSITIVE verb expresses being, or a state of being, or action confined to the actor. It is commonly without the passive form.

Obs. 2. The verbs that express being simply, in Latin, are sum, fio, existo, signifying, in general, "to be," or "exist." The state of being expressed by intransitive verbs may be a state of rest, as dormio, "I sleep;" or of motion, as cado, "I fall;" or of action, as curro, "I run."

Obs. 3. The action expressed by an intransitive verb does not, like the action expressed by a transitive verb, pass over from the agent or actor to an object. It has no immediate relation to any thing beyond its subject, which it represents in a certain state or condition, and nothing more; and hence they may always be distinguished thus:—A transitive verb always requires an object to complete the sense; as, amo TE, "I love thee;"—the intransitive verb does not, but the sense is complete without such an object; as, sedeo, "I sit;" curro, "I run."

Obs. 4. Many verbs considered intransitive in Latin, are translated by verbs considered transitive in English; as, placeo, "I please;" obedio, "I obey;" credo, "I believe;" &c.

Obs. 5. Many verbs are used sometimes in a transitive, and sometimes in an intransitive sense. Such are fugio, inclino, timeo, &c.; as, fuge dextrum litus (tr.), "avoid the right hand shore;" tempus fugit (intr.), "time flies;" timeo Danaos (tr.), "I dread the Greeks;" timeo (intr.), "I am afraid."—In some, the transitive and intransitive are distinguished by a difference in form and conjugation; thus, jacio, jaceo; pendo, pendeo; albo, albeo; fugo, fugio; placo, placeo; sedo, sedeo; &c.

Obs. 6. Verbs usually intransitive assume a transitive sense, when a word of signification similar to that of the verb itself is introduced as its object; as, vivere vitam, "to live a life;" jurare jusjurandum, "to swear an oath."

Obs. 7. When we wish to direct the attention, not so much to any particular act of the subject of discourse, as to the employment or state of that subject, the object of the act—not being important—is omitted, and the transitive verb assumes the character of an intransitive; thus, in the sentence, puer legit, "the boy reads," nothing more is indicated than the present state or employment of puer, "the boy," and the verb has obviously an intransitive sense: still, an object is necessarily implied, as he who reads must read something. But when we say puer legit Hom̄erum, "the boy reads Homer," the attention is directed to a particular act, terminating on a certain object, "Hom̄erum," and the verb has its proper transitive sense.

§ 39. DIFFERENT KINDS OF VERBS.

133.—Though the division of verbs into Transitive and Intransitive comprehends all the verbs in any language, yet, from something peculiar in their form or signification, they are characterized by different names, expressive of this peculiarity. The most common of these are the following, viz: Regular, Irregular, Deponent, Common, Defective, Impersonal, Redundant, Frequentative, Inceptive, and Desiderative.

1. REGULAR VERBS are those in which the secondary parts are formed from the primary, according to certain rules. 184.

Note.—Under these are included Transitive, Intransitive, Deponent, and Common verbs belonging to the four conjugations.

2. IRREGULAR VERBS are those in which some of the secondary parts are not formed from the primary, according to rule. 221.

3. DEPONENT VERBS under a passive form have an active signification. 207-1.

4. COMMON VERBS under a passive form have an active or passive signification. 207-2.

5. DEFECTIVE VERBS are those in which some of the parts are wanting. 222.

6. IMPERSONAL VERBS are used only in the third person singular. 223.

7. REDUNDANT VERBS have more than one form of the same part. 225.

8. FREQUENTATIVE VERBS express repeated action. 227-1.

9. INCEPTIVE VERBS mark the beginning or continued increase of an action. 227-2.

10. DESIDERATIVE VERBS denote desire or intention of doing. 227-3. The three last are always derivatives. 226.

§ 40 INFLECTION OF VERBS.

134.—To the inflection of Verbs belong Voices, Moods, Tenses, Numbers, and Persons.

1. The VOICES, in Latin, are two, Active and Passive.

2. The MOODS are four, the Indicative, Subjunctive, Imperative, and Infinitive.

3. The TENSES are six, the Present, Imperfect, Perfect, Pluperfect, Future, and Future-Perfect.

4. The NUMBERS are two, Singular and Plural.

5. The PERSONS are three, First, Second, and Third.

6. Besides these, to the Verb belong, Participles, Gerunds, and Supines.

7. The CONJUGATION of a verb is the arrangement of its different moods, tenses, &c., according to a certain order. Of these, in Latin, there are four, called the First, Second, Third, and Fourth Conjugations. 184—1—3.

Obs. A few verbs in Latin are of more than one conjugation, and a few have some of their parts belonging to one conjugation, and others to another.

 § 41. VOICE.

135.—VOICE is a particular form of the verb which shows the relation of the subject, or thing spoken of, to the action expressed by the verb.

The transitive verb, in Latin, has two voices, called the Active and the Passive.

1 The ACTIVE VOICE represents the subject of the verb as acting on some object; as, āmo te, “I love thee.”

2. The PASSIVE VOICE represents the subject of the verb as acted upon; as, amātur, “he is loved”

136.—OBSERVATIONS.

1. In both voices, the act expressed by the verb is the same, but differently related to the subject of the verb. In the active voice, the subject is the actor; in the passive, it is acted upon, as in the above examples. Hence, the same idea may be expressed with equal propriety in either voice, by simply changing the object of the active voice into the subject of the passive: thus, by the active voice, Cæsar vicit Galliam, “Cæsar conquered Gaul;” by the passive, Gallia victa est a Cæsare, “Gaul was conquered by Cæsar.”

This property of the transitive verb, enables the speaker or writer not only to vary his form of expression at pleasure, but also, by means of the passive form, to direct the attention to the act and the object acted upon, when the actor either is unknown, or, it may be, unimportant or improper to be mentioned: thus, “America was discovered and inhabited before the days of Columbus.” So also the attention may be directed by means of the active voice to the act and the actor, without regard to the object. See 132, Obs. 7.

2. Intransitive verbs, from their nature, do not admit a distinction of voice. They are generally in the form of the active voice, but are frequently used in the third person singular, passive form, as impersonal verbs. 223-3. Deponent intransitives, however, have the form of the passive.

3. The passive voice, in Latin, is often used in a sense similar to the middle voice in Greek, to express actively what its subject does to, or for itself; as, dōnec pauci, qui prælio superfuerant, paludibus abderentur, “till the few who had survived the battle, concealed themselves in the marshes.” TAC. The following are examples of the same kind: Columba—FERRUR in arva volans. VIRG.—Nunc spicula vertunt infensi; facta pariter nunc pace FERUNTUR. Id.—E scopulo multâ vix arte REVULSUS—râtem Sergestus agēbat. Id.—Quis ignōrat, ii, qui mathematici vocantur, in quantâ obscuritâte rerum—VERSENTUR. CIC.—Cum igitur vehementius INVEHERETUR in causam princē pum consul Philippus. Id.—Cum omnes in omni genere scelèrum VOLUTENTUR. Id.

Circundat nequidquam humëris, et inutile ferrum
CINGITUR, ac densos FERTUR moritùrus in hostes. VIRG.

In all such constructions, the words “a se” may be understood after the verb.

§ 42. MOODS.

137.—Mood is the mode or manner of expressing the signification of the verb.

138.—The moods, in Latin, are four; namely, the Indicative, Subjunctive, Imperative, and Infinitive.

139.—I. The INDICATIVE MOOD asserts the action or state expressed by the verb, simply as a fact, and generally in an independent clause; as, scribo, “I write;” tempus fugit, “time flies.”

140.—Obs. 1. The indicative mood is sometimes used in dependent clauses with si, nisi, etsi, tametsi, etiamsi, to assert a fact as a condition or supposition; as, si quid melius habes, arcesse. Or with ut or quum, “when,” signifying time past; as, Tempus fuit quum homines vagabantur. Ut inquinavit ære tempus aureum. HOR.

141.—Obs. 2. The indicative followed by si non, ni, nisi, is sometimes used potentially, to express, not what did take place, but what would have taken place if something else had not happened; as, Tenus Ægyptum penetravit, nisi exercitus sequi recusasset, “He would have penetrated as far as Ægypt, if the army had not refused to follow him.” 624.

× 142.—II. The SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD represents the action or state expressed by the verb, not as a fact, but only as a conception formed by the mind. It is generally used in dependent clauses in various ways, as follows:

1st. It represents the action or state expressed by it as conditional or contingent.

Thus used, it corresponds to the English subjunctive, or to the indicative used subjunctively (An. and Pr. Gr., 386); as, si redeat, videbimus, "if he return, we shall see him."

2d. It represents an action or state, as what may, can, will; might, could, would, or should, take place in certain circumstances.

Thus used, it corresponds to the English potential (An. and Pr. Gr., 380); as, edimus ut vivamus, non vivimus ut edamus, "we eat that we may live—not live that we may eat;" signum datum crederes, "you would suppose that the signal had been given."

3d. It is used to express a fact in a dependent proposition, connected with the leading verb by an adverb, conjunction, relative, or indefinite term.

Thus used, it is commonly rendered by the indicative in English; as, nescit qui sim, "he knows not who I am."

143.—Obs. 3. The subjunctive mood is sometimes used in an independent proposition, in order to soften the assertion made; as, Nemo istud tibi concēdat, "nobody probably would concede that to you." (625).

144.—Obs. 4. The subjunctive is used also in independent propositions, to express a wish, desire, or command; as, utinam sapēres, "O that thou wert wise;" quod bene vertat, "may it turn out well;" sic eat, "thus let her go;" facias, "do it." See Obs. 5.

145.—Obs. 5. When this mood is used in independent propositions, in a potential, optative, or imperative sense, still it ought to be regarded as strictly subjunctive, having the primary or leading clause evidently understood, on which the meaning of the mood in each case depends. Thus "I may write," licet mihi ut, or est ut scribam; "I shall, or will write," futūrum est, or erit ut scribam; "I should write," oportet, æquum est ut, or est cur scriberem; "I should have written," oportēbat, &c., ut scripsissem; "O that they were wise," peropto utinam sapērent; "may it turn out well," præcor quod bene vertat; "do it," fac ut facias; "let me do it," sine ut faciam, &c.

Hence, it follows that the particular English auxiliary by which this mood should be translated, depends, not upon the form of the Latin verb, seeing scribèrem for example, means equally, "I might, could, would, or should write," but upon the ellipsis to be supplied. What this is, must ways be gathered from the connection and sense of the passage.

146.—Obs. 6. From these observations, it will be manifest that the Latin subjunctive is in much more extensive use than either the subjunctive and potential mood in English, or the subjunctive and optative mood in Greek. Indeed, the proper use and management of this mood, constitute one of the greatest difficulties in this language. For the construction of this mood, see § 139.

147.—Obs. 7. When the ideas of liberty, power, will, obligation, duty, &c., involved in the auxiliaries may, can, will, shall, might, could, would, should, &c., are to be expressed in an absolute, independent, and emphatic manner, the subjunctive mood is not used, but separate verbs expressing these ideas in the indicative mood. These are such as licet, vòlo, nòlo, possum, debeo, &c., thus :

We will go,	Ire volūmus.
They will not go,	Ire nòlunt.
I may come,	Mihi venīre licet.
I can read,	Legere possum.
	Legere debes.
Thou shouldst read,	Tibi legendum est.
	Te legere oportet.
It might have been done,	} Fieri potuit.
( absolutely and sometimes contingently. )

148.—Obs. 8. The future indicative is frequently used in dependent and hypothetical clauses, and consequently in a subjunctive sense; as, si jubèbis faciam, "if you order me, I will do it;" equivalent to si jubeas, &c.

149.—III. The IMPERATIVE MOOD commands, exhorts, entreats, or permits; as, scribe, "write thou;" ito, "let him go."

150.—Obs. 9. The present subjunctive is very often used instead of the imperative, especially in forbidding, after ne, nēmo, nullus, &c.; as, valeas, “farewell;” ne noceas puēro, “hurt not the boy.” Obs. 4 and 5. Besides this, the future and future perfect indicative, and the perfect subjunctive, are also used imperatively. See 167–1, 169–3, and 173–4.

151.—Obs. 10. The imperative mood has two forms in the second person, both singular and plural, distinguished in their meaning as present and future. The first, or shorter form commands to do presently; as, scribe, “write now;”—the second, or longer form commands to do afterwards, or when something else shall have been done; as, scribito, “write hereafter.” This distinction, however, is not always observed.

152.—IV. The INFINITIVE MOOD expresses the meaning of the verb in a general manner, without any distinction of person or number; as, scribere, “to write;” scripsisse, “to have written;” scribi, “to be written.”

§ 43. TENSES.

153.—TENSES are certain forms of the verb which serve to point out the distinctions of time.

154.—Time is naturally divided into the Present, Past, and Future; and an action may be represented either as incomplete and continuing, or as completed at the time spoken of. This gives rise to six tenses, which are expressed in Latin by distinct forms of the verb; thus,

PRESENT.	{ Action continuing; as, scribo , “I write, I am writing.”	Present.
	{ Action completed; as, scripsi , “I have written.”	Perfect.
PAST.	{ Action continuing; as, scribēbam , “I was writing.”	Imperfect.
	{ Action completed; as, scripsēram , “I had written.”	Pluperfect.
FUTURE.	{ Action continuing; as, scribam , “I shall or will write.”	Future.
	{ Action completed; as, scripsēro , “I shall have written.”	Fut.-Perf.

155.—In order better to express the time and the state of the action by one designation, these tenses, arranged in this order, might properly be denominated the Present, the Present-perfect; the Past, the Past-perfect; the Future, and the Future-perfect. An. and Pr. Gr. 400.

§ 44. TENSES OF THE INDICATIVE MOOD.

156.—The tenses of the indicative mood, in Latin, are six: the Present, the Imperfect, the Perfect, the Pluperfect, the Future, and the Future-perfect.

157.—I. The PRESENT tense expresses what is going on at the present time; as, scribo, “I write,” or “I am writing;” dōmus ædificātur, “the house is building.”

This tense is rendered with all the variety of the present tense in English; as, I write, do write, am writing;—interrogatively, do I write? am I writing? Like the English present also it is used:

1. To express what is habitual or always true; as, qui cito dat, bis dat, “HE who gives promptly, gives twice.”

2. To express a general custom, if still existing; as, apud Parthos signum datur tympano, “among the Parthians, the signal is given by the drum.”

3. In historical narration, it is used with great effect for the past tense, to represent a past event as if it were present before us; thus (LIVY), dicto parvère, desiliunt ex equis, provolant in primum, &c., “they obeyed, they dismount, they fly forward to the front,” &c.

4. To denote an action which has continued for some time, and which still exists; as, tot annos bella gero, “for so many years I have waged, and am still waging war.” Also after dum it is used to express a past event which had some continuance; as, dum in Sicilia sum, nulla statua dejecta est, “so long as I was in Sicily,” &c.

5. With certain adverbs of time, it is sometimes used, as in English, to denote what is yet future; as, quam mox navigo Ephesum, “as soon as I sail, or shall sail, for Ephesus.”

6. In the passive voice, the present tense represents its subject as at present acted upon, or as the object of an action present and continuing, and is usually rendered into English by the verb to be, and the perfect participle, as amātur, “he is loved,” and this rendering will always be correct when the English verb in the present passive expresses continuance; as, he his loved, feared, hated, respected, &c.

158.—Obs. But there are many verbs in which this rendering of the present would be incorrect, as it does not express the present receiving of an action, but rather the present and continuing effect of an act, which act itself is now past. In all such cases, it is more properly the rendering of the perfect than of the present, and it is often so used. Thus, dōmus ædificāta est; opus peractum est; epistōla scripta est, may be properly rendered, ‘the house is built;’ ‘the work is finished;’ ‘the letter is written;’ because in the English, as well as in Latin, the building of the house, the finishing of the work, and the writing of the letter, are represented as acts now past, and which are present only in their effects. The proper rendering of such verbs in the present passive, in English, is by the verb to be, and the present participle in ing in the passive sense; thus, dōmus ædificātur, ‘the house is building;’ opus peragitur, ‘the work is finishing;’ epistōla scribitur, ‘the letter is writing.’ When this mode of expression is not authorized, and when the other would be improper, it will be necessary to express the precise idea of the present by some other form of expression. See An. and Pr. Eng. Gr., App. V, I and II, p. 235.—Principles of Eng. Gr., App. XIX, p. 211.

159.—II. The IMPERFECT tense represents an action or event as passing and still unfinished at a certain time past, expressed or implied; as, dōmum ædificābat, ‘he was (then) building a house;’ ibam forte viā sacrā, ‘I was accidentally (viz. at the time spoken of,) going along the via sacrā.’

160.—This tense, strictly speaking, corresponds to the past-progressive in English (An. and Pr. Eng. Gr., 474-2.—Principles of Eng. Gr., 199-2). It is often rendered, however, by the past tense in its ordinary form, and should always be so, when the verb expresses a continued act or state; as, amābat, ‘he loved;’ timēbat, ‘he feared.’ It is used in a variety of ways, as follows:

1. It is used to denote what was usual or customary at some past time; as, scribēbam, ‘I was accustomed to write.’

2. It is used to denote an action which had existed for some time, and was still existing at a certain past time; as, tot an- nos bella gerēbam, for so many years I had been, and then still was waging war."

3. Sometimes it denotes an action desired, intended, or attempted, but not accomplished; as, Porsēna eum terrēbat, "Porsena attempted to frighten him."

4. It is sometimes used hypothetically, instead of the imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive; as, anceps certamen erat, nisi equites supervenissent, "the battle would have been doubtful, unless, &c." 141, and 624-5.

5. The same observations made in 158, in reference to the present passive, are applicable in all their extent to the imperfect; as, amabatur, "he was loved;" dōmus ædificabatur, "the house was building," not "was built," nor "was being built;" opus peragebatur, "the work was finishing," &c.

161.—III. The PERFECT tense is used in two different senses, Definite and Indefinite.

162.—The Perfect-definite represents an action or event as completed at the present time, or in a period of time of which the present forms a part; as, scripsi, "I have written;" hujus ad memoriam nostram monumenta mansērunt duo, "two monuments of him have remained to our time."

163.—The Perfect-indefinite represents an action or event simply as past; as, scripsi, "I wrote."

164.—The first, or Perfect-definite, corresponds to the English present perfect (An. and Pr. Gr., 407);—the second, or Perfect-indefinite, corresponds to the English past tense (An. and Pr. Gr., 415). In this sense, it is commonly used in historical narratives like the Greek aorist; thus, Cæsar exercitum finibus Italiæ admōvit, Rubicon transiit, Rōmam occupāvit. "Cæsar marched his army," &c.

1. This tense, used indefinitely, is sometimes coupled with the imperfect, the former denoting a transitory, the latter a continued action; thus, Conticuēre omnes, intentique ora TENEBANT, "All were silent, and with eager attention kept their eyes fixed upon him." VIRG.

2 It is sometimes used like the present, to express what is true at any time; thus, Felix qui potuit rerum cognoscere causas, "Happy that man who was able to investigate the causes of things!" VIRG.

3. It is sometimes used in the sense of the pluperfect, viz. in narratives after such conjunctions as postquam, ubi, ubi primum, ut (when), ut primum, quum, quum primum, simul ut, simul ac, &c., having the general meaning of the English "as soon as," when followed by a verb denoting past time; as, Quæ postquam evoluit—ligavit, "After he had separated these things,—he bound them," &c. OVID.

4. It is also used poetically for the imperfect and the pluperfect of the subjunctive; as, nec veni, nisi, &c., "nor would I have come, unless," &c. (141, and 624-5.)

5. In the passive form, this tense is compound, consisting of the perfect participle of the verb, and the present or perfect tense of sum as an auxiliary; as, amatus sum, or amatus fui, "I have been loved."

Note.—In all compound tenses, the participle must be in the same gender and number with the nominative to the verb.

165.—IV. The PLUPERFECT tense represents an action as completed at, or before, a certain past time expressed or implied; as, scripsēram, "I had written."

166.—This tense corresponds to the past-perfect in English, and is rendered by it. It bears the same relation to the perfect, that the imperfect does to the present.

1. The pluperfect is sometimes used, especially by the poets, for the perfect indicative, and also for the pluperfect subjunctive; as, dixēram a principio, ut de republica siceretur, CIC., "I have said from the beginning," &c.; Si mens non leva fuisset, IMPULERAT, &c., VIRG., "he would have impelled." (141, & 624-5.) The same idiom is found in English, "he had impelled," for "he would have impelled."

2. In the passive form, this tense, like the perfect, is compound, consisting of the perfect participle, and the imperfect or pluperfect of sum used as an auxiliary; as amatus eram, or amatus fuēram, "I had been loved."

Note.—In these compound forms, the participle seems to be considered sometimes as little different from an adjective. In such cases, sum becomes the verb, and is rendered by its own tense; as, opus peractum est, "the work is finished;" sumtus jam labor ERAT, "the labor was now finished."

167.—V. The FUTURE tense expresses what will take place in future time; as, scribam, “I shall, or will write.”

1. This tense is sometimes used in the sense of the imperative; as, liques vīna, “filtrate the wine.” Hor.

2. The participle in rus, with the verb sum, is frequently used instead of the future, especially if purpose or intention is signified; as, scriptūrus sum, “I am going to write.” (214–8.)

3. In the passive voice, the future tense expresses the future enduring of an act that will be going on hereafter; as, dōmus aedificabitur, “the house will be building.”

168.—VI. The FUTURE-PERFECT intimates that an action or event will be completed at, or before a certain time yet future; as, scripsēro, “I shall have written;” viz, at, or before, some future time or event.

1. This tense, sometimes called the future subjunctive properly belongs to the indicative mood, both in signification and construction. For the future subjunctive, see 170–1.

2. Though the proper rendering of this tense be shall have yet, generally, the have, or the shall, and frequently both, are omitted; as, qui Antonium oppresserit, is bellum confecerit, “he who shall cut off Antony, shall put an end to the war.”

3. This tense is also used imperatively; as, meminēris tu “remember thou;” ille vidērit, “let him see to it.”

4. The future perfect, in the passive voice, has two forms made up of the perfect participle, and ēro, or fuēro. The first denotes the enduring of an act that will be completed in future time indefinitely; as, dōmus aedificata ērit, “the house will be built;” the second denotes the enduring of an act to be completed at, or before, a certain future time; as, dōmus aedificata fuērit, “the house will have been built.”

§ 45. TENSES OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

169.—The tenses of the subjunctive mood are the Present, the Imperfect, the Perfect, and the Pluperfect.

170.—1. There is no distinct form of a future in the subjunctive; all the tenses of this mood sometimes incline to a future signification. But, when a future subjunctive is required, the future participle in rus, with the verb sum in the subjunctive present, is used; as, haud dubito quin facturus sit, “I doubt not that he will do it.”

2. The tenses of the subjunctive mood, in Latin, like those of the potential, in English, are much less definite, in respect of time, than the tenses of the indicative, being modified by the time and meaning of the verbs, with which they stand connected.

3. All the tenses of the subjunctive mood, are often rendered like the corresponding tenses of the indicative, 142, 1st and 3d.

171.—I. The PRESENT subjunctive is generally rendered by may or can, expressing present liberty, or ability; as, scribam, “I may write. But,

1. This tense is often used in the sense of the imperative mood, to express a command, entreaty, or exhortation; as, āmem, “let me love.” This use is commonly elliptical, 144 and 145.

2. After quāsi, tanquam, and the like, it is sometimes rendered as the imperfect, or perfect indefinite of the indicative as, quāsi intelligant, “as if they understood.”

3. When a question is asked, it is frequently rendered as the indicative; as, Elōquar an sileam? “shall I speak, or be silent?” Sometimes by should; as, singūla quid refēram, “why should I relate every thing?” Sometimes by would; as, In faciurus jurasse pūtes, “you would think they had sworn to commit wickedness.”

172.—II. The IMPERFECT subjunctive is commonly rendered by the signs might, could, would, or should, expressing past liberty, power, will, or obligation; as, scriberem, “I might, could, would, or should write.”

1. This tense may relate either to what is past, or present, or future; as, si fata fuissent ut cadērem, “if my destiny had been that I should fall;” si possem, sanior essem, “If I could. I would be wiser;" post hæc præcipitẽm dãrem, "afterwards, I would throw him down headlong."

2. Sometimes, the imperfect is rendered as the pluperfect; as, si quis dicẽret, nunquam putãrem, &c., "if any one had said it, I never would have thought," &c.

3. After a verb or clause denoting hindrance, the subjunctive imperfect, and sometimes the present, with quomãnus, ne, may often be rendered by from with the present participle; as,

Si te tua infirmãtas valetudinis tenuit, quo minus ad lãdos venires, "If your weak state of health has prevented you from coming to the games. So, Ne quis impedirẽtur quo minus ejus rẽbus frueretur, "That no one might be hindered from enjoying," &c. NEP.—Impeditus ne portãret, "Being hindered from carrying." SALL. Jug., 39.—Me impedit quo minus—vestrus jus defendam, "Shall hinder me from defending your right." CIC.

4. In historical narration, after ut or quum (cum), "when," or other words denoting time, the imperfect subjunctive is translated like the perfect indefinite or aorist; or, when it expresses a continued action, like the perfect indicative; as, cum ab his quærẽret, "when he inquired of these;" cum id ultro pollicerẽtur, "since of his own accord he promised that;" cum summus mons tenerẽtur, "when the top of the mountain was occupied."

173.—III. The PERFECT subjunctive is used to denote an act or event spoken of as already past, or which will be past at some future time, but about which there is at present some contingency or uncertainty, in the mind of the speaker.

This tense is commonly rendered by the signs may have; as, fortasse scripsẽrim, "perhaps I may have written," implying, "if so, I have at present forgotten it."

This general idea is expressed with much variety in English, according as the tense stands connected with other words in the sentence. This will be best explained by a few examples.

1. It is sometimes rendered like the present; as, ut sic dixẽrim, "that I may so speak." Sometimes like the imperfect; as, ũbi ego audivẽrim? "where should I have heard it?" fortasse erravẽrim, "perhaps I might be in an error."

2. This tense sometimes inclines very much to a future signification, and is rendered by should, would, could, can, will, shall; as, Citius credidērim, "I should sooner believe." JUV.—Lībenter audiērim, "I would gladly hear." CIC.—Cicerōnem cuicumque eōrum facīle opposuērim, "I could easily match Cicero with any of them;"—non facīle dixērim, "I cannot well tell;"—nec tāmen exclusērim alios, "and yet I will not exclude others."—Si paulūlum mōdo quid te fugērit, ēgo periērim, "If any thing however trifling escape you, I shall be undone." TER.

3. After quāsi, tanquam, and the like, it is sometimes rendered by had; as, quāsi affuērim, "as if I had been present;" perinde ac si jam vicērint, "just as if they had already conquered."

4. It is sometimes used in concessions; as, parta sit pecunia, "suppose the money were gotten." Sometimes as the imperative, with the idea of urgency; as, hęc dicta sint patrībūs, "let these things be told quickly to the fathers." X

174.—IV. The PLUPERFECT subjunctive denotes an action or event contingent at some past time, but regarded as to be perfected before another action or time subsequent to it, and connected with it; as,

Quodcunque jussisset me factūrum esse dixi, "I said (then) that I would do whatever he should order." Here his ordering was contingent at the time referred to, (then); but it was to take place before the doing connected with it. So, Id responderunt se factūros esse, cum ille vento Aquilōne Lemnum venisset, "They replied that they would do that, when he should return to Lemnos with a north wind." In such constructions, the leading verb is usually in the past tense, or in the present used for the past. It is variously rendered by would, could, might, had, might have, could have, would have, should have, or ought to have; as, si jussisset, paruissem, "if he had commanded, I would have obeyed." Hence, observe:

1. That though the action or state is often future in respect to the time of the leading verb, yet it is past with regard to the action or state dependent on it.

2. After quum, it is used in the sense of the pluperfect, to express an action antecedent to another past action connected with it, as Cęsar quum hęc dixisset, profectus est, "when Cæsar had said these things, he departed." Thus used, quum with the pluperfect, may be elegantly rendered by the perfect participle in English; thus the above example may be rendered, "Cæsar, having said these things, departed."

§ 46. TENSES OF THE IMPERATIVE.

175.—The Imperative mood, in Latin, has only one tense, namely, the present. Still the act from the nature of this mood is necessarily future; as, scribe, "write thou." The command is present; the act commanded, future. Still the two forms of the second person mark a distinction of time. See 151, Obs. 10.

The other tenses used imperatively, are the future and future-perfect indicative, and the present and perfect subjunctive; which see.

§ 47. TENSES OF THE INFINITIVE.

176.—The tenses of the Infinitive are four, the Present, the Perfect, and the Future, and, in the active voice, the Future-perfect.

In Latin, the tenses of the infinitive express its action as past, present, or future, not with regard to the present time, as in the other moods, but with regard to the time of the leading verb, on which it is dependent.

177.—The infinitive is used in two different ways; viz: without a subject, or with it.

178.—I. The infinitive without a subject, follows a verb, or adjective, and is always translated in the same way, whether the preceding verb be present, past, or future; thus:

ACTIVE VOICE.

PRESENT.

Dicitur scribere,	He is said to write, or to be writing (now).
" scripsisse,	" to have written (now).
" scripturus esse,	" to be about to write (now).
" scripturus fuisse,	" to have been about to write (before now).

PAST.

Dicet̄tur scrib̄ere,	He was said to write, or to be writing (then).
“ scripsisse,	“ to have written, &c.

PASSIVE VOICE.

PRESENT.

D̄omus dic̄itur ædific̄ari,	The house is said to be building (now).
“ ædific̄ata esse,	“ to be built (now).
“ ædific̄ata fuisse,	“ to have been built (before now).
“ ædific̄atum iri.	“ to be about to be built (now).

PAST.

D̄omus diceb̄atur ædific̄ari, The house was said to be building (then), &c.

Note.—When the participle in ing, of the English verb, has not a passive sense, the present infinitive passive must be translated differently; as, am̄ari, “to be loved.”

179.—II. The infinitive, with a subject, is usually translated by a distinct proposition, dependent on the preceding verb; and the translation of the same tense of the infinitive must differ according to the tense of the verb on which it depends, as follows :

1. The PRESENT Infinitive represents the action, or state, expressed by the verb, as present and going on at the time of the leading verb, and, consequently, must be rendered into English, in the time of the leading verb; as, dic̄it se scrib̄ere, “he says that he is writing;”—Pass., d̄omum ædific̄ari, “that the house is building;”—dix̄it se scrib̄ere, “he said that he was writing;”—Pass., d̄omum ædific̄ari, “that the house was building.” As an exception, see No. 5 below.

2. The PERFECT Infinitive represents the action, or state, expressed by the verb, as past at the time of the leading verb, and must be rendered accordingly; i. e., after the present, by the English present-perfect, or past; as, dic̄it se scripsisse, “he says that he has written.” or, “that he wrote;”—Pass., d̄omum ædific̄atam esse, “that the house is built;—ædific̄atam fuisse, “has been built.”—After a past tense (or the present used for the past, 143–3), by the English pluperfect; as, dix̄it se scripsisse, “he said that he had written.”—Pass., by the imperfect, or pluperfect; as, d̄omum ædific̄atam esse, “that the house was built;” ædific̄atam fuisse, “had been built.”

3. The FUTURE Infinitive represents the action, or state, expressed by the verb as future at the time of the leading verb, and must be rendered accordingly; as, dicit se scripturum esse, "he says that he will write;"—Pass., dōmum ædificātum iri, "that the house will be built;"—dixit se scripturum esse, "he said that he would write;"—Pass., dōmum ædificātum iri, "that the house would be built." For all these, see 180.

4. The future infinitive active is compound, being made up of esse, or fuisse, and the participle in rus, agreeing in gender, number, and case, with the accusative before it, or with the nominative of the leading verb. With esse, it corresponds to the future indicative; with fuisse, to the future-perfect; as,

Dicit eos scriptūros esse,	He says that they will write.
Dixit se scripturum esse,	He said that he would write.
Dicit se scripturum fuisse,	He says that he would have written.
Dixit eam scripturam fuisse,	He said that she would have written.
Dicitur scripturus esse,	He is said to be about to write.

Note 1.—Esse and fuisse, in the future infinitive, are generally understood; thus, dixit se scripturum; and so of others.

5. When the leading verb is in the future tense, the infinitive mood will be properly translated in its own tense, not in that of the leading verb; as, dīcet se scribēre, "he will say that he is writing," dīcet se scripsisse, "he will say that he has written;" dīcet se scripturum esse, "he will say that he will write;" se scripturum fuisse, "that he would have written." So also in the passive voice.

6. The perfect infinitive passive is made up of esse or fuisse, and the perfect participle in us, agreeing in gender, number and case with the accusative before it, or with the nominative of the leading verb, when that is in the passive voice; as, dicit litēras scriptas esse, "he says that letters were written;" litērae dicuntur scriptæ esse, "letters are said to have been written," &c. Esse and fuisse are sometimes understood. See Note 1 above.

7. The future infinitive passive is also a compound tense, consisting of the former supine, and iri, the present infinitive passive of eo; as, scriptum iri, "to be about to be written."

8. The future infinitive of deponent verbs (207) is made with esse or fuisse, and the participle in rus, as in the active voice (No. 4 above), and not like the future infinitive passive.

9. When the verb in the active voice has no supine, and consequently no participle in rus, there can, of course, be no future infinitive. In this case, the want of it is supplied by the future infinitive of sum; viz. futūrum esse, or fōre followed by ut, and the subjunctive in the present or imperfect, as the leading verb may require. Thus, dixit fōre ut lugeret, "he said that he would mourn;" dicit fōre ut lugeat, "he says that he will mourn." 678.

Note 2.—This form of expression is often used in both the active and the passive voice, even when the verb has the regular form of the future infinitive.

10. Fōre, the infinitive of sum, is used with all participles in us; as, Commissum cum equitatu praelio fōre vidēbat. CÆS.—Deinde addis, te fōre ventūrum. CIC.—Mittendos fōre legātos. LIV.

11. The infinitive mood with a subject, i. e. with an accusative before it, is usually rendered as the indicative, the particle that being commonly placed before it. The following examples will illustrate the method of translating the different tenses of the infinitive, when preceded by the leading verb in present, past, or future time.

180.—INFINITIVE ACTIVE.

- |                                       |   |
|---------------------------------------|---|
| 1 Dicit me scribēre,           | He says that I write, or am writing.           |
| 2 Dixit me scribēre,           | He said that I wrote, or was writing.          |
| 3 Dicet me scribēre,           | He will say that I am writing.                        |
| 4 Dicit me scripsisse,         | He says that I wrote, or did write.            |
| 5 Dixit me scripsisse,         | He said that I had written.                           |
| 6 Dicet me scripsisse,         | He will say that I have written, or did write. |
| 7 Dicit me scriptūrum esse,    | He says that I will write.                            |
| 8 Dixit me scriptūrum esse,    | He said that I would write.                           |
| 9 Dicet me scriptūrum esse,    | He will say that I will write.                        |
| 10 Dicit me scriptūrum fuisse, | He says that I would have written.                    |
| 11 Dixit me scriptūrum fuisse, | He said that I would have written.                    |
| 12 Dicet me scriptūrum fuisse, | He will say that I would have written.                |

INFINITIVE PASSIVE.

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| 18 Dicit litēras scribī,        | He says that letters are written, or writing.    |
| 14 Dixit litēras scribī,        | He said that letters were written, or writing    |
| 15 Dicet litēras scribī,        | He will say that letters are written, or writing |
| 16 Dicit litēras scriptas esse, | He says that letters are, or were written.       |
| 17 Dixit litēras scriptas esse, | He said that letters were, or had been written.  |
| 18 Dicet litēras scriptas esse, | He will say that letters are, or were written.   |

19 Dicit litéras scriptas fuisse, He says that letters have been written.

20 Dixit litéras scriptas fuisse, He said that letters had been written.

21 Dicet litéras scriptas fuisse, He will say that letters have been written.

22 Dicit litéras scriptum iri, He says that letters will be written.

23 Dixit litéras scriptum iri, He said that letters would be written.

24 Dicet litéras scriptum iri, He will say that letters would be written. ✕

Note 3.—When the preceding verb is of the imperfect, or pluperfect tense, the English of the infinitive is the same as when it is of the perfect indefinite, i. e. is the same as the infinitive after dixit, in the preceding table.

Note 4.—As the perfect definite (162) connects the action completed with the present time, the infinitive after it, in this sense, will generally be translated as it is after the present; as, DIXIT me scribere,—scripsisse,—scripturum esse, “he has said that I am writing,—was writing,—will write,” i. e. as it is in Examples Nos. 1, 4, and 7. With dixit used indefinitely, the infinitive would be rendered as in Examples Nos. 2, 5, and 8.

Note 5.—Because memory always refers to something past, the infinitive present after memini, “I remember,” is translated by the past tense; as, memini me dicere, “I remember that I said,” (not “that I say”). Memini me dixisse is also a proper formula to express the same thing.

Exc. 1. When the present infinitive expresses that which is always true, it must be translated in the present, after any tense (157-1); as, doctus erat Deum gubernare mundum, “he had been taught that God governs the world.”

Exc. 2. When the present infinitive expresses an act subsequent to the time of the governing verb, it is translated, after any tense, by the potential, with should, would; as, neccesse est (fuit, fuerat) te ire, “it is (was had been) necessary that you should go.”

✕ 181.—§ 48. NUMBER AND PERSON.

1. Every tense of the verb has two NUMBERS, the singular, and the plural, corresponding to the singular, and the plural of nouns and pronouns.

2. In each number, the verb has three PERSONS, called first, second, and third. The first asserts of the person speaking; the second, of the person spoken to; and the third, of the person or thing spoken of. In the Imperative, there are only two persons, the second, and the third.

TABLE OF PERSONAL ENDINGS.

The following table shows the personal endings, both singular and plural, of all regular verbs, in all conjugations, in all the tenses of the indicative and subjunctive moods, except the perfect indicative active, and the compound tenses in the passive voice :

ACTIVE VOICE.		PASSIVE VOICE.
Singular.	Plural.	Singular.	Plural.
1. —, m,	mus,	1. r,	mur,
2. s,	tis,	2. ris, or re,	mīni,
3. t,	nt.	3. tur,	ntur.

3. The subject or nominative of the verb in the first person singular, is always ĕgo; in the plural, nos;—in the second person singular, tu; in the plural, vos. These are seldom expressed, being sufficiently indicated by the termination of the verb; as, scribo, “I write;” scribimus, “we write;” scribis, “thou writest;” scribitis, “you write.”

Obs. Verbs in the first person plural, or in the second person singular, are sometimes used instead of the third person with an indefinite subject; as, quam multa facimus causā amicōrum, “how many things we do (i. e. men do) for the sake of friends!”—cernēres, “you would see,” i. e. “one, a person, or any person, would see.” SALL.

The subject of the verb in the third person, is any person or thing spoken of, whether it be expressed by a noun, pronoun, infinitive, gerund, or clause of a sentence; as, vir scribit, “the man writes;” illi lēgunt, “they read;” ludēre jucundum est, “to play is pleasant;” incertum est quam longa vīta futura sit, “how long our life will be, is uncertain.”

4. Two or more nouns or pronouns together may be the subject of one verb. If these happen to be of different persons, the verb takes the first person, rather than the second or third, and the second rather than the third; as, ĕgo, et tu, et ille scribimus, “I, and thou, and he write.”

5. Pronouns, participles, or adjectives used substantively, or having nouns understood to them, are of the third person. Qui takes the person of the antecedent. Ipse may be joined to any person, according to the sense.

6. To verbs also belong Participles, Gerunds, and Supines.

182.—§ 49. PARTICIPLES.

1. PARTICIPLES are parts of the verb which contain no affirmation, but express the meaning of the verb considered as a general quality or condition of an object; as, amans, "loving;" doctus, "learned."

2. Participles belong partly to the verb, and partly to the adjective. From the former, they have signification, voice, and tense; from the latter, declension; those in ns are of the third declension, and declined like prūdēns (99-2): all others are of the first and second, and declined like bōnus (98-1). In construction, they have the government of the verb, and the concord, or agreement of the adjective (§ 98).

3. When the idea of time is separated from the participle, it becomes a participial or verbal adjective, and is capable of comparison; as, doctus, doctior, doctissimus, "learned, more learned, most learned."

4. To the same class, also, belong participles whose meaning is reversed or modified by composition with words, or participles never combined with other parts of the same verb; as, innōcens, indoctus, impransus, nefandus, &c. The perfect participle with the negative prefix in, frequently denotes a passive impossibility, usually expressed in Latin by adjectives in ilis or bilis; as, invictus miles, "an invincible soldier;" incorruptus civis, "an incorruptible citizen."

5. The time of the participle, like that of the infinitive, is estimated from the time of the leading verb; i. e. the accompanying action or state expressed by the participle is present, past, or future, at the time indicated by the leading verb, with which it is connected; thus, vīdī eum venientem, "I saw him coming;" Nūma, Curibus nātus, rex creātus est, "Numa, born at Cures, was made king;" elephantes amnem transitūri minimos præmittunt, "elephants, about to cross a river, send the smallest first."

Note 1.—The perfect participle, both of deponent and common verbs, often expresses an action nearly, or entirely, contemporaneous with that of the leading verb. In such cases, it is better rendered, into English, by the present participle in ing, than by its ordinary rendering; as, Hoc facinus rex mirātus juvenem dimisit, "The king, admiring this act, dismissed the youth." Liv.—Arbitratus est bellum celeriter confici posse, eō exercitum adduxit. Cæs.—Hac arte Pollux arcus attingit igneus. Hor.—Columba fixamque refert de laqueo sagittam. Virg.—Præri bis sibi quemque secūti agmine pariter. Virg. So also the perfect participle of the active verb see No. 8, Note 2.

6. The future passive participle in dus, sometimes expresses bare futurity; as, his (scil. ventis) quoque habendum aëra permisit, "to these also, he gave the region of the air to be possessed." But, in conjunction with the verb sum, and frequently also in other constructions, it denotes necessity, propriety, or obligation, and hence, by inference, futurity; as, Delenda est Carthāgo, "Carthage must be destroyed." Facta narrābis dissimulanda tibi, "you were relating facts which you should have concealed."

7. The participle in dus, of transitive verbs, is often used in the oblique cases, in the sense of the gerund. Thus used, it is called a Gerundive participle, and agrees with its substantive in gender and number, and both take the case which the gerund would have in the same place; thus, tempus petendæ pācis, by the gerund, is petendi pācem, "time of seeking peace;" rerum repetundarum causā, "for the sake of demanding redress;" by the gerund, repetundi res.

Note 2.—Gerunds and gerundives of the third and fourth conjugations, often have undus, &c., instead of endus, as in the preceding examples.

8. The Latin language has no perfect participle in the active voice, nor present participle in the passive. The want of the former is made up in two ways: First, by the perfect participle passive, in the case absolute; as, Cæsar, his dictis, profectus est, "Cæsar (these things being said, i. e.), having said these things, departed;" and Secondly, by quum, with the pluperfect subjunctive; as, Cæsar, quum hæc dixisset, profectus est, "Cæsar (when he had said, i. e.), having said these things, departed."

Note 3.—The want of the present participle passive, is made up either by the perfect participle, or by the future participle in dus, both of which appear to be sometimes used in a present sense; as, Notus evolat piceâ tectus caligine, "Notus flies forth (being) covered with pitchy darkness." OVID.—Volvenda dies en attulit ultro, "Lo! revolving time (lit. time being rolled on) hath of itself brought about." VIRG.—Or by the gerundive form of expression, as in No. 7; see also No. 5, Note 1.

9. Transitive verbs have four participles, of which the present in us, and the future in rus, belong to the active voice; the perfect in tus, sus, or xus, and the future in dus, to the passive.

10. Intransitive verbs have two participles, namely, the present in us, and the future in rus; frequently also the future passive in dus, and also the perfect passive

11. Neuter passive verbs have commonly three participles; namely, the present, perfect, and future in rus. 213.

12. Deponent verbs of a transitive signification, have generally four participles; those of an intransitive signification commonly want the future in dus, except that the neuter in dum is sometimes used impersonally.

13. Common verbs have generally four participles, of which the perfect only is used both in an active and passive sense; as, adeptus victoriam, "having obtained the victory;" victoriâ adeptâ, "the victory being obtained." The rest are active. 207, Obs. 2.

14. Some intransitive verbs, though they have no passive, yet have participles of the perfect passive form, but still with an intransitive signification; such are, cenatus, "having supped;" pransus, "having dined;" juratus, "having sworn." X

183.—§ 50. GERUNDS AND SUPINES.

1. The GERUND is a kind of verbal noun, used only in the singular number. It represents the action or state expressed by the verb as a thing now going on, and at the same time, if in the nominative, or in the accusative before the infinitive, as the subject of discourse; and if in the oblique cases, as the object of some action or relation. They are construed in all respects as nouns, and also govern the case of their verbs. § 147.

In meaning and use, the gerund resembles the English present participle, used as a noun (see Eng. Gr., 195; An. and Pr. Eng. Gr., 462), and the Greek infinitive with the article prefixed. See Gr. Gr., § 173.

2. SUPINES are defective verbal nouns of the fourth declension, having only the accusative and the ablative singular.

The supine in um has an active signification, and governs the case of the verb. 682.

The supine in u has usually a passive signification, and governs no case. X

184.—§ 51. CONJUGATION OF REGULAR VERBS.

1. REGULAR VERBS are those in which the secondary parts are formed from the primary, according to certain rules, 185.

2. The CONJUGATION of a verb, is the regular combination and arrangement of its several voices, moods, tenses, numbers, and persons.

3 Of regular verbs, in Latin, there are four conjugations, called the First, Second, Third, and Fourth. These are distinguished from each other, by the vowel before re, in the present infinitive active; thus,

The First Conjugation has ā long before re of the infinitive.
 The Second “ has ē long before re of the infinitive.
 The Third “ has ĕ short before re of the infinitive.
 The Fourth “ has ī long before re of the infinitive.

Exc. Dāre, and its compounds of the first conjugation, have ā short.

4. The primary tenses, or parts of the verb in the active voice, from which all the other parts are formed, are four; namely, o of the present indicative, re of the present infinitive, i of the perfect indicative, and um of the supine. The giving of these parts, in the order just mentioned, is called conjugating the verb; thus,

	Pres. Ind.	Pres. Inf.	Perf. Ind.	1st. Supine.
1st Conj.	Amo,	amāre,	amāvī,	amātum.
2d “	Monēo,	monēre,	monuī,	monitum.
3d “	Rēgo,	regēre,	rexī,	rectum.
4th “	Audīo,	audīre,	audīvī,	audītum.

The manner of conjugating each verb being accurately ascertained from the Dictionary, the other tenses may be formed with certainty by the rules laid down in the next section.*

* Though general rules may be, and have been, laid down, to form the primary tenses from the general root, or stem of the verb, yet there is such a multitude of exceptions in the third conjugation, (and some in the others also,) which it is impossible to bring under any rule, that it will be found indispensable, after all, to learn the conjugation of each verb from the dictionary, or from the table of irregular conjugations (§ 81). For this reason, they are here omitted in the text as useless for any practical purpose. The principal methods proposed are in substance the two following

185 —§ 52. FORMATION OF THE TENSES IN THE ACTIVE VOICE.

I. Indicative Mood.

1. The Present is a primary tense.

2. The Imperfect is formed from the present by changing :

In the 1st Conjugation, o into ābam; as, am-o, am-ābam,
 “ 2d “ eo into ēbam; as, mon-eo, mon-ēbam,
 “ 3d and 4th “ o into ēbam; as, rēg-o, reg-ēbam,
audi-o, audi-ēbam.

3. The Perfect is a primary tense.

4. The Pluperfect, in all conjugations, is formed from the

First. The general root or stem that runs through the whole verb, consists of the letters preceding the infinitive terminations, -āre, -ēre, -ere, -ire.

To form the primary tenses, there is added to the general root as follows :

	Pr. Ind.	Pr. Inf.	Perf. Ind.	1st. Supine.
In the 1st Conj.	o ,	-āre ,	-āvi ,	-ātum .
“ 2d “	-eo ,	-ēre ,	-ui ,	-itum .
“ 3d “	-o, &amp; -io ,	-ēre ,	-i, &amp; -si ,	-tum, &amp; -sum .
“ 4th “	-ie ,	-ire ,	-ivi ,	-itum .

In the perfect tense of the third conjugation, observe :

1. If the root of the verb ends with a vowel, the termination added is s; as, acūo, root acu, perfect acui.

2. If the root of the verb ends with a consonant, the usual termination is si, which, in uniting with the root, causes the following changes, viz :

1st. If the letter preceding si be c, g, h, or qu, it unites with the s; and forms x; as, dūco (duc-si), duxi; finco (fin-si), finxi; traho (trah-si), traxi; cōquo (cōqu-si), cōxi.

2d. The letter b before si is changed into p; as, scribo, scripsi.

3d. When d precedes si, either the d or the s is rejected; as, defendo, defendī, claudio, clausi.

4th. The s is dropped in many verbs which cannot be brought under any definite rule; as, ligo, ligi; ēmo, ēmi.

In the supine of the third conjugation, observe :

1. When the root of the verb ends in a vowel, the supine adds tum, and lengthens the vowel preceding it; as, acuo, acūtum.

2. When the root ends with a consonant, the supine adds tum, sometimes um. In uniting with the root, the following changes for the sake of euphony take place, viz :

1st The letter b before tum is changed into p; as, scribo, scriptum.

2d The letters g, h, and qu, before tum, are changed into c; as, rēgo, rectum; trahc, tractum; cōquo, coctum.

perfect, by changing i into eram; as, amāv-i, amav-eram; monū-i, monu-eram, &c.

5. The Future is formed from the present by changing—

In the 1st Conjugation, o into ābo; as, ām-o, am-ābo.

“ 2d “ eo into ēbo; as, mon-eo, mon-ēbo.

“ 3d and 4th “ o into am; as,  $\left. \begin{array}{l} rēg-o, \quad rēg-am. \\ audi-o, \quad audi-am. \end{array} \right\}$

6. The Future perfect, in all conjugations, is formed from the perfect, by changing i into ero; as, amāv-i, amav-ero; monū-i, monu-ero, &c.

II. The Subjunctive Mood.

7. The Present Subjunctive is formed from the present in

8i. The letter g before sum, when a vowel precedes, unites with the s, and forms x; as, fīgo (fīg-sum), fixum; when r precedes, the g is rejected; as, tergo, tersum.

8th. The letter d before sum is rejected; as, defendo, defensum.

Secondly. The general root being found as before; then, to form the second root, in the first, second, and fourth conjugations, (i. e. the root of the perfect tense,) add av for the first, u for the second, and iv for the fourth; as, ām, āmav; mon, monu; aud, audiv.

To form the third root, (i. e. the root of the supine,) in the same conjugations, add to the general root the syllables ātu, itu, and itu; as, am, amātu; mon, monitu; aud, auditu.

The three roots being thus found, the primary tenses are formed as follows, viz:

1. From the first root, the present indicative is formed,

In the 1st Conjugation, by adding	-o,	as,	am ,	ām-o .
“ 2d “	“ -eo,	as,	mon ,	mon-eo .
“ 3d “	“ -o, or -io,	as,	reg ,	reg-o .
“ 4th “	“ -io,	as,	aud ,	aud-io .

2. From the same root, the present infinitive is formed,

In the 1st Conjugation, by adding	-āre,	as,	am ,	am-āre .
“ 2d “	“ -ere,	as,	mon ,	mon-ere .
“ 3d “	“ -ere,	as,	reg ,	reg-ere .
“ 4th “	“ -ire,	as,	aud ,	aud-ire .

3. From the second root, in all conjugations, the perfect is formed by adding i; as, amāv-i, monū-i, audiv-i.

4. From the third root in all conjugations, the first supine is formed by adding m; as, amātu-m, monitu-m, &c.

The third conjugation is so irregular in the formation of its roots, that no rules are attempted.

The first of these methods is substantially that offered in the Grammar of Zumpt. The second is the plan of Andrews and Stoddard, which they carry out by applying it to all the tenses, secondary as well as primary.

dicative,—in the first conjugation, by changing o into em; as, ām-o, ām-em;—in the second, third, and fourth, by changing o into am; as, monē-o, monē-am; rēg-o, rēg-am; audi-o, audi-am.

8. The Imperfect Subjunctive, in all conjugations, is formed from the present infinitive, by adding m; as, amāre, amārem; monēre, monērem; regēre, regērem, &c.

9. The Perfect Subjunctive is formed from the perfect indicative, by changing i into ērim; as, amāv-i, amāv-ērim; monu-i, monu-ērim, &c.

10. The Pluperfect Subjunctive is formed from the perfect indicative by changing i into issem; as, amāv-i, amāv-issem; monu-i, monu-issem, &c.

III. The Imperative Mood.

11. The Present Imperative is formed from the present infinitive, by taking away re; as, amāre, āmā; monēre, mōnē; regēre, rēgē; audire, audi.

IV. The Infinitive Mood.

12. The Present Infinitive is a primary tense.

13. The Perfect Infinitive is formed from the perfect indicative, by changing i into isse; as, amāv-i, amāv-isse; monu-i, monu-isse, &c.

14. The Future Infinitive is a compound tense, made up of esse or fuisse, and the future participle in rus; as, esse or fuisse amatūrus, -a, -um; esse or fuisse monitūrus, -a, -um, &c.

V. Participles, Gerunds, and Supines.

15. The Present Participle is formed from the present indicative by changing,

o ,	in the 1st Conjugation,	into ans ; as, ām-o , ām-ans .
eo ,	“ 2d “	into ens ; as, mon-eo , mōn-ens .
o ,	“ 3d and 4th “	into ens ; as, $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} rēg-o, \quad rēg-ens. \\ audi-o, \quad audi-ens. \end{array} \right.$

16. The Future Participle is formed from the former supine by changing um into ūrus; as, amāt-um, amat-ūrus; monit-um, monit-ūrus &c.

17. The Gerund is formed from the present indicative by changing, o, in the 1st Conjugation, into andum; as, ām-o, am-andum.

 eo, “ 2d “ into endum; as, mon-eo, mon-endum.
 o, “ 3d and 4th “ into endum; as,  $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \textit{rēg-o}, \textit{reg-endum}. \\ \textit{audi-o}, \textit{audi-endum}. \end{array} \right.$

18. The Former Supine is a primary part of the verb.

19. The Latter Supine is formed from the former by dropping m; as, amātum, amātu; monitum, monītu.

186.—§ 53. FORMATION OF THE TENSES IN THE PASSIVE VOICE.

1. In the Indicative mood, the present passive is formed from the present active by adding r; as, āmo, āmor; moneo, moneor, &c.;—the imperfect and the future passive, from the same tenses in the active voice, by changing m into r; as, amābam, amābar;—or adding r to bo; as, monēbo, monēbor, &c.

2. In the Subjunctive mood, the present and the imperfect passive are formed from the same tenses in the active voice, by changing m into r; as, āmem, āmer; moneam, monear, &c.

3. The perfect, pluperfect, and future-perfect indicative, and the perfect and pluperfect subjunctive, are compound tenses, made up of the perfect participle passive, and the verb sum as an auxiliary, as exhibited in the paradigm of these tenses.

4. The Imperative passive, in all verbs, is formed by adding re to the imperative active; as, āmā, amāre; mōnē, monēre, &c. Hence, the imperative passive is like the present infinitive active.

5. The Present Infinitive passive is formed from the present infinitive active, by changing re in the first, second, and fourth conjugations, into ri; as, amā-re, amā-ri; mōnē-re, mōnē-ri, audi-re, audi-ri; and by changing ere in the third conjugation into i; as, reg-ere, rēg-i. But arcesso has arcessiri.

The Perfect Infinitive is a compound tense, made up of the perfect participle, and esse or fuisse prefixed; as, esse or fuisse amātus. a, um, &c.

The Future Infinitive is also a compound tense, made up of the former supine and iri, the present infinitive passive of eo; as, amātum iri, monitum iri, &c.

6. The Perfect Participle is formed from the former supine, by changing um into us; as, amāt-um, amāt-us; monit-um, monit-us, &c.

The Future Participle is formed as the active gerund (185-17), by putting dus instead of dum; as, gerund, amandum, participle, amandus; gerund, monendum, participle, monendus, &c. ✕

187.—§ 54. THE IRREGULAR VERB SUM.*

The irregular verb sum is sometimes called a substantive verb, as it denotes being, or simple existence; as, sum, "I am," "I exist." Sometimes it is called auxiliary, because it is used as an auxiliary verb in the inflection of the passive voice. It is conjugated thus:

Pres. Ind.	Pres. Inf.	Perf. Ind.
Sum,	esse,	fui.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

PRESENT TENSE, am.

Sing.	1. Ego Sum, †	I am,
	2. Tu Es,	Thou† art, or you are,
	3. Ille Est,	He is;
Plur.	1. Nos Sūmus.	We are,
	2. Vos Estis,	Ye, or you are,
	3. Illi Sunt,	They are.

* This verb, being irregular, properly belongs to § 83, but is inserted here, because, as an auxiliary, it is much used in the inflection of regular verbs.

† In the Indicative, Subjunctive, and Imperative moods, every part of the verb must have its nominative expressed or understood. See 181-3. The nominatives ego, tu, ille, of the singular, and nos, vos, illi, of the plural, are here prefixed in the present tense, to show their place and their use; but in the following tenses, and in the following conjugations, they are omitted. Still they are to be regarded as understood, and may be supplied at pleasure.

† See 118, Note 2. In the plural, "you" is much more common than "ye," which is now seldom used.

IMPERFECT, was.

Sing.	1. Eram,	I was,
	2. Eras,	Thou wast, or you were,
	3. Erat,	He was;
Plur.	1. Erāmus,	We were,
	2. Erātis,	Ye, or you were,
	3. Erant,	They were.

PERFECT Definite, have been; Indefinite, was.

Sing.	1. Fui,	I have been,
	2. Fuisti,	Thou hast been,
	3. Fuit.	He has been;
Plur.	1. Fuimus,	We have been,
	2. Fuistis,	Ye have been,
	3. Fuērunt, or fuēre,	They have been.

PLUPERFECT, had been.

Sing.	1. Fueram,	I had been,
	2. Fueras,	Thou hadst been,
	3. Fuerat,	He had been;
Plur.	1. Fueramus,	We had been,
	2. Fueratis,	Ye had been,
	3. Fuerant,	They had been.

FUTURE, shall, or will.

Sing.	1. Ero,	I shall, or will be,
	2. Eris,	Thou shalt, or wilt be,
	3. Erit,	He shall, or will be;
Plur.	1. Erimus,	We shall, or will be,
	2. Eritis,	Ye shall, or will be,
	3. Erunt,	They shall, or will be.

FUTURE-PERFECT, shall, or will have been.

Sing.	1. Fuero,	I shall, or will have been,
	2. Fueris,	Thou shalt, or wilt have been,
	3. Fuerit,	He shall, or will have been;
Plur.	1. Fuerimus,	We shall, or will have been,
	2. Fueritis,	Ye shall, or will have been,
	3. Fuerint,	They shall, or will have been.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

PRESENT TENSE, may, or can.

Sing.	1. Sim,	I may, or can be,
	2. Sis,	Thou mayst, or canst be
	3. Sit,	He may, or can be;
Plur.	1. Sīmus,	We may, or can be,
	2. Sītis,	Ye may, or can be,
	3. Sīnt,	They may, or can be.

IMPERFECT, might, could, would, or should.

Sing.	1. Essem,	I might, &amp;c., be,
	2. Esses,	Thou mightst, &amp;c., be,
	3. Esset,	He might, &amp;c., be;
Plur.	1. Essēmus,	We might, &amp;c., be,
	2. Essētis,	Ye might, &amp;c., be,
	3. Essent,	They might, &amp;c., be.

PERFECT, may have.

Sing.	1. Fuērim,	I may have been,
	2. Fuēris,	Thou mayst have been.
	3. Fuērit,	He may have been;
Plur.	1. Fuerīmus,	We may have been,
	2. Fuerītis,	Ye may have been,
	3. Fuērint,	They may have been.

PLUPERFECT, might, could, would, or should have.

Sing.	1. Fuissem,	I might, &amp;c., have been,
	2. Fuisses,	Thou mightst, &amp;c., have been
	3. Fuisset,	He might, &amp;c., have been,
Plur.	1. Fuissēmus,	We might, &amp;c., have been,
	2. Fuissētis,	Ye might, &amp;c., have been,
	3. Fuissent,	They might, &amp;c., have been

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Sing.	2. Es, or Esto,	Be thou,
	3. Esto,	Let him be;
Plur.	2. Este, or estōte,	Be ye,
	3. Suntō,	Let them be.

INFINITIVE MOOD

PRES.	Esse,	To be (177).
PERF.	Fuisse,	To have been.
FUT.	Esse futūrus, a, um,	To be about to be.
F. PERF.	Fuisse futūrus, a, um,	To have been about to be.

PARTICIPLE.

FUTURE.	Futūrus, a, um,	About to be.
---------	-----------------	--------------

SYNOPSIS OF THE MOODS AND TENSES.

	Indicative.	Subjunctive.	Imperative.	Infinitive.	Participle.
PRES.	sum,	sim,	es, or esto.	esse
IMP.	eram,	essem,		fuisse,
PERF.	fui,	fuërim
PLUP.	fuëram,	fuissem.
FUT.	ëro,			esse futūrus,	futūrus.
F-PERF.	fuëro.			fuisse futūrus.

Obs. 1. The compounds of sum; namely, adsum, absum, desum, insum, intersum, obsum, præsum, subsum, supersum, are conjugated like the simple verb; but insum, and subsum, want the perfect, and the tenses formed from it. Prösum, and pösum from pötis and sum, are very irregular. 221-1, 2.

Obs. 2. Instead of Essem, förem is sometimes used, and also före, instead of fuisse.

Obs. 3. The participle ens is not in use, but appears in two compounds, absens, and præsens. Also, the supine and gerund are wanting, but the inflection in the persons and numbers is regular.

Note.—The great irregularity of this verb arises from the different parts being formed from different themes or roots, viz: the parts beginning with e from eo, the root of the Greek ειμι, and those beginning with f from fuo, the same as the Greek φύω. In ancient times, this verb was conjugated fua, fuere, fui (füvi), fütum. Fuere was contracted före, and fuërem, förem; and from fütum, was formed futūrus. Hence, also, the ancient forms fuërim, fuëro, &c.

188.—§ 55. EXERCISES ON THE VERB SUM.

1 Give the designation of the verb.—conjugate it;—give the tense, mood, person, number, and translation of the following words, always observing the same order; thus.—Sum verb intransitive, irregular, found in the present indicative, active, first person singular, "I am;"—Fui, verb intransitive, irregular, found in the perfect indicative, active, third person singular: definite, "he has been;" indefinite, "he was."*

Ēst, ērat, ērit, fuēram, fuērim, fuēro, sit, esset, fuisti, fuimus, fuērunt, fuēre, ērunt, sint, sūmus, ērant, essent, fuissent, esse, esto, sunt, fuisse, es, ēras, fuēras, fuistis, futūrus esse, futūrus, sint, &c., ad libitum.

2 Translate the following English words into Latin, naming the part of the verb used; thus,— "I will be," ero, in the future indicative, active, first person singular. The Latin word for I, thou, he, we, you, they, to be omitted or inserted at pleasure.†

We are, they were, you have been, thou hast been, they will be, he may be, I shall have been, to be, be thou, let them be, about to be, to be about to be, we should be, we should have been, I may have been, they will have been, they may have been, they have been, you were, thou wast, he is, they are, &c., ad libitum.

3. The verb sum forms the copula connecting the subject and the predicate in a simple proposition, the predicate of which is not a verb. Thus in the proposition: "Man is mortal," man is the subject, mortal, the predicate; and is, the copula. With the verb sum as a copula in different tenses, and the exercises § 23-1, form simple sentences; thus, cāsa est (ērat, fuit, &c.) parva, "the cottage is, (was, has been &c.) small;" plural, cāsa sunt parvæ, "the cottages are small."

Poēta ērat clārus,—ōpus magnum ērit,—nūbes densæ sunt,—æstas callida fuit,—urbs antiqua fuit,—&c.

Translate the following English sentences into Latin:

Life is short,—the day was clear.—the boys are docile,—the shepherd will be faithful,—the apples are sweet,—&c.

* In these and all following exercises on the verb, it will be of great importance, in order to form habits of accuracy, and as a preparation for future exercises in translating and parsing, to require the pupil, in this manner, to state every thing belonging to a verb, in the order here indicated, or in and other the teacher may direct, always, however, observing the same; any also, for the saving of time and unnecessary labor, to state them in the fewest words possible, and without waiting to have every word drawn from him by questions. Let it be observed, also, that the term active here has no reference to the class of the verb, but only to its form, being that of the active voice. 136-2.

† N. B. It will be a profitable exercise to require each pupil to write out the Latin for these and other English words that may be dictated,—carefully to mark the quantity of long and short vowels, and to pronounce them correctly after they are written.

190. —§ 57. EXERCISES ON THE FIRST CONJUGATION; ACTIVE VOICE.

1. Give the designation of the verb, conjugate it; give the tense,—mood,—voice,—person,—number, and translation of the following words, always observing the same order; thus,—Amo, a verb transitive, first conjugation, āmā, amāre, amāvi, amātum. It is found in the present indicative active, first person singular, “I love,” “I do love,” “I am loving.”

Amābat, amavērat, āmet, amaverītis, amābunt, creāvīm, s, creavērat, domuērat, domuisset, amavēro, domuēro, vocavērim, vocā, vocāre, domā, creavisse, domuisse, amatūrus, domitūrus, āmans, amandum, amātu, domītum, domābam, domābo,—creat, creāret, amāret, amavisti, amavēre, domuistis, amāto, amando, amavērunt, creāre, vocavērunt, vocavērīnt, vocābunt, vocarētis, domabītis, &c., &c., ad libitum.

2. Translate the following English words into Latin, giving the part of the verb used; thus,—“I was loving,” amābam, in the imperfect indicative active, first person singular.

He will love, I might love, I had loved, I might have loved, he shall love, I may love, he created, I called, I may have called, he will tame, he has tamed, he would have tamed, love thou, let them love, to love, about to love, of loving, to have loved, they were loving, they have loved, thou hast created, thou hast tamed, &c., ad libitum.

3. The Infinitive with a subject. The infinitive, after another verb, and with an accusative before it as its subject, is translated, into English, in the indicative or potential mood; and the accusative in Latin is made the nominative in English; as, dicit me amāre, “he says that I love.” The accusatives are thus translated :

Me , that I;	nos , that we;	homīnem , that the man.
Te , that thou;	vos , that you;	homīnes , that the men.
Illu , that he;	illos , that they;	femīnas , that the women.

Infinitives, after verbs of the present, past, and future tenses, are rendered as in the examples, 180, or according to the following rules; viz.:

RULE I. When the preceding verb is of the present or future tense, the present infinitive is translated as the present indicative; the perfect infinitive, as the perfect indicative; and the future infinitive, as the future indicative. 180, Nos. 1, 4, 7; also 3, 6, 9.

RULE II. When the preceding verb is in past time (i. e. in the imperfect, perfect, or pluperfect tense), the present infinitive is translated as the imperfect, or perfect indicative; the perfect infinitive, as the pluperfect indicative; and the future infinitive, as the imperfect subjunctive. 180, Nos. 2, 5, 8.

RULE III. The future perfect of the infinitive with a subject, is always translated as the pluperfect subjunctive, whatever be the tense of the preceding verb. 180, Nos. 10, 11, 12.

4. According to the preceding rules, and the examples referred to, translate the following sentences into English—observing that dicit, “he says,” is present time; dixit, “he said,” past; and dicet, “he will say,” future.

Dicit me vocare, —te amare, —nos amavisse, —vos amaturos esse, —nos amaturos fuisse, —illos domare, —te amaturum esse, —illos rogaturos esse, —homines rogaturos fuisse.

Dixit me vocare, —te amare, —nos amavisse, —nos amaturos esse, —nos amaturos fuisse, —vos domare, —te amaturum esse, —illum rogavisse, —vos rogare, —illam rogaturam esse.

Dixit nos vocare; —dicet illum creare; —dicit te creaturum esse; —dixit se amaturum (179, Note 1); dicit illos creaturos, —illum vocaturum, —vos domituros esse, —domituros fuisse, —me rogare, —te rogavisse, —vos rogaturos, &c.

5. Translate the following English into Latin, taking care to put the participle of the future infinitive in the same gender, number, and case, as the accusative preceding it.

He said that I loved, —that I was calling. He says that they will tame —that I would have created, —that they will call, —that he loves. He will say that I love, —that I have loved, —that I will love. He said that I had called, —that they would have called, —that they tamed, —that they would tame, —that he would have tamed. He says that I am asking, —that they are asking, —that they are calling, —that we did call, —that they do ask, —that we will ask, &c.

207.—§ 72. DEPONENT AND COMMON VERBS.

1. DEPONENT VERBS* are those which, under a passive form, have an active signification; as, loquor, “I speak;” morior, “I die.”

2. COMMON VERBS are those which, under a passive form, have an active or passive signification, as, crimīnor, “I accuse,” or “I am accused.”

Obs. 1. All deponent verbs seem to have been originally passives. Hence, there are many verbs which, though found in the active voice, are used as deponents in the passive.

Obs. 2. In common verbs, the passive sense is generally

* So called from depōno, “I lay aside,” because, though in the passive form, they have laid aside the passive sense.

confined to the perfect participle; thus, we can say adeptus victorim, "having obtained the victory;" or, victoriâ adeptâ, "the victory being obtained." Hence, adipiscor is called a common verb, though in all its parts, except the perfect participle, it is usually deponent, or has an active signification.

Obs. 3. Deponent verbs are conjugated and inflected like the passive voice of the conjugations to which they belong; except that they have also the participles, gerunds, supines and future of the infinitive, like the active voice. 182-12, 13.

1. Give the designation* of the verb,—conjugate it;—give the tense, mood, person, number, and translation of the following words, always observing the same order; thus,—Miror, verb transitive, deponent, first conjugation,

* In parsing deponent verbs, it is necessary, in giving the designation, to state whether the verb, as there used, is transitive or intransitive. But in stating the part of the verb used, it is unnecessary to mention the voice, because deponent verbs have only the passive form.

Miror, mirāri, mirātus It is found in the present indicative, first person singular; "I admire, do admire, am admiring."

Mirabātur, mirabītur, mirautur, mirabuntur, mirarentur, pollicitus sum, pollicitus erat, pollicitus fuērit, pollicerentur, utitur, ūsus est, ūti, usūrus, ūtens, utendum, uteretur, ūtar, metiris, metiuntur, metiuntor, metimīni, mensus erat, mensus sit, mensi fuērunt, utere, utēre, pollicēre, pollicētus, pollicēns.

2. Translate the following English words into Latin, naming the part of the verb used; thus, "I have admired," mirātus sum, in the perfect indicative, first person singular.

They will use, we shall measure, let them measure, about to use, we have used, they may have used, he will have used, they will promise, they would have promised, we might admire, I would have used, use thou, let them use, promise ye, let us use (171-1), let us admire, they have promised, promising, having promised, to measure, let us measure.

3. Translate the following into English, according to the rules and examples 190-3, 4.—Dicit (he says) me mirāri,—vos pollicēri,—nos mirātos esse,—eos pollicētūros esse,—homīnes mensūros esse,—femīnas pollicētūras esse,—te ūti,—se mirāri,—eum mirāri,—me mensūrum esse,—vos usūros (179, Note 1). Dicitur (he is said) pollicētus esse (179-6). Dixit (he said) se mirāri,—nos pollicētos esse,—eos pollicētūros,—vos mensos esse,—femīnas mensūras,—eum pollicētum.

4. Translate the following into Latin, according to direction 190-5.—He says (dicit) that I am using,—that thou admirest,—that he has measured,—that we will promise,—that the men will measure,—that the women will use,—that you will measure,—that I would have used,—that they would have admired,—that they admired. He said (dixit) that I was using—had been using,—that you were measuring,—that he measured,—that they had promised,—that they would use.

213.—§ 78. NEUTER PASSIVE VERBS.

1. NEUTER PASSIVE VERBS are those which, with an intransitive meaning throughout, have a passive form in the perfect, pluperfect, and future-perfect indicative, and in the perfect and pluperfect subjunctive; but an active form in the other tenses. They are the following:

Second Conjugation.

Audeo,	audēre,	ausus,	To dare.
Gaudeo,	gaudēre,	gavisus,	To rejoice.
Soleo,	solēre,	solitus,	To be wont.

2 The following verbs are called Neutral Passives, namely, fio, "I am made," or "I become;" vapulo, "I am beaten;" veneo, "I am sold." They have an active form, but a passive signification, and serve as passives to facio, verbëro, and vendo. Fio has the passive form in the preterite tenses. 221.

214.—§ 79. GENERAL REMARKS ON THE CONJUGATIONS.

1. The perfect and pluperfect active, in both the indicative and subjunctive, are often shortened by a syncope, as follows:

1st. In the first conjugation, avi and ave often drop vi and ve before s or r, and circumflect the a; thus, for amavisti, amavissem, amavëram, amavëro, amavërim, &c., we often have amásti, amássem, amáram, amáro, amárim, &c. Also in the second and third conjugations, evi drops vi in the same situation; as complësti, for complëvist; delëram, for delevëram; decrësem, for decrëvissem; &c. But ovi is syncopeated only in the preterite verb növi, and the compounds of moveo; as, nörant, for novërant; nösse, for novisse; commössem, for commovissem, &c.

2d. In the fourth conjugation, ivi frequently loses vi before s; as, audisti, for audivist; audissem, for audivissem. Sometimes the v only is dropped between two vowels; as, audii, for audivi; audiëram, for audivëram &c. And so also with other preterites of the same form, with the tenses derived from them; as, petii, for petivi; iëram, for ivëram; &c.

2. The perfect indicative active, third person plural, has two forms, ërunt, ëre. Both forms have the same meaning; the first is more common with the earlier, and the second, with the later writers.

3. In the passive voice, there are two forms of the second person singular, namely ris and re. The termination re is rarely used in the present indicative; in the other tenses, re is more common than ris, especially in Cicero.

4. The imperatives of dico, dūco, facio, and fēro, are usually written dic, duc, fac, fer; also in their compounds, except in those of facio, which change a into i; as, confīce, perfīce, &c.

5. In the old forms of the language, the present infinitive passive was lengthened, especially among the poets, by adding er; as, amarier, for amāri; legier, for lēgi; &c.

6. The terminations rimus and ritis in the future-perfect indicative, and perfect subjunctive, have the i sometimes long, and sometimes short. It is marked short in the preceding paradigms. The pupil may be accustomed to give it both ways.

7. In the passive voice, the perfect and pluperfect have two forms. Of these, the perfect participle with fui and fuēram expresses the completion of past action more emphatically than when joined with sum and ēram. Thus, pransus sum, means "I have dined, I have just dined;" pransus fui, means "I have dined some time ago." 182-14.

8. The verb sum, through all its tenses, with the future participle in rus, is used to express the intention, at the time referred to, of doing a thing presently; or that the action is, or was, or will be, on the point of being done. When this idea is to be conveyed, this form of expression is used in preference to the future, which simply denotes that an act will be effected in future time. This, which is inflected as follows, is sometimes called the—

INFINITIVE MOOD.

PRES. Amatūrus esse,	To be about to love.
PERF. Amatūrus fuisse,	To have been about to love.

9. In like manner, the future participle in dus, expressing propriety or necessity of doing at the time referred to, is joined with all the tenses of the verb sum, and thus forms what is called the—

SECOND PERIPHRASTIC CONJUGATION.

Thus, PRES. Amandus sum,	I deserve, or ought to be loved, &amp;c.
IMP. Amandus eram,	I deserved, or ought to be loved, &amp;c.

And so forth through all the other tenses, as with the participles in rus, No. 8. In analyzing such expressions, however, it is better to parse each word of the compound separately, and combine them by the rules of syntax. A stronger necessity is expressed by the gerund, with the verb est; thus, scribendum est mihi epistolam, is "I must write a letter," i. e. I am COMPELLED to do it; whereas, scribenda est mihi epistola, means simply, "I should write a letter." See Syntax, 700.

10. The future infinitive passive is a compound of iri, the present infinitive passive of eo, "to go," used impersonally, and the supine in um; so that amatum iri, literally is "to be going to love.

11. The verbal adjective in lundus is rendered like the present participle, but with increased strength: thus, errans, "wandering;" errabundus, "wandering to and fro;" moriens, "dying;" moribundus, "in the agonies of death;" &c.

12. The meaning and use of the gerundive participle already mentioned 182-7, will be more fully explained in Syntax, 707-711.

§ 80. COMPOUND VERBS.

215.—Verbs are compounded chiefly with prepositions, which modify the simple verb according to their respective meanings; thus, eo, “I go,” in composition with different prepositions, is modified by them; as, adeo, “I go to;” abeo, “I go from;” exeo, “I go out;” ineo, “I go in;” &c. In the formation of compounds, due regard must be paid to the following—

GENERAL RULES.

1. Compound verbs form the perfect and supine in the same manner as simple verbs; as, āmo, amāre, amāvi, amātum; red-āmo, red-amāre, red-amāvi, red-amātum.

2. Simple verbs which double the first syllable in the perfect, drop the reduplication in the compounds; as, pello, pe-pūli; re-pello, re-pūli. Except præ-curro, re-pungo, and the compounds of do, sto, disco, and posco.

3. Compound verbs which change a of the present into i, have e in the supine; as, facio, per-ficio; supine, perfectum. Except verbs ending in do, go; with the compounds of habeo, pluceo, salio, sapio, and statuo.

4. Verbs which are defective in the perfect, likewise want the supine.

5. The following changes, which happen to the preposition, and to the simple verb, in a state of composition, merit attention.

1st. A is used in composition before m and r. Ab is used before vowels, and d, f, h, j, l, n, r, s. Before fēro and fugio, it becomes au; as, aufēro, aufugio. Abs is used before c and t; as, abscedo, abstūli.

2d. Ad changes d into the first letter of the simple verb beginning with a, f, g, l, n, p, r, s, t; as, accurro, afficio, aggēro. In some writers, it remains unaltered; as, adficio.

3d. Am (i. e. ambi, from ἀμφί, circum), before c, q, f, h, is changed into an as, anquīro, anhēlo. Sometimes it assumes its own b; as, ambio.

4th. Circum remains unaltered. The m is sometimes charged; as, circumto for circundo; or omitted; as, circuco for circumet.

5th. Con, before a vowel or h drops the n; as, coaleo, cohibeo; before l, its n becomes l; and before b, m, p, it becomes m; and before r, it changes n into r; as, colligo, combūbo, conmeo, compāro, corripio. With ūro, b is inserted after con, making combūro.

6th. Di is used before d, g, l, m, n, v; as, didūco, diglādiōr. Dis and sometimes di are used before r; as, dirumpo, dirumpo; likewise before j; as, disjudico, dijudico. Dis is used before c, p, q, s, t; as, discumbo, dispello. Before sp and st, s is removed; and before f, it is changed into f; as, discipio, disto, diffiteor. Before a vowel, it assumes r; as, dīrimo, from imo.

7th. E is found before b, d, g, l, m, n, r, and before j and v; as, eb̄bo, ēlūco, ejicio, ev̄ho. Ex is used before vowels, and also before h, c, p, q, t, s; as, ex̄aro, exhibeo, excutio; before f, x becomes f; as, efficio.

8th. In sometimes changes n into the first letter of the simple verb; as, in̄ūdo; but before b, m, p, it changes n into m; as, in̄b̄bo, in̄mineo, in̄pleo.

9th. Ob generally remains unaltered. The b is sometimes omitted, as in̄utto; or changed into the first letter of the simple verb, as off̄ero.

10th. Re assumes d before d, also before a vowel, or h; as, red̄do, red̄āmo, redeo, redhibeo. Pro, likewise, sometimes inserts d, as in prodeo.

11th. Sub changes b into the initial consonant of the simple word, before c, f, g, m, p, r; as, succ̄edo, suff̄ero, sugḡero. Submitto and sum̄mitto, submoveo and sum̄moveo, are both used.

12th. Trans is generally contracted into tra, before d, j, n; as, tr̄ādo, tr̄ajiō, tr̄āno; and sometimes before l and m; as, traluceo, tr̄ameo. Post becomes pos in postūli. Few if any changes take place in the other prepositions. Other prefixes consist of verbs, as in calesfacio, of caleo; of adverbs, as in benefacio, from bene; of participles and adjectives, as in mansuefacio from mansuetus, magnif̄ico from magnus; of substantives, as in signif̄ico, from signum; of a preposition and noun, as in animadverto, from ad and animus, with verto. §

§ 81. LIST OF VERBS IRREGULAR IN THE PERFECT AND SUPINE.

[Owing to the irregularity of many verbs in the perfect and supine in the third conjugation, and of not a few in the other conjugations also, no rules that could be given would be of much practical utility. The only effectual way to attain accuracy and readiness in the conjugation of verbs, is, to commit the primary parts, or the conjugation accurately from the Dictionary. To be able to do this, as soon as possible, is of great importance to every scholar; and it is not a task of so great difficulty as might be supposed. The following list contains all the simple verbs that vary, in the perfect and supine, from the general rule. By committing a portion of these to memory every day, to be recited with the ordinary lesson, and repeating this exercise in reviews till the whole is inwrought into the memory, much future labor will be saved; and this can be done in a few weeks, without at all interfering with the regular recitations. When the composition of a verb changes its form, it is noticed at the foot of the page, to which reference is made by numbers.]

FIRST CONJUGATION.

216.—RULE. Verbs of the first conjugation have āvī in the perfect, and ātum in the supine; as,

Amo,	amāre,	amāvī,	amātum,	To love.
Mūto,	mutāre,	mutāvī,	mutātum,	To change.

EXCEPTIONS.

The tenses of some verbs included in the lists of Exceptions are also found, especially in the earlier authors, conjugated according to the General Rules. The form here given is that which is in common use

Pres	Inf.	Perf.	Sup.
Do, <sup>1</sup>	dāre,	dēdī,	dātum,	To give.
Sto, <sup>2</sup>	stāre,	stētī,	stātum,	To stand.
Lāvo,	{ lavāre, lavēre, }	{ lāvī,	{ lōtum, lautum, lavātum,	{ To wash.
Pōto,	potāre,	potāvī,	{ pōtum, or potātum,	{ To drink.
Jūvo, <sup>3</sup>	juvāre,	jūvī,	jūtum,	To assist
Cūbo, <sup>4</sup>	cubāre,	cubui,	cubitum,	To lie.

<sup>3</sup> The supine jūtum is doubtful, as the future participle is juvatūrus. Adjūvo has adjūtum only, and adjutūrus.

<sup>4</sup> In the same manner, those compounds are conjugated which do not assume an m; as, accūbo, "to lie next to;" excūbo, "to watch;" incūbo, "to lie upon;" recūbo, "to lie down again;" secūbo, "to lie apart." The compounds which assume an m belong to the third conjugation, and have vī and itum in the perfect and supine; as, incambo, incubui, incubitum, "to lie upon."

SECOND CONJUGATION.

217.—RULE. Verbs of the Second Conjugation have ui in the perfect, and itum in the supine; as,

Moneo,	monēre,	monui,	monitum,	To advise.
Habeo, <sup>1</sup>	habēre,	habui,	habĭtum,	To have.

EXCEPTIONS.

Intransitives which have ui in the perfect, want the supine; as, splendeo splendui, "to shine;" madeo, madui, "to be wet."

<sup>8</sup> Discrēpo, "to differ," and incrēpo, "to chide," have sometimes āvī and ātum, as well as ui and itum. Incrēpo seldom has the latter form.

<sup>9</sup> Enīco, "to shine forth," has emicui, emicātum; and dimīco, "to fight," has dimicāvī (rarely dimicui), dimicātum.

<sup>10</sup> Some of the compounds of frico have the participles formed from the regular supine in ātum; as, confricātus, infricātus.

<sup>11</sup> Enēco, "to kill," and internēco, "to destroy," have also ui and ectum; the participle of enēco is usually enectus.

<sup>12</sup> Duplico, "to double;" multiplico, "to multiply;" replico, "to unfold;" and supplico, "to entreat humbly," have āvī and ātum. The other compounds of plico have either ui and itum, or āvī and ātum; as, applicō, "to apply," applicui, applicitum, or applicāvī, applicātum. Explico, in the sense of explain, has āvī and ātum; in the sense of unfold, it has ui and itum.

The following Intransitives have ui and itum, according to the general rule :

Caleo, to be hot.

Careo, to want.

Jaceo, to lie.

Lateo,<sup>2</sup> to lie hid.

Liceo, to be valued.

Mereo, to deserve.

Coaleo, to grow together.

Doleo, to grieve.

Noceo, to hurt.

Pareo, to appear.

Placeo, to please.

Valeo, to be in health

Solvo,	solvere,	solvi,	solutum,	To loose.

<sup>51</sup> Curro, when compounded with circum, re, sub, and trans, seldom takes the reduplication. The other compounds sometimes take the reduplication, and sometimes not.

<sup>53</sup> The compounds of sero which retain the sense of "planting" and "sowing," have sevi and situm; as consero, consēvi, consitum, "to plant together." Those which adopt a different signification have serui and sertum; as, assero, asserui, assertum, "to claim." The latter class of compounds properly belongs to the old verb sero, "to knit," "to plait."

<sup>54</sup> The compounds of verto are conjugated in the same manner, except revertor, "to return," which is often used as a deponent verb; and divertor, "to turn aside," and prævertor, "to outrun," which are likewise deponent, but want the perfect participle.

<sup>55</sup> Sisto, "to stand still" (an intransitive verb), has neither perfect nor supine. The compounds have stiti and stitum; as, assisto, astiti, astitum, "to stand by." But these are seldom found in the supine.

Fulcio,	fulcire,	fulsi,	fultum,	To prop.
Ferio,	ferire,	_____	_____	To strike.

The following verbs have the perfect formed regularly, but want the supine:

Cæcutio, to be dim-sighted.	Gestio, to show one's joy by the gestures of the body.
Dementio, to be mad.	Ineptio, to play the fool.
Feroceo, to be fierce.
Glocio, to cluck as a hen.

(For desiderative verbs which belong to this conjugation, see 227-3.)

<sup>2</sup> The compounds of salio have generally suui, sometimes silii, or silivi, in the perfect, and sultum in the supine; as, transilio, transilui, transilii, or transilivi, transultum, "to leap over." Abultum, circumsultum, and pro-sultum, are scarcely used.

<sup>3</sup> The compounds of farcio change a into e; as, refercio, referfi referatum, "to fill up."

§ 82. LIST OF DEPONENT VERBS IRREGULAR IN THE PERFECT PARTICIPLE.

220.—RULE. Depone it and common verbs form the perfect participle in the same manner as if the active voice existed. 207, Obs. 3.

To this rule, there are no exceptions in the first conjugation.

EXCEPTIONS IN THE SECOND CONJUGATION.

Reor,	rēri,	rātus,	To think.

Expergisor,	expergisci,	experrectus,	To awake.
Morior, <sup>6</sup>	mōri,	mortuus,	To die.

<sup>2</sup> The compounds of fateor change a into i, and have fessus; as, confiteor, confessus, "to confess." Infiteor, "to deny," wants the perfect participle.

<sup>4</sup> Nītor, when compounded with con, in, ob, re, sub, has nīxus oftener than nīsus. Adnītor, "to lean to," has either, indifferently. Enītor, in the sense of "to bring forth," generally takes enīta in the participle.

<sup>6</sup> Morior seems to have originally belonged to the fourth conjugation. The infinitive moriri occurs in Plautus and Ovid; and morimur, with the pu long, is also found. The imperative is morere. This verb, with nasco and orior, has -itūrus in the future participle; as, moritūrus, nascitūrus or itūrus.

Nascor, <sup>7</sup>	nasci,	nātus,	To be born.
Orior, <sup>8</sup>	orīri,	ortus,	To rise.

The following verbs want the perfect participle :

Defetiscor, -i, to be weary.	Reminiscor, -i, to remember.
Irascor, -i, to be angry.	Ringor, -i, to grin like a dog.
Liquor, -i, to melt.	Vescor, -i, to feed.

EXCEPTIONS IN THE FOURTH CONJUGATION.

Metior,	metiri,	mensus,	To measure.
Ordior,	ordiri,	orsus,	To begin.
Experior,	experiri,	expertus,	To try.
Opperior,	oppariri,	opertus,	To wait.

§ 83. IRREGULAR VERBS.

221.—IRREGULAR VERBS are those in which some of the secondary parts are not formed from the primary, according to the rules for regular verbs.

The irregular verbs are six; namely, sum, eo, queo, volo, fēro, and fiō. Their compounds are irregular, also.

SUM has been inflected already, 186. After the same manner are inflected its compounds, ad-, ab-, de-, inter-, ob-, præ-, sub-, super-sum; as, adsum, adesse, adfui, &c. Insum wants the perfect.

1. PROSUM, "to do good," inserts d where the simple verb begins with e. It is inflected thus :

Prōsum,	prodesse,	profui,	To do good.

SUPINES.

PR. Iens , Gen. euntis .	Eundum .	1. Itum .
FUT. Itūrus, a, um .	Eundi, &amp;c.	2. Itu .

The compounds of eo are conjugated after the same manner; ad-, ab-, ex-, co-, in-, inter-, ob-, re-d-, sub-, per-, præ-, ante-, pro-d-eo; only in the perfect, and the tenses formed from it, they are usually contracted; thus, adeo, adire, adii (seldom adivi), aditum, "to go to;" perf. adii, adiisti, or adisti, &c., adiērā, adiērīm, &c. So likewise veneo, venii, —, "to be sold" (compounded of vēnum and eo). But ameio, ire, ivi, itum, "to surround," is a regular verb of the fourth conjugation.

Eo, like other intransitive verbs, is often rendered in English under a passive form; thus, it, "he is going," ivit, "he is gone;" ivērat, "he was gone;" ivērit, "he may be gone," or "shall be gone." So, venit, "he is coming;" vēnit, "he is come;" venērat, "he was come;" &c. In the passive voice, these verbs, for the most part, are used only impersonally; as, itur ab illo, "he is going;" ventum est ab illis, "they are come." We find some of the compounds of eo, however, used personally; as, pericūla adeuntur, "—are undergone." Cic. Libri sibyllini aditi sunt, "—were looked into." Liv. Flūmen pedibus transiri potest. CÆS. Inimicitiae subeuntur. Cic.

Queo, "I can," and nequeo, "I cannot," are conjugated in the same way as eo; only they want the imperative and the gerunds, and the participles are seldom used.

SUPINE

2. Factu.

Obs. 2. The third person singular of fi is often used impersonally; as fit, "it happens;" fiĕbat, "it happened."

Obs. 3. Fio is used as the passive of facio, from which it takes the participles. The compounds of facio which retain a have fio in the passive; as, calefacio, "I warm;" calefio, "I become warm," "I am warmed," &c. But those compounds which change facio into ficio have the regular passive in ficio; as, conficio, conficio, &c.

9. To irregular verbs may be added ĕdo, "to eat." Though this is a regular verb of the third conjugation, it has an irregular form resembling sum in the present indicative, imperfect subjunctive, the imperative, and the present infinitive; thus,

Edo, edĕre, or esse, ĕdi, ĕsum, To eat.

§ 84. DEFECTIVE VERBS.

222.—DEFECTIVE VERBS are those in which some of the parts are wanting.

1. These three, ōdi, cœpi, and memini, are used only in the preterite tenses, that is, in the perfect, and the tenses derived from it; and for this reason, they are called PRETERITE VERBS.

Obs. 1. Cœpi has a present, as well as a perfect signification; and hence cœpĕram has the sense of the imperfect, as well as of the pluperfect; and cœpĕro, of the future, as well as of the future perfect; thus, cœpi, "I begin," or "I have begun;" cœpĕram, "I began," or "I had begun;" cœpĕro, "I shall begin," or "I shall have begun;" and so of the subjunctive.

Obs. 2. Odi and memīni have the sense only of the present, imperfect, and future; as, ōdi, "I hate;" odĕram, "I hated;" odĕro, "I will hate."

2. The parts of these verbs in use are as follows, through all their persons and numbers; viz:

Odi,            odĕram,        odĕro,        odĕrim,        odissem,        odisse

PARTICIPLES, ōsus, osūrus.

Ōepi,            ōepĕram,        ōepĕro,        ōepĕrim,        ōepissem,        ōepisse.

PARTICIPLES, ōeptus, ōeptūrus.

Memīni,        meminĕram,        meminĕro,        meminĕrim,        meminissem,        meminisse.

IMPERATIVE, memento, mementōte.

3. The verb nōvi is also used as a preterite, having like ōdi and memīni only the sense of the present, the imperfect, and future. It differs from the others, however, in having a present, nosco, which properly has an inceptive sense, meaning "I begin to know," "I learn;" hence nōvi, "I have learned," that is, "I know."

The parts of nōvi in use are as follows; viz;

Nōvi,            novĕram,        novĕro,        novĕrim,        novissem,        novisse;
Contracted, novĕram,        ————        novĕrim,        novissem,        novisse.

4. There are many verbs, not usually considered among defectives, which want certain tenses, or numbers, or persons; thus, do, "I give," has neither dor nor der. Fāri, "to speak," with its compounds, is used only by the poets, and by them chiefly in the third person, fātur; the imperative fāre; and the participle fātus. The ablative gerund, fundo, occurs in a passive sense.

Furĕre, "to be mad," wants the first person singular, and the second person plural of the present, and probably all the future of the indicative, the imperative, and also the perfect and supine.

5. The following defective verbs are those which most frequently occur. Aio, "I say;"—inquam, "I say," which is used only between words quoted, and never stands at the beginning;—fōrem, "I should be;" the same as essem;—āve, and salve, "hail;"—Cĕdo, "tell thou," or "give me;"—quāso, "I beseech," originally the same as quero. It is used commonly as an interjection

The parts of these verbs remaining are the following .

7. QUÆSO, I beseech.

Ind.	PR.	Quæso;	quæsūmus
-------------	-----	--------	----------

6. Ausim, faxim, and faxo, sometimes called defective verbs, are properly old forms of tenses; ausim being put for ausērim, from audeo, "to dare" and faxim and faxo, for fecērim and fecēro, from facio. So also āge and agite, "come," are imperatives from āgo, in a somewhat different sense, just as āve, "hail," is an imperative from aveo, "to be well."

223.--§ 85. IMPERSONAL VERBS.

1. IMPERSONAL VERBS are those which are used only in the third person singular, and do not admit of a personal subject or nominative before them.

2. Impersonal verbs, when translated literally into English, have before them the neuter pronoun it; as, delectat, "it delights;" dēcet, "it becomes;" contingit, "it happens;" evēnit, "it comes to pass;" &c. They are inflected thus:

	1st Conj.	2d Conj.	3d Conj.	4th Conj.
Ind. PR.	Delectat,	Dēcet,	Contingit,	Evēnit,
IMP.	Delectābat,	Decēbat,	Contingēbat,	Eveniēbat,
PER.	Delectāvit,	Decuit,	Contigit,	Evēnit,
PLU.	Delectavērat,	Decuērat,	Contigērat,	Evenērat,

F.-P.	Delectavērit.	Decuērit.	Contigērit.	Evenērit.
Sub. PR.	Delectet,	Deceat,	Contingat,	Eveniat,
IMP.	Delectāret,	Decēret,	Contingēret,	Eveniret,
PER.	Delectavērit,	Decuērit,	Contigērit,	Evenērit,
PLU.	Delectavisset.	Decuisset.	Contigisset.	Evenisset.
Inf. PR.	Delectāre,	Decēre,	Contingēre,	Evenire,
PER.	Delectavisse.	Decuisse.	Contigisse.	Evenisse.

3. Most Latin verbs may be used impersonally in the passive voice, especially intransitive verbs, which otherwise have no passive; as, pugnātur, "it is fought;" favētur, "it is favored;" currītur, "it is run;" venītur, "it is come;" from pugno, juveo, curro, and venio. Thus,

	1st Conj.	2d Conj.	3d Conj.	4th Conj.
Ind. PR.	Pugnātur,	Favētur,	Currītur,	Venītur,
IMP.	Pugnābātur,	Favebātur,	Currebātur,	Veniēbātur,
PER.	Pugnātum est, <sup>1</sup>	Fautum est, <sup>1</sup>	Cursum est, <sup>1</sup>	Ventum est, <sup>1</sup>
PLU.	Pugnātum ērat, <sup>2</sup>	Fautum ērat, <sup>2</sup>	Cursum ērat, <sup>2</sup>	Ventum ērat, <sup>2</sup>
FUT.	Pugnābitur,	Favebitur,	Curretur,	Veniētur,
F.-P.	Pugnātum ērit. <sup>3</sup>	Fautum ērit. <sup>3</sup>	Cursum ērit. <sup>3</sup>	Ventum ērit. <sup>3</sup>
Sub. PR.	Pugnētur,	Faveatur,	Currātur,	Veniātur,
IMP.	Pugnārētur,	Faverētur,	Currerētur,	Venirētur,
PER.	Pugnātum sit, <sup>3</sup>	Fautum sit, <sup>3</sup>	Cursum sit, <sup>3</sup>	Ventum sit, <sup>3</sup>
PLU.	Pugnātum esset. <sup>4</sup>	Fautum esset. <sup>4</sup>	Cursum esset. <sup>4</sup>	Ventum esset. <sup>4</sup>
Inf. PR.	Pugnāri,	Favēri,	Curri,	Venīri,
PER.	Pugnātum esse, <sup>5</sup>	Fautum esse, <sup>5</sup>	Cursum esse, <sup>5</sup>	Ventum esse,
FUT.	Pugnātum iri.	Fautum iri.	Cursum iri.	Ventum iri

4. Grammarians reckon only ten real impersonal verbs, and all in the second conjugation; namely,

Dēcet, deceit, &c.,

It becomes, it became, &c.

Lībet, libuit or libitum est, &c.,

Licet, licitum or licitum est, &c.,	It is lawful, it was lawful, &amp;c.
Miseret, miseruit or miseritum est, &c.,	It pities, it pitied, &amp;c.
Oportet, oportuit, &c.,	It behooves, it was incumbent on, &amp;c.
Piget, piguit or pigitum est, &c.,	It grieves, it grieved, &amp;c.
Pœnitet, pœnituit, &c.,	It repents, it repented, &amp;c.
Pudet, puduit or puditum est, &c.,	It shames, it shamed, &amp;c.
Tædet, tæduit or tæsum est, &c.,	It wearies, it wearied, &amp;c.
Liquet,	It appears. (This verb has no perf.)

But many other verbs are used impersonally in all the conjugations.

5. Under impersonal verbs, may be comprehended those which express the operations or appearances of nature; as, fulgurat, "it lightens;" fulminat, tonat, "it thunders;" grandinat, "it hails;" so, gelat, pluit, ningit, lucescit, advesperascit, &c.

6. Impersonal verbs are applied to any person or number, by putting that which stands before personal verbs, as their nominative, after the impersonals, in the case which they govern; as,

Placet mihi,	It pleases me, or I please.
Placet tibi,	It pleases thee, or thou pleasest.
Placet illi,	It pleases him, or he pleases.
Placet nobis,	It pleases us, or we please.
Placet vobis,	It pleases you, or you please.
Placet illis,	It pleases them, or they please.

So, pugnatur a me, — a te, — ab illo, &c., "it is fought by me," — "by thee," — "by him;" that is, I fight, thou fightest, he fights, &c. Hence, as the meaning of a transitive verb may be expressed by either the active or the passive voice, so, when an intransitive verb is translated by a verb considered transitive in English (132, Obs. 4), the English passive form of that verb is expressed, in Latin, by the passive used impersonally: thus, actively, faveo tibi, "I favor you;" passively, favetur tibi a me, "you are favored by me," and so of others.

7. Impersonal verbs, not being used in the imperative, take the subjunctive in its stead; as, delectet, "let it delight." In the passive voice, their participles are used only in the neuter gender. The gerunds and supines are but seldom used.

224.—§ 86. EXERCISES ON IMPERSONALS.

(For the meaning of the impersonals used in the following exercises, see 223, Nos. 2, 3, 4.)

1. Give the designation, the place found, the translation; thus, delectat, a verb impersonal, first conjugation, found in the present indicative, active: "it delights."

Delectābit, decēbat, decēbit, decēret, contingit, continget, contigit, contigērit, evēnit, evēnit, eveniet, eveniat, pugnabātur, pugnātum est, pugnētur, pugnārētur, favētur, factum sit, factum fuērit, ventum est, ventum ērit;—libet, libuit, licitum est, miseret, miseritum est, piget, pūdet, fulgūrat, tōnat, grandinābat, grandinābit nixit, &c.

2. Give the designation, &c., as in No. 1, and translate as the word following the impersonal requires, according to 223-6; thus, delectat me, delectat, a verb impersonal, first conjugation, present indicative, active: "it delights me," or "I delight."

Delectābit me, te, illum, nos, vos, illos; dēcet vos, decēret vos; plācet tibi; favētur vōbis, favebītur nōbis (a te, by you); pugnabītur ab illis; venītur a te, ventum est ab illis,—a vōbis,—a nōbis,—ab illo,—a te,—a me; piget me; licet mihi, licēbit vōbis, licitum est illis; miseret me, miseruit te; placuit vōbis,—nobis,—illis; miseret nos, &c.

3. Render the following English into Latin, by the impersonals; thus, "I delight," delectat me, literally, "it delights me."—N. B. The noun or pronoun, after miseret, paritet, pūdet, tadet, piget, dēcet, delectat, and oporet, must be put in the accusative, 419 and 423. Other impersonals are followed by the dative of the object, when they have one; and when they express any thing done by another, the agent or doer, when expressed, is put in the ablative preceded by a or ab, as in 223-6.

EXERCISES.—It becomes, it has repented, it is fought, it pleases, it is favored; it becomes me, I repent (it repents me), I fight (it is fought by me), you are favored (it is favored to you), you are favored by me; I repented, they have repented, you will repent; they are favored by us,—by you,—by me, &c.; we are favored by them,—by you; they come (it is come by them). they have come, we will come; we run, we will run; if (si) you please, if they please; it was allowed to us, we were allowed; it delights us, or we are delighted, they are delighted; it thunders, it lightens, it hailed, &c.

§ 87. REDUNDANT VERBS.

225 — REDUNDANT VERBS are those which have more than one form of the same part, or which have different forms to express the same sense; as, assentio and assentior, “to assent;” fabrico or fabricor, “to frame;” mereo and mereor, “to desert;” ēdis and es, “thou eatest;” ēdit and est, “he eats;” from ēdo, &c.

Redundant verbs, in Latin, are chiefly those which are used in two different conjugations; for example,

1. Some are usually of the first conjugation, and sometimes of the third; as, lāvo, lavāre; and lāvo, lavēre, “to wash.”

2. Some are usually of the second conjugation, and sometimes of the third; as,

Ferveo, fervēre;	and	fervo, fervēre, to boil.
Fulgeo, fulgēre;	“	fulgo, fulgēre, to shine.
Strideo, stridēre;	“	strido, stridēre, to creak, &c.

3. Some are commonly of the third conjugation, and sometimes of the fourth; as,

Fodio, fodēre;	and	fodio, fodire, to dig.
Sallo, sallēre;	“	sallio, sallire, to salt, &c.

4. Cieo, ciēre is commonly of the second conjugation, but sometimes it is cio, cire in the fourth, “to stir up.”

§ 88. DERIVATIVE VERBS.

Verbs are derived either from nouns, or from other verbs.

226.—I. Verbs derived from nouns are called Denominatives; as, cæno, “to sup;” laudo, “to praise;” fraudo, “to defraud;” lapido, “to throw stones;” opëror, “to work,” &c., from cæna, laus, fraus, lāpis, opus, &c.

But when they express imitation or resemblance, they are called Imitatives; as, patrisco, Græcor, bubūlo, cornīcor, &c.. “I imitate,” or “resemble my father;”—“a Grecian.”—“an owl,”—“a crow;” from pāter, Græcus, būbo, cornix.

227.—II. Verbs derived from other verbs, are chiefly the following; viz.:

1. FREQUENTATIVES. These express frequency of action, and are all of the first conjugation. They are formed from the last supine, by changing ātu into īto, in the verbs of the first conjugation; and u into o, in verbs of the other three conjugations; thus,

	Last Sup.	Freq.
1st. Clāmo, to cry;	clamātu, hence	clamīto, to cry frequently.
2d. Terreo, to frighten;	terrītu, “	terrīto, to frighten often.
3d. Verto, to turn;	versu, “	verso, to turn frequently.
4th. Dormio, to sleep;	dormītu, “	dormīto, to sleep often.

In like manner, deponent verbs form frequentatives in or, as, mīnor, “to threaten;” of which in the active voice, the latter supine would be minātu, and hence minītor, “to threaten frequently,” “—ever and anon.”

Obs. 1. Some frequentatives are formed in an irregular manner; as, nāto, from no; noscīto, from nosco; scītor or rather sciscītor, from scio; pavīto, from paveo; sector, from sēquor; loquītor, from lōquor. So querīto, fundīto, agīto, fluīto, &c., which formed regularly would be quæsīto, fūso, acto, fluxo, &c.

Obs. 2. From frequentative verbs are also formed other frequentatives; as, curro, curso, cursīto; pello, pulso, pulsīto, or, by contraction, pulto; capio, capto, capīto; cāno, canto, canīto; defendo, defenso, defensīto; dico, dicto, dicīto; &c.

Obs. 3. Frequentatives do not always express frequency of action. Many of them have much the same sense with their primitives, or express the meaning with greater force.

2. INCEPTIVE VERBS. These mark the beginning or continued increase of an action or state. They are formed by adding eo to the second person singular of the present indicative; thus,

1st	Conj.	Lābo,	lābas;	Inceptive,	labasco.
2d	“	Caleo,	cāles;	“	calesco.
3d	“	Trēmo,	trēmī;	“	tremisco.
4th	“	Obdormio,	obdormīs;	“	obdormisco.

Note.—But all verbs in sco are not inceptive. Inceptives are also formed from substantives and adjectives; as, puerasco, from puer; dulcesco, from dulcis; juvenesco, from juvēnis.

Obs. 4. All inceptives are intransitives, and of the third conjugation. They properly want both the perfect and the supine, unless very rarely, when they borrow them from their primitives.

3. DESIDERATIVE VERBS are those which signify a desire, or intention of doing a thing. They are formed from the latter supine by adding rio, and shortening u; as, coenaturio, "I desire to sup," from coeno, last supine, coenātu. They are all of the fourth conjugation, and want both perfect and supine, except these three; viz. : esurio, esurire, esurivi, esuritum, "to desire to eat;" parturio, parturire, parturivi, "to be in travail;" and nupturio, nupturire, nupturivi, "to desire to be married."

4. DIMINUTIVES, which represent an action as little or insignificant. They are formed from the present by changing o, eo, and io, into illo; and they are all of the first conjugation; as, canto, cantillo, conscribo, conscribillo, sorbeo, sorbillo.

5. Some verbs in SSO are called INTENSIVE; as, capesso, "I take;" facesso, "I do;" petesso, or petisso, "I seek earnestly."

§ 89. ADVERBS.

228.—AN ADVERB is a word joined to a verb, an adjective, or another adverb, to modify it, or to denote some circumstance respecting it.

229.—Adverbs may be considered in respect of Signification, Derivation, and Comparison.

I. THE SIGNIFICATION OF ADVERBS.

230.—In respect of signification, adverbs may be arranged, in Latin, under the following heads:

1 ADVERBS OF PLACE, comprehending those which signify :

- 1st Motion or rest in a place; as, ubi, "where;" hic, "here;" illic, "there;" intus, "within;" fõris, "without;" ubique, "every where;" &c.
- 2d Motion to a place; as, quo? "whither?" huc, "hither;" illuc, isthuc, "thither;" cõ, "to that place;" alio, "to another place;" &c.
- 3d Motion from a place; as, unde, "whence;" hinc, "hence;" illinc, indc, "thence;" superns, "from above;" &c.

4th. Motion through or by a place; as, quâ? "which way?" hunc "this way;" aliâ, "another way;" &c.

2. ADVERBS OF TIME; as, nunc, "now;" hodie, "to-day;" tunc, "then;" nūper, "lately;" mox, "by and by;" semper, "always;" &c.

3. ADVERBS OF QUANTITY; as, pārum, "little;" multum, "much;" pēne, "almost;" quanto, "how much;" &c.

4. ADVERBS OF QUALITY; as, bēne, "well;" māle, "ill;" fortiter, "bravely;" and many others derived from adjectives or participles.

5. ADVERBS OF MANNER (viz. of action or condition), including those which express exhortation, affirmation, negation, granting, forbidding, interrogation, doubt, contingency, &c.; as, profecto, "truly;" non, haud, "not;" cur? "why?" quāre, "wherefore;" &c.

6. ADVERBS OF RELATION, or such as express circumstances of comparison, resemblance, order, assemblage, separation, &c.; as, potius, "rather;" Ita, sic, "so;" simul, "together;" scorsum, "apart;" &c.

II. DERIVATION AND COMPOSITION OF ADVERBS.

231.—The Simple and Primitive adverbs are but few in number; as, non, "not;" ibi, "there;" mox, "presently;" tunc, "then;" &c.

232.—The Derivative adverbs are numerous, and are formed in the following manner:

1. Adverbs derived from adjectives of the first and second declensions, generally end in e; as, alte, "highly," from altus; libère, "freely," from liber. Sometimes they end in o, um, or ter; as, tūto, safely," from tūtus, tantum, "so much," from tantus; dūre and duriter, "hardly," from dūrus.

2. Adverbs derived from adjectives of the third declension generally end in ter; as, feliciter, "happily," from felix. Sometimes in e; as, facile, "easily," from facilis; and one ends in o, namely, omnino, "altogether," from omnis.

The neuter gender of adjectives is often used adverbially; as, rēcente, "recently," for recenter; torva, "sternly," for torve; dulce, "sweetly," for dulciter; thus, Horace, dulce ridens, "sweetly smiling;" &c.

3. Adverbs derived from nouns generally end in im or itus; as, virtim, "man by man," from vir; funditus, "from the ground," from fundus.

Many adverbs in im, however, are derived from participles; as, sensim, "by degrees," from sensus (sentio, "I perceive"). A few in itus are derived from adjectives; as, antiquitus, from antiquus; &c.

4. Adverbs are formed by composition in various ways; two or more words forming a phrase, or part of a sentence, and syntactically combined, being formed into one word; as, hodie, "to-day," from hoc die; scilicet, "truly," from scire licet; quomodo, "how," from quo modo; quamobrem, "wherefore," from quam ob rem; &c.

Obs. 1. The adverb is not an essential part of speech. It only serves to express in one word what would otherwise have required two or more; as, sapienter, "wisely," for cum sapientia; semper, "always," for in omni tempore; &c. Indeed, similar phrases, used to express circumstances of time, place, manner, order, and the like, constitute what may be called adverbial phrases, or clauses, though the words of which they consist are to be parsed separately, and combined according to the rules of syntax.

Obs. 2. Some adverbs are used to denote time, place, or order, according as the connection requires; as, ubi, "where," or "when;" inde, "from that place," "from that time," "after that," "next;" hactenus, "hitherto," "thus far," applied indifferently to place, time, or order.

Obs. 3. Some adverbs of time, apply indifferently to the past, the present, or the future; as jam, "already," "now," "by and by;" olim, "long ago," "sometime hereafter." Some adverbs of place are equally various in their use; as, esse peregrè, "to be abroad;" ire peregrè, "to go abroad;" redire peregrè, "to return from abroad."

III. COMPARISON OF ADVERBS.

233.—Adverbs derived from adjectives are generally compared like their primitives. The positive commonly ends in e, o, or ter; the comparative, in ius; and the superlative, in ime; as,

Positive.	Comp.	Super.
Alte, highly;	altius,	altissime.
Fortiter, bravely;	fortius,	fortissime.
Acrius, sharply;	acrius,	acerrime.
Libere, freely;	liberius,	liberrime.
Tuto, safely;	tutius,	tutissime.

234.—The following adverbs are compared irregularly like the actives from which they are derived; viz

Positive.	Comp.	Super.
Bene, well;	melius,	optime.
Facile, easily;	facilius,	facillime.
Male, badly;	pejus,	perissime.
Multum, much	plus,	plurimum.
Parm, little;	minus,	{ minime.
		{ minimum.
Prope, near;	propius,	proxime.

Positive wanting.

Māgis, more, maxīme; ocius, more swiftly, ocissīme prius, sooner primo or primum; potius, rather, potissimum.

Comparative wanting.

Pēne, almost, penissīme; nūper, lately, nuperrīme nōve or novīter newly, novissīme; merito, deservedly, meritissīme.

Superlative wanting.

Sātis. enough, satius; sēcus, otherwise, secius.

Two Adverbs not derived from adjectives are also compared; namely diu, "long," diutius, diutissīme; and sæpe, "often," sæpius, sæpissīme.

§ 90. PREPOSITIONS.

235.—A PREPOSITION is a word which shows the relation between a noun or pronoun following it, and some other word in the sentence.

The preposition, as its name imports, stands before the noun or pronoun which it governs.—In Latin,

1. Twenty-eight Prepositions govern the Accusative; viz:

Ad, to, at, towards.	Inter, between, among, during.
Apud, at, near, with.	Intra, within.
Ante, before (of time, place, or rank).	Juxta, near, beside.
Adversus, } against, towards.	Ob, for, on account of, before.
Adversum, }	Pēnes, in the power of.
Circa, } around, about.	Per, through, during, by.
Circum, }	Pōne, behind.
Circiter, about (of time indefinitely).	Post, behind, after, since.
Cis, } on this side, within.	Præter, besides (passing by), beyond, besides, except.
Citra, }	Propter, near, on account of.
Contra, against, opposite.	Secundum, along, according to.
Erga, towards.	Supra, above.
Extra, beyond, out of.	Trans, across, over, beyond.
Infrā, beneath.	Ultra, beyond.

2. Fifteen Prepositions govern the ablative; viz:

A,	}	from, by, after, &c.	E,	}	out of, from, after, by.
Ab,			Ex,
Abs,	}	without the know- ledge of.	Pālam,	}	before, in comparison with, on account of.
Absque,			Præ,
Clam,	}	without the know- ledge of.	Pro,	}	before, for, according to
Cōram,			Sine,
Cum,	}	with.	Tēnus,	}	as far as, up to.
De,

3. Four Prepositions govern the Accusative or Ablative; viz.

With the Accusative :		With the Ablative :
In	into, towards, against.	In	upon, in, among.
Suo,	under (motion to), about.	Sub,	under (motion or rest), at, near.
Sūper,	above, over, beyond.	Sūper,	upon, concerning.
Subter,	under.	Subter,	under.

236.—OBSERVATIONS.

1. A is used before consonants; ab, before vowels, and h, j, r, s, and sometimes l; abs, before t and qu. E is used before consonants.

2. Tēnus is placed after its case; and also cum, when joined to me, te, se, quo, qui, and quibus; as, mēcum, &c. Clam sometimes governs the accusative; as, clam patre, or patrem.

3. The adverbs prōpe, "nigh;" usque, "as far as;" versus, "towards," are often followed by an accusative governed by ad understood, and sometimes expressed. So also prōcul, "far," is followed by the ablative governed by a, understood.

4. Prepositions not followed by their case, are to be regarded as adverbs.

5. Prepositions are sometimes combined; as, ex adversus eum locum. Cic. In ante diem, "till the day." Id. Ex ante diem, "from the day." But prepositions compounded together, commonly become adverbs or conjunctions; as, propālam, prōtinus, insūper, &c.

6. A preposition with its case is often used as an adverbial phrase; as, ex animo, "earnestly;" ex adverso, "opposite;" ex improvīso, "suddenly;" extempōre, "off-hand." Quamobrem (quam ob rem), "wherefore;" quapropter (quæ propter); quocirca (quod circa), &c.

7. Prepositions are either primitive; as, ad, apud, ante, &c.; or derivative; as, adversum, from the adjective adversus; secundum, from secundus. They are either simple; as, ad, ante, abs; or compound; as, ex adversum, absque; or inseparable; as, am, di or dis, &c. 239-2.

§ 91. PREPOSITIONS IN COMPOSITION.

237.—1. Prepositions are often prefixed to other words, especially to verbs, the meaning of which they generally modify by their own; thus,

238.—1. A, ab, abs, "from;" as, duco, "I lead;" abduco, "I lead away," or "frow;" sometimes it denotes privation; as, amens, "mad."

2. Ad, "to;" as, adduco "I lead to." It is sometimes intensive; as, adāma "I love greatly"

3. De, in composition generally signifies "downward;" as, descendo, "I go down;" decido, "I fall down." Sometimes it is intensive; as, deāmo, "I love greatly;" sometimes it denotes privation; as, despēro, "I despair;" dēmens, "mad."

4. E or ex, "out of," "from;" as, exeo, "I go out." It is sometimes intensive; as, exōro, "I beg earnestly;" sometimes privative; as, exsanguis, "pale;" exspes, "hopeless."

5. In, "into," "in," "against;" as, infēro, "I bring in;" irruo, "I rush against or upon." With adjectives it generally reverses the signification; as, infīdus, "unfaithful;" indignus, "unworthy." In some compounds, it has contrary significations, according as they are participles or adjectives; as, invocātus, "called upon;" "not called upon;" immutātus, "changed," "unchanged."

6. Per, "through," is commonly intensive, especially with adjectives; as, perfacilis, "very easy." With quam, it is strongly intensive; as, per quam facilis, "exceedingly easy." In perfidus, "perfidious," it is negative.

7. Præ, "before," with adjectives is intensive; as, præclārus, "very clear," "very renowned."

8. Pro denotes "forth;" as, prodūco, "I lead forth."

9. Sub often diminishes the signification; as, rideo, "I laugh;" subrideo, "I smile;" albus, "white;" subalbus, "whitish." Sometimes it denotes motion upwards; as, subrigo, "I raise up;" sometimes concealment; as, rapic, "I take;" subripio, "I take secretly," "I steal."

Note.—Prepositions frequently seem to add nothing to the words, with which they are compounded.

Obs. 1. In combining with the simple word, some prepositions frequently undergo a change of form, chiefly for the sake of euphony, for which see 216-5.

INSEPARABLE PREPOSITIONS.

239.—2. The following syllables, am, di, or dis, re, se, con, are called Inseparable Prepositions, because they are never found, except in compound words. Their general signification is as follows :

Am ,	about, around;	as Ambio ,	to surround.
Di , or dis ,	asunder;	“ Divello ,	to pull asunder
Re ,	back, again;	“ Relēgo ,	to read again.
Se ,	apart, or aside;	“ Sepōno ,	to lay aside.
Con ,	together;	“ Coneresco ,	to grow together.

Obs. 1. Some of these syllables, in combining with the simple word, some times vary their form (215–5), and, also, further modify its signification; as

- 1st. Am adds to the verb the general idea of round, round about.
- 2d. Dis, or di, sometimes reverses the meaning of the simple word; as, facilis, “easy;” difficilis, “difficult;” fido, “I trust,” diffido, “I distrust.” Sometimes it increases it; as, cupio, “I desire;” discupio, “I desire much.”
- 3d. Re sometimes reverses the meaning of the simple word; as, clauo, “I shut;” reclādo, “I open.”
- 4th. Se has little variation of meaning. With adjectives, it denotes privation; as, secūrus, “free from care.”
- 5th. Con (for cum) conveys the idea of joint or combined action, and sometimes strengthens the meaning of the word with which it is compounded.

Obs. 2. The syllables ne and ve are also prefixed to words, and have a negative signification; as, fas, “justice;” nēfas, “injustice,” “impiety;” — scio, “I know;” nescio, “I know not;” — sānus, “healthy;” vesānus, “sickly.”

§ 92. INTERJECTIONS.

240.—AN INTERJECTION is a word used in exclamations, to express an emotion of the mind; as, Oh! he! heu! “Ah!” “alas!”

Nouns and adjectives, in the neuter gender, are sometimes used as interjections; as, pax! “be still!” mālum! “with a mischief!” infandum! “O shame!” misèrum! “O wretched!” nēfas! “O the villany!”

Note.—The same interjection is often used to express different emotions, according to its connection; thus, vah, is used to express wonder, grief, joy, or anger.

§ 93. CONJUNCTIONS.

241.--A CONJUNCTION is a word which connects words or sentences; as, et, ac, atque, "and;" sed, "but;" etiam, "also;" &c.

242.—Conjunctions, according to their different significations, may be divided into the following classes:

1. COPULATIVES, or such as connect things that are to be considered jointly; as, ac, atque, et, que, "and;" etiam, quōque, "also;" and sometimes the negative nec, nēque, "nor," "and not;" i. e. when they stand for et, and continue the negation.

2. DISJUNCTIVES, or such as connect things that are to be considered separately; as, aut, seu, sive, ve, vel, "either," "or;" and the negative nēve, neque, "neither," "nor."

3. CONCESSIVES, or such as express a concession; as, etsi, etiamsi, tametsi, licet, quanquam, quamvis, "though," "although."

4. ADVERSATIVES, or such as express a condition; as, at, atqui, autem, ceterum, vērūm, "but;" tāmen, attāmen, veruntāmen, "yet," "although;" verō, "truly."

5. CAUSALS, or such as express a cause or reason; as, enim, etēnim, nam, namque, "for;" quando, quandoquidem, "whereas," "since;" quia, quippe, quod, "because;" quoniam, quoniam (or cūm), "since;" siquidem, "if," "indeed."

6. ILLATIVES, or such as express an inference; as, ergo, idcirco, proinde, quapropter, quārē, quamobrem, quocirca, "therefore."

7. FINALS, or such as denote a purpose, object or result; as, ne, "lest;" quin, "but that;" quominus, "that not;" ut, ūti, "that."

8. CONDITIONALS, or such as express a condition; as, si, sin, "if;" nisi, or ni, "unless;" dummōdo, or dum mōdo, "provided that."

9. SUSPENSIVES, or such as express doubt; as, an, anne, annon, ne, necne, num, utrum, "whether," "whether or not."

Obs. 1. Some words, as, deinde, "thereafter;" denique, "finally;" ceterum "but," "moreover;" videlicet, "to wit;" &c.; may be considered either as adverbs or conjunctions, according as their modifying or connecting power prevails.

Obs. 2. Autem, enim, vērō, quōque, quādem, are never put first in clause or sentence. Que, ve, ne, are always annexed to another word. They are called Enclitics, because, when placed after a long syllable, they make the accent incline to that syllable; as, disci, trōchi; discive, trōchive.

Obs. 3. Conjunctions, like adverbs, are variously compounded with other parts of speech, and with each other; as, atque, idcirco, ideo, namque, nec, or nēque, &c.

PART THIRD.

§ 94. SYNTAX.

243.—SYNTAX is that part of Grammar which treats of the proper arrangement and connection of words in a sentence.

1. A sentence is such an assemblage of words as makes complete sense; as, Man is mortal.

2. A phrase is two or more words rightly put together, but not making complete sense; as, in truth, in a word.

3. Sentences are of two kinds, simple and compound.

4. A simple sentence contains only a single affirmation; as, Life is short.

5. A compound sentence contains two or more simple sentences connected together; as, Life, which is short, should be well employed.

6. Every simple sentence consists of two parts, the subject and the predicate.

7. The subject is that of which something is affirmed. It is either in the nominative case before a finite verb, or in the accusative before the infinitive.

8. The predicate is that which is affirmed of the subject. It is either contained in the verb itself; as, John reads; or it consists of an intransitive verb, with an adjective or noun following it; as, Time is short; they became poor; he is a scholar. An. and Pr. Gr., 594.

9. Both the subject and predicate may be attended by other words called adjuncts, which serve to restrict or modify the meaning of the word with which they may stand connected; as, "An inordinate desire of admiration, often produces a contemptible levity of deportment."

10. When a compound sentence is so framed that the meaning is suspended till the whole be finished, it is called a period.

11. The analysis of sentences is the same in Latin as in English. See § 152, and "Analytical and Practical English Grammar," 591—657.

244.—§ 95. GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF SYNTAX.

1. In every sentence there must be a verb in the indicative, subjunctive, imperative, or infinitive mood; and a subject expressed or understood.

2. Every adjective, adjective pronoun, or participle, must have a substantive expressed or understood, with which it agrees. § 98 and 146.

3. Every relative must have an antecedent, or word to which it refers, and with which it agrees. § 99.

4. Every subject-nominative has its own verb expressed or understood. § 100, 101, 102. The predicate-nominative is usually placed after the substantive verb. § 103.

5. Every finite verb, i. e. every verb in the indicative, subjunctive, or imperative mood, has its own nominative, expressed or understood (§ 101, 102), and when the infinitive has a subject, it is in the accusative. § 145. The infinitive without a subject, does not form a sentence or proposition. § 143.

6. Every oblique case is governed by some word, expressed or understood, in the sentence of which it forms a part; or is used, without government, to express certain circumstances. § 127.

245.—SYNOPSIS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF CASES.

7. The GENITIVE CASE is governed :

1st. By substantives, § 106, Rules VI., VII., and VIII.

2d. By adjectives, § 107. Namely, verbals, &c., R. IX.;—partitives, R. X.;—of plenty, or want, R. XI.

3d. By verbs, § 108. Namely, Sum, R. XII.—Miseror, &c. R. XIII.—Recordor, memini, &c., R. XIV.;—of accusing, &c., § 122, R. XXVII.;—of valuing, R. XXVIII.—Passive verbs, § 126, R. I and II.—Impersonals, § 113, Exc. I and II.

4th. By adverbs, § 135; and—

5th. It is used to express circumstances of place. § 130, R. XXXVI and XXXIX.

8. The DATIVE is governed :

1st. By substantives, § 110.

2d. By adjectives of profit or disprofit, &c., § 111, R. XVI.

3d. By verbs, § 112. Namely, Sum and its compounds, R. I.—Est, R. II.—Certain compound verbs, R. III. and IV.—Verbs signifying to profit or hurt, &c., R. V.—Impersonals, § 113.—Verbs with two datives, § 114.—Verbs of comparing, &c., § 123.—Passive verbs § 126, R. XXXII. and XXXIII.—Gerunds § 147.

4th. By adverbs, § 135.—Interjections, § 117

9. The ACCUSATIVE is governed :

- 1st. By transitive verbs signifying actively, § 116, R. XX.—To these belong recordor memini, &c., § 108.—Verbs governing two cases, § 122; namely, of accusing, R. XXVII.;—valuing, R. XXVIII.;—comparing, &c., § 123;—asking and teaching, § 124;—loading, binding, &c., § 125.—By impersonal verbs, § 113, Exc. II. and III.—By passive verbs, § 126, R. IV.
- 2d. By prepositions, § 136, R. XLVIII., L., LI., LII.
- 3d. It is used to express circumstances of limitation, § 128;—of place, § 130;—of time, § 131;—of measure, § 132.
- 4th. It is put before the infinitive as its subject, § 145.

10. The VOCATIVE is governed by the interjections O, heu, proh, &c. (§ 117); or is used without government, to denote the person addressed.

11. The ABLATIVE is governed :

- 1st. By nouns, § 118.
- 2d. By adjectives; viz. of plenty or want, § 107, R. XI.—Dignus, indignus, &c., § 119.—The comparative degree, § 120.
- 3d. By verbs, § 121; viz. of plenty and scarceness, R. XXV.—Utor abutor, &c., R. XXVI.—Loading, binding, &c., § 125.—Passive verbs, § 126, R. V.
- 4th. By prepositions, § 136, R. XLIX., LI., LII.
- 5th. It is used without a governing word to express circumstances; viz. of limitation, § 128;—of cause, manner, &c., § 129;—of place, § 130; namely, the place in which, R. XXXVI.; from which, R. XXXVIII. and XXXIX.;—of time, § 131, R. XL and XLI.;—of measure, § 132, R. XLII., XLIII.—Of price, § 133.
- 6th. It is used as the case absolute, § 146, R. LX.

246.—CONSTRUCTION OF MOODS.

12. The Indicative, and the Imperative mood are used independently, and without government.

13. The Subjunctive Mood is, for the most part, dependent, and is used,

- 1st. After certain conjunctions, § 140.
- 2d. After the relative in certain connections, § 141, R. LV
- 3d. In oblique discourse, § 141, R. VI.

14. The Infinitive Mood is used,

1st. Without a subject, or as a verbal noun, § 144, and R. LVI, LVII

2d. With a subject in dependent and subordinate clauses, § 145, R. LVIII

15. Participles are construed as adjectives; Gerunds and Supines, as nouns, §§ 146, 147, 148.

16. For the construction of adverbs and conjunctions, see § 134, and § 149.

§ 96. PARTS OF SYNTAX.

247.—The Parts of Syntax are commonly reckoned two: Concord, or agreement, and Government.

248.—CONCORD is the agreement of one word with another, in gender, number, case, or person.

249.—GOVERNMENT is that power which one word has in determining the mood, tense, or case, of another word.

I. CONCORD.

250.—CONCORD, or agreement, is fourfold; viz.:

1. Of a substantive with a substantive;
2. Of an adjective with a substantive;
3. Of a relative with its antecedent;
4. Of a verb with its nominative, or subject.

§ 97 A SUBSTANTIVE WITH A SUBSTANTIVE.

251.—RULE I. Substantives denoting the same person, or thing, agree in case; as,

Cicero orator,	Cicero the orator.
Ciceronis oratoris,	Of Cicero the orator, &c.
Urbs Athene,	The city Athens.
Urbi Athenis,	To the city Athens.

252.—EXPLANATION.—Substantives thus used are said to be in APPPOSITION. The second substantive is added, to express some attributa.

description, or appellative, belonging to the first, and must always be in the same member of the sentence; i. e., they must be both in the subject, or both in the predicate. A substantive predicated of another, though denoting 'the same thing, is not in apposition with it, and does not come under this rule. § 103.

This rule applies to all substantive words, such as personal and relative pronouns, adjectives used substantively, &c.

Nouns in apposition are often connected, in English, by such particles as as, being, for, like, &c.; as, Pater misit me comitem, "My father sent me as a companion," "for a companion," &c.

OBSERVATIONS.

253.—Obs. 1. It is not necessary that nouns in apposition agree in gender, number, or person. In these respects, they are often different; as, Magnam pauperies opprobrium. HOR. Alexin delicias domini. VIRG.

254.—Obs. 2. Two or more nouns in the singular, have a noun in apposition in the plural; as, M. Antonius, C. Cassius, tribuni plēbis, "Marcus Antonius, Caius Cassius, tribunes of the people." Also if the singular nouns be of different genders, the plural in apposition will have the masculine rather than the feminine, if both forms exist; as, Ad Ptolemæum et Cleopatram rēges (not regīnas), legāti missi. LIV.

255.—Obs. 3. The substantive pronoun, having a word in apposition, is frequently omitted; as, Consul dixi (seil. ego), "(I) the consul said."

256.—Obs. 4. The possessive pronoun, being equivalent to the genitive of the personal, has a noun in apposition with it in the genitive: as, pectus tuum, hominis simplicis.

257.—Obs. 5. Sometimes the former noun denotes a whole, of which the noun in apposition expresses the parts; as, Oneraria, pars ad Ægimūrum,—aliæ adversus urbem ipsam delatæ sunt, "The ships of burden were carried, part to Ægimurus,—others against the city itself." So, Quis que pro se queruntur, "They complain each for himself."

258.—Obs. 6. A sentence or clause may supply the place of one of the substantives; as, Cogitet oratorem institui, rem arduam, "Let him consider that an orator is training, a difficult matter."

259.—Obs. 7. A demonstrative pronoun, in the neuter gender, sometimes refers to a phrase, or a dependent clause in apposition, and, in construction, takes the place of that clause, &c., either as the subject or the object of a verb; as, Vetus nobilitas, majorum fortia facta, cognatorum et affinium spes, multæ clientelæ, omnia hæc præsidio adsunt SALL., Jug., 85 Hoc tibi persuadeas velim, me nihil omisisse. Exercitum supplicio cogere id est domūnum, non imperatorem esse. SALL., Jug., 85.

EXCEPTIONS.

260.—Exc. 1. Sometimes the latter substantive is put in the genitive, as, fons Timavī, "the fountain of Timavus;" annus Eridanī, "the river Eridanus;" arbor fici, "the fig tree;" nomen Mercurii est mīti. Words thus construed may be referred to 332.

261.—Exc. 2. A proper name after the generic term nōmen, or cognōmen, sometimes elegantly takes the case of the person in the dative; as, Nōmen Arctūro est mihi, "I have the name Arcturus." PLAUT. So, Cui nunc cognōmen Iūlo additur. VIRG. Cui Egerio inditum nōmen. LIV Mansit Silvii postea omnibus cognōmen. Id. (433.)

262.—Exc. 3. The name of a town in the genitive, denoting at a place, may have a noun of the third declension or plural number, in apposition with it in the ablative, and vice versa; as, Corinthi Achaia urbe, "At Corinth, a city of Achaia." This construction depends on the rules, 548, 549.

§ 98. AN ADJECTIVE WITH A SUBSTANTIVE.

263.—RULE II. An adjective agrees with its substantive in gender, number, and case; as,

Bōnus vir, a good man.

Bōna puella, a good girl.

Dulce pōmum, a sweet apple.

Bōnos viros, good men.

Bonārum lēgum, of good laws.

Tuis dōnis, with thy gifts.

264.—EXPLANATION.—This rule applies to all adjectives, adjective pronouns, and participles; and requires that they be in the same gender, number, and case, with their substantives. 250-2. It applies also, when the substantive is in the subject, and the adjective in the predicate. 322.—The word "substantive," in this rule, includes personal and relative pronouns, and all words or phrases used as substantives.

OBSERVATIONS.

265.—Obs. 1. Two or more substantives singular, unless taken separately, have an adjective plural, as,

Vir et puer territi lūpo, A man and a boy terrified by a wolf.

266.—Obs. 2. If all the substantives be of the same gender, the adjectives will be of that gender, as in the example above. But if the substantives are of different genders, the adjective takes the masculine rather than the feminine, and the feminine rather than the neuter; as,

Pāter mihi, et māter mortui sunt, My father and mother are dead. TER.

267.—Obs. 3. But if they denote things without life, the adjective is commonly neuter. And, if some of the substantives refer to things with life, and others to things without life, the adjective is either neuter, or takes the gender of the thing or things with life; as,

Lābor voluptasque sunt dissimilia naturā, Toil and pleasure are unlike in nature.

Naves et captivi quæ ad Chium The ships and captives which were capta sunt. taken at Chios.

Numidæ atque militaria signa obs- The Numidians and their military curati sunt, standards were partially concealed

Also, the neuter is used frequently when the nouns denoting things are of the same gender; as, Postquam ira et avaritia imperio potentiōra erant. LIV.

268.—Obs. 4. Sometimes, however, the adjective agrees with the nearest noun, and is understood to the rest; as, sociis et rege recepto, VIRG., “Our companions and king being recovered.”

Note 1.—These observations may, and sometimes do, hold good, even when one or more of the substantives are in the ablative, and connected with the others by cum; as, Filiam cum filio accitos.

269.—Obs. 5. When the substantive to which the adjective, or adjective pronoun, belongs may be easily supplied, it is frequently omitted, and the adjective, assuming its gender, number, and case, is often used as a substantive, and may have an adjective agreeing with it; as,

Mortālis (hōmo), a mortal.

Ille (hōmo), he.

Supèri (dii), the gods above.

Illi (homīnes), they.

Dextra (mānus), the right hand.

Hic (hōmo), he.

Hæc (femīna), she.

Omnia alia, all other (things).

Familiāris meus (amicus), my intimate friend.

270.—Obs. 6. The adjective, especially when used as a predicate, without a substantive or definite object, is used in the neuter gender; as,

Triste lūpus stabūlis,

The wolf is grievous to the folds.

Vacāre culpa est suāve,

To be free from blame is pleasant.

Lābor vincit omnia,

Labor overcomes all obstacles.

271.—Obs. 7. Imperatives, infinitives, adverbs, clauses, and words considered merely as such, when used substantively, take an adjective in the neuter gender (30); as,

Suprēmum vāle dixit, OVID,

He pronounced a last farewell.

Cras istud quando venit, MART.,

When does that to-morrow come!

Excepto quod non simul esses,

That you were not present being excepted.

272.—Obs. 8. A substantive is sometimes used as an adjective; as, populum late regem (for regnantem), “a people of extensive sway;” nemo (for nullus) miles Romanus, “no Roman soldier.” Sometimes an adverb; as, Hæri semper lenitas (probably for lenitas semper existens, or the like). TER. So also adjectives are sometimes used as substantives, as, majores, “ancestors;” amicus, “a friend;” summum bonum, “the chief good” (thing); &c.

273.—Obs. 9. These adjectives, primus, medius, ultimus, extræmus, infimus, imus, summus, supremus, reliquus, cætæra, usually signify the “first part,” the “middle part,” &c., of any thing, and are placed before the substantive; as, media nox, “the middle of the night;” summus mons, “the top of the mountain.”

274.—Obs. 10. Some adjectives denoting the time or circumstances of an action are used in the sense of adverbs; as, prior venit, “he came first of the two;” pronus cecidit, “he fell forward;” abiit sublimis, “he went on high.”

275.—Obs. 11. Alius, though an adjective, is often used as a pronoun, and has this peculiarity of construction, that, when repeated with a different word in the same clause, it renders the one simple proposition to which it belongs equivalent to two, and it is to be so rendered; thus, aliud aliis videtur optimum, “one thing seems best to some, another seems best to others.” So, duo reges, alius alia via, ille bello, hic pace, civitatem auxerunt, “two kings, one in one way and another in another;” &c. Or the two simple sentences may be combined in a plural form; thus, “different things seemed best to different persons;” “two kings, each in a different way;” &c. The same is true when a word derived from alius, such as alivnde, aliter, alio, is put with it in the same clause; as, aliis alivnde periculum est, “there is danger to one person from one source, and to another from another;” or combined, “there is danger to different persons from different sources.”

276.—Obs. 12. When alius is repeated in a different clause, but in the same construction, the first is to be rendered “one,” the second, “another;” if plural, “some,” “others;” as, aliud est maledicere, aliud accusare, “it is one thing to rail at, another to accuse.” Cic. Proferbant alii purpuram, thus alii, “some brought forth purple, others incense.” Instead of alii—alii, &c., in the plural, we have sometimes pars—alii; partim—alii; sometimes alii—pars, alii—partim, “some—others,” &c.; and sometimes the first of the pair is omitted.

This remark is applicable to alter, remembering only that alius signifies ONE OF MANY; alter, ONE OF TWO; as, quorum alter exercitum perdidit, alter vendidit.

277.—Obs. 13. Quisque, with the superlative, is equivalent to omnis in the singular or plural, with the positive; thus, optimus quisque—omnis bonus, or omnes boni, “every good man,” or, “all good men.” With two superlatives, it expresses a sort of reciprocal comparison; as, optimum quidque rarissimum, “every thing is good in proportion as it is rare;” or “the best things are the rarest.”

EXCEPTIONS.

278.—Exc. 1. An adjective is often put in a different gender or number from the substantive with which it is connected, tacitly referring to its meaning rather than to its form, or to some other word synonymous with it, or implied in it; as,

Latium Capuâque agro multatâti, "Latium and Capua were deprived of their land," i. e. the people of Latium, &c.; Capita conjurationis virgiscæsi,—"the heads (i. e., the leading men) of the conspiracy, &c."

279.—Exc. 2. A collective noun in the singular, if its verb is plural, has an adjective in the plural, and in the gender of the individuals which form the collection; as,

Pars in flumen acti sunt, "A part were forced into the river." Sometimes it takes the gender of the individual in the singular; as, pars arduus furit, &c.

280.—Exc. 3. A plural noun or pronoun, used to denote one person, in comic writers, sometimes has an adjective or participle in the singular; as, Nobis prescute, "I being present."

281.—Exc. 4. The adjective pronouns uterque, quisque, &c., in the singular, are often put with nouns in the plural, to intimate that the objects are spoken of individually and distributively; as, Uterque eorum ex castris exercitum educunt, "They lead forth, each of them, his army from the camp;" Quisque pro se queruntur, "They complain, each one for himself." Quisque, in the singular, not only distributes plural nouns, but is in the nominative when the plural to be distributed is in the ablative absolute; as, Multis sibi quisque imperium petentibus. SALL, Jug., 18; or in the accusative, as the subject of the infinitive, as, Affirmantes se . . . quisque patriam . . . relicturos. Alius and alter are sometimes used in the same way; as, Multa conjecta sunt aliud alio tempore. Obs. 11. In this construction, there is a kind of apposition. 257.

282.—Exc. 5. When ipse qualifies a substantive pronoun in a reflexive sense, in any oblique case governed by a verb or preposition, it commonly takes the case of the subject of the verb in the nominative or accusative, instead of the case of the word which it qualifies; as, Se ipse interfecit, "He slew himself;" Mihi ipse faveo, "I favor myself;" Crèdes mihi ipsum favere? "Do you believe that I favor myself?" &c. See 113-3, Note.

283.—Exc. 6. The possessive pronoun, in any case, being equivalent to, and used for, the genitive of the substantive pronoun (121, Obs. 1), an adjective, qualifying the substantive pronoun implied in it, is put in the genitive; as, In nostro omnium flètu, "Whilst all of us are in tears;" Meum solius vitium, "The fault of me alone;" Nostri ipsorum àbèri, "Our own children;" Mæa scripti timentis.

§ 99. THE RELATIVE AND CEDENT.

284.—RULE III. The relative qui, quæ, quod, agrees with its antecedent in gender, number, and person; as,

Ego qui scribo,	I who write.
Tu qui lægis,	Thou who readest.
Vir qui loquitur,	The man who speaks.
Viri qui loquuntur,	The men who speak.

285.—EXPLANATION.—The antecedent is the noun or pronoun going before the relative to which it refers. Sometimes, however, the relative and its clause are placed before the antecedent and its clause.

The infinitive mood or a part of a sentence is sometimes the antecedent, in which case the relative must be in the neuter gender.

OBSERVATIONS.

286.—Obs. 1. Strictly speaking, the relative does not agree with the antecedent, but with the same word expressed or understood after the relative, and with which, like the adjective, it agrees in gender, number, and case, as well as person; thus, diem dicunt, quâ (die), &c., “they appoint a day, on which (day),” &c. Hence, in connecting the antecedent and relative clause, the following variety of usage occurs, viz:

1st. The word to which the relative refers, is commonly expressed in the antecedent clause, and not with the relative; as, Vir sapiit qui pauca loquitur, “He is a wise man, who speaks little.”

2d. It is often elegantly omitted in the antecedent clause, and expressed with the relative, especially when the relative clause stands first; as, In quem primum egressi sunt locum, Troja cœditur, i. e., locus in quem, &c.

3d. Sometimes, when greater precision is required, it is expressed in both; as, Erant omnino itinera duo, quibus itineribus domo exire possent. Instead of the first substantive, the relative sometimes takes with it a substantive explanatory of the first; as, Cum venissem ad Amânum, qui mons, &c.—Non longe a Tolosatium finibus sunt, quæ civitas (Tolosatium) est in provincia; for, qui sunt, &c.—Ante comitia, quod tempus haud longe aberat; for, que comitia haud, &c.

4th. When the reference is of a general nature, and there is no danger of obscurity, the word to which the relative refers is understood in both clauses; as, sunt quos jûrat collegisse, i. e. sunt (homines) quos (homines) jûrat, &c.—non habeo quod te accûsem, i. e. non habeo id quod te accûsem, 492.

Notes.—The place of the antecedent is sometimes supplied by a demonstrative strative pronoun in the clause following; as, de qua re audiui, eam tibi narrabo. In the clause preceding the relative, the demonstrative has sometimes the force of talis, "such;" and the relative, that of the corresponding qualis, "as;"—the two implying a sort of comparison; as, Itaque ego is sum in illum, quem tu me esse vis, "Therefore, I am towards him, such as you wish me to be." Cic.

To this construction may be referred such expressions as qui tuus est ãur, equivalent to, pro eo amõre qui tuus est amõr, "such is your love;" literally, "in accordance with such love as yours is;"—que tua est benevolentia, "such is your benevolence," where the demonstrative is, ea, id, in the sense of "such," (123-2, b), is supplied with the antecedent understood.

287.—Obs. 2. a. The antecedent is sometimes implied in a preceding word; as, omnes laudãre fortũnas meas qui habẽrem, &c., "all were praising my fortune who had," &c., i. e. fortũnas mei qui; the possessive meas being equivalent to the genitive of ẽgo. 121, Obs. 1. Conjuravẽre pauci contra rempublicam, de qua (scil. conjurationẽ) implied in conjuravẽre) quam brevissime potẽro dicam, "a few entered into a conspiracy against the republic, concerning which," &c.

b. The relative sometimes refers, not to a particular word, but to the whole antecedent proposition, or the idea expressed by it, in which case it takes the neuter gender; as, Tu amas virtutẽ, quod (i. e. quam rem) valde laudo. Postremo, quod difficultatũm inter mortales, gloriã invidiam vicisti. SALL., Jug. Sometimes id is placed before quod referring to the same proposition; as, Sive, id quod constat, Platõnis studiõsus audiendi fuit. Cic.

288.—Obs. 3. When a relative refers to one or two nouns, denoting the same object, but of different genders, it may agree with either; as, Flũmen est Arar quod, &c. Here quod agrees with flũmen. Ad flũmen Ossum percutum est, qui, &c. Here qui agrees with Ossum.

289.—Obs. 4. When a word of a preceding proposition, or the proposition itself, is explained by a substantive after esse, dicere, vocare, habere, &c., the relative (or demonstrative) pronoun between them, often takes, by attraction, the gender and number of the explanatory substantive following; as, Thẽbæ ipsæ quod Bæotiæ caput est. LIV. Idem velle et idem nolle, ea dẽnum firma amicitia est. SALL. But if the latter substantive is distinctive only, the relative follows the general rule; as, gẽnus hominũm quod vocãtur Helõtes;— ad eum locum, quem Amanĩas pylas vocant, pervenit.

Also the participles of such verbs, as well as the relative, take the gender and number of the predicate substantive when near it, or immediately after it; as, non omnis error stultitia est dicenda (for dicendus);—gens universa Venẽti appellãti.

290.—Obs. 5. An adjective which properly belongs to the antecedent is sometimes placed in the relative clause, agreeing with the relative. This is the case, especially if the adjective be a numeral, a comparative, or superlative; as, inter jocos, quos inconditos jaciunt, for jocos inconditos, quos, &c., "amidst the rude jests which they utter;"—nocte, quam in terra ultĩmam egit, for nocte ultĩmã, quam, &c., "the last night which he spent upon earth."

291.—Obs. 6. When a relative refers to two or more antecedents taken together, it agrees with them in gender and number, in all respects as the adjective does with several substantives, as stated 265, 266. But,

If the antecedents are of different persons, the relative plural takes the first person rather than the second, and the second person rather than the third.

292.—Exc. 1. The relative, sometimes, takes the gender and number, not of the antecedent noun, but of some one synonymous with it or implied in it; as, eārum rerum quæ mortales prima putant, “of those things which men deem most important.” Here quæ seems to agree with negotia, considered synonymous with rerum.—Daret ut catēnis fatāle monstrum quæ. The antecedent is monstrum, but quæ agrees with Cleopatra, the monster intended.

293.—Obs. 7. The relatives quicumque and quisquis are sometimes used instead of qui, when a general or indefinite term is expressed or understood with the antecedent; as, quæ sanāri poterunt, quicumque ratione sanābo, equivalent to omni ratione quacumque (possun), “what can be cured, I will cure by every means I can.”

294.—This construction corresponds to that of the Greek ὅστις (Gr. Gram., § 135, 7), and, like it, these relatives often represent two cases; as, quoscumque de te quæri aucti, quacumque potui ratione placavi. Here, quoscumque is both the object of placavi, and the subject of quæri; and quacumque is equivalent to omni ratione qua ratione.—Quidquid tetigerat aurum fībat. Here quidquid stands both as the nominative to fībat and the accusative after tetigerat, and is equivalent to omne quod tetigerat, &c.

295.—Obs. 8. In the beginning of a sentence, or clause connected with what precedes, not by the relative itself, but by quam (cum), si, autem, quoniam, or other conjunctive term expressed or understood, the relative assumes the character of a personal or demonstrative pronoun, and, as such, refers to some word, clause, or circumstance, already expressed thus,

1st. When the relative thus used stands instead of its noun, it is equivalent to et ille, et hic, et is, et illi, &c., and may be rendered “and he;” “and she;” “and they;” &c.; as, qui quum admittēret, “and when he admitted;”—ad quem quum venissent, “and when they had come to him;”—quem ut vidit, “as soon as he saw him.”

2d. When the relative thus used stands with its substantive, or has it understood, it is to be translated, as a demonstrative, by this, that, these, those, commonly preceded by and; as, qui legati quum missi essent, “and when these ambassadors had been sent;”—ad quarum initium silvarum quam Cæsar pervenisset, “and when Cæsar had come to the beginning of these woods;”—quam quum Romanorum dux dare nollet, “and when the Roman general would not grant this” (scil. pæcem, “peace”).

296.—To this construction belongs quod, in the beginning of a sentence (apparently for propter quod, or ad quod), referring to something previously stated, and meaning “on account of,” “with respect to,” “as to, &c.”

his thing," as quod diis gratias habeo, "wherefore (i. e. on account of this thing), I give thanks to the gods;"—quod scribis (Cic.), "as to what you write."

CASE OF THE RELATIVE.

297.—Obs. 9. The relative, in respect of case, is always to be considered as a noun and subject to the rules which determine the case of nouns.

298.—Exc. 2. The relative, after the manner of the Greek, is sometimes attracted into the case of its antecedent; as, Cum agas aliqua v̄orū quōrū consuesti, &c., for eōrum quō consuesti, "When you do any of those things which you have been accustomed to do;" Καπτιν quibus quisque poterat elātis, for (iis) quæ quisque, &c., "Those things which each one could, being hastily snatched up."

299.—Exc. 3. The antecedent is sometimes attracted into the case of the relative; as, Urbe[m] quam statuo vestra est, for urbis quam statuo, &c., "The city which I am building is yours."

These are Greek constructions seldom used by Latin writers. See Greek Gr., § 135, Exc. 9, 10.

300.—Obs. 10. The relative adjectives quot, quantus, quālis, used in comparisons, and commonly rendered "as," are often construed in a manner similar to the relative (286), having their redditives, or corresponding adjectives tot, tantus, tālis, expressed or understood in the antecedent clause; as, Tantæ multitudinis quantam cāpit urbs, "Of as great a multitude as the city contains;" Facies (tālis), quālem decet esse sorōrum, "The features, such as those of sisters ought to be." VIRG.

a. The noun, as well as the reditive, is very often omitted in the antecedent clause, and expressed in the relative clause (286-2d); as, Quantū potuit celeritate cucurrit, changed to the common form, is Tantū celeritate quantū potuit, cucurrit, "He ran with as much speed as he could." In this way, are to be explained such clauses as Quantum importunitatis habent, "Such arrogance have they," in full form, Pro tanto importunitatis quantum habent.

b. When the relative adjective and its reditive refer to different substantives, each agrees with its own. But among the poets, the relative sometimes agrees with the substantive in the antecedent clause, and not with that in its own.

Sometimes the reditive is understood, and sometimes the relative.

Note 1. Instead of the relative adjectives quot, quantus, quālis, the constructions ex, atque, ut, and the relative qui, quæ, quod, in the sense of "as."

are sometimes used in comparative expressions; as, Honos tali populi Romāni voluntate, paucis est delatus ac mihi. CIC.

Note 2.—When quot, quantus, quālis are used as interrogatives, they have no corresponding antecedent term.

301.—Exc. 4. Instead of the ordinary construction, the relative adjective, with its noun, is sometimes attracted into the case of the relative pronoun understood, as in the following sentence: Si hominibus bonarum rerum tanta cura esset, quanto studio pētunt, SALL., Jug.; instead of quantum est studium quo aliēna pētunt:—unless this be a case of anacoluthon, the latter part of the sentence being expressed as if the former, had been, Si homines bonas res petērent, quanto studio, &c., i. e., tanto studio quanto, &c. 300, a.

§ 100 CONSTRUCTION OF THE NOMINATIVE CASE.

302. The nominative case is used,

1. To express the subject of a proposition;
2. In apposition with another substantive in the nominative (§ 97), or predicated of it (§ 103);
3. In exclamations; as, O vir fortis atque amicus!

§ 101. THE VERB AND ITS NOMINATIVE.

303.—RULE IV. A Verb agrees with its nominative in number and person; as,

Ego lēgo,	I read.	Nos egimus,	We read.
Tu scribis,	Thou writest.	Vos scribitis,	Ye write.
Ille loquitur,	He speaks.	Illi loquuntur,	They speak

304.—EXPLANATION.—The subject of a finite verb, being a noun, a pronoun, an adjective used as a noun, or a gerund, is put in the nominative case. The subject may also be an infinitive mood or part of a sentence. To all of these the rule applies, and requires that the verb be in the same number and person as the subject, or nominative. For persons, see 85, and 118-1, 2.

OBSERVATIONS.

305.—Obs. 1. The nominatives ego, nos, of the first person; and tu, vos, of the second are generally omitted, being obvious from the termin-tion of the verb; also the nominative of the third person, when it is an indefinite word, or may be easily supplied from the context; as, ferunt, "they say;" &c.

306.—Obs. 2. The subject is also omitted when the verb expresses the state of the weather, or an operation of nature; as, fulgurat, "it lightens;" pluit, "it rains;" ningit, "it snows."

307.—Obs. 3. Impersonal verbs are usually considered as without a nominative. Still, they will generally be found to bear a relation to some circumstance, sentence, clause of a sentence, or infinitive mood, similar to that between a verb and its nominative; as, delectat me studere, "it delights me to study," i. e. "to study delights me;"—misereat me tui, "I pity you," i. e. conditio, or fortuna tui misereat me, "your condition excites my pity." 662.

308.—Obs. 4. The verb is sometimes omitted when the nominative is expressed, and sometimes when it is understood; as, nam ego Polydorus (sc. sunt), "for I am Polydorus;"—omnia praelara rara (sc. sunt), "all excellent things are rare;"—tum ille (sc. respondit), "then he replied;"—verum hactenus hec (sc. diximus).

309.—Obs. 5. When the subject is an infinitive, or a clause of a sentence, the verb is in the third person singular; and, if a compound tense, the participle is put in the neuter gender; as, incertum est quam longa nostram cujusque vita futura sit, "how long any of us shall live is uncertain"

310.—Obs. 6. The nominative is sometimes found with the infinitive, in which case cepit or ceperunt, or some other verb, according to the sense, is understood; as, omnes invidere mihi, "every one envied me." The infinitive with the nominative before it, is so common in historical narrative, that it is called the historical infinitive. Thus used, it is translated as the imperfect or the perfect indefinite, for which tenses it seems to be used, and with which it is sometimes connected. 669.

311.—Obs. 7. Videor, in the sense of "I seem," is used throughout as a personal verb, but is often rendered impersonally; as, videor esse liber "it seems that I am free," literally, "I seem to be free."—Followed by the dative of a person, it means to think, fancy, suppose, with reference to the word in the dative, as the subject in English; as, videor tibi esse, "you think that I am," literally, "I seem to you to be;"—tu videtis mihi, "I think that you;"—videor illi, "he thinks that I;" &c. If the third person singular, followed by an infinitive mood or connected clause, it is rendered impersonally, but still has the infinitive or clause for its subject. See 418.

§ 102. SPECIAL RULES AND OBSERVATIONS.

I. Of agreement in Number and Person.

312.—RULE I. Two or more substantives singular, taken together, have a verb in the plural; taken separately, the verb is usually singular; as,

(Taken together,)

Fūror iraque mentem præcipitant, Fury and rage hurry on my mind.

(Taken separately,)

Si Socrātes an Antisthēnes diceret, If Socrates or Antisthenes should say 313.—Obs. 1. To both parts of this rule, however, and especially to the first, there are many exceptions. If one of the nominatives is plural, the verb is commonly plural. But sometimes the verb agrees with the nominative nearest it, and is understood to the rest, especially when each of the nominatives is preceded by et or tum, or when they denote things without life; as, Mens enim, et ratio, et consilium, in senibus est.

When the nominatives are disjunctively connected by aut, neque, &c., the verb is sometimes plural; and it is always so, when the substantives are of different persons; as, Quod nēque ego, nēque Cæsar habiti essemus. CIC. Hæc si nēque ego, nēque tu fecimus. TER.

314.—Obs. 2. A substantive in the nominative singular, connected with another in the ablative by cum, may have a plural verb; as, Rēmo cum fratre Quirīnus jura dābunt.

315.—Obs. 3. When the nominatives are of different persons, the verb is commonly plural, and takes the first person rather than the second, and the second rather than the third; as, Si tu et Tullia valētis, ego et Cicero valēmus, "If you and Tullia are well, Cicero and I are well."

But sometimes the verb agrees with the nearest nominative, and is understood to the rest, and always so, when the verb has different modifications with each nominative; as, Ego misere, tu feliciter vivis.

316.—RULE II. 1. A collective noun expressing many as one whole, has a verb in the singular; as,

Populus me sibilat,

The people hiss at me.

Senatus in curiam venit,

The Senate came into the Senate-house.

2. But when it expresses many as individuals, the verb must be plural; as,

Pars epulis onerant mensas,

Part load the tables with food.

Turba ruunt,

The crowd rush

The fickle populace come and go.

317.—Obs. 4. To both parts of this rule, there are also exceptions. And in some cases, it seems indifferent whether the verb be in the singular or plural; sometimes both are joined with the same word; as, Turba ex eo loco dilabebatur, refracturosque carcerem minabantur.

318.—Obs. 5. Uterque, quisque, pars....pars, alius...alius, and alter...alter, on account of the idea of plurality involved, frequently have the verb in the plural. This construction may be explained on the principle mentioned 281, where see examples; or 257

§ 103. THE PREDICATE NOMINATIVE.

319.—RULE V. The predicate substantive or adjective, after a verb, is put in the same case as the subject before it; as,

Ego sum discipulus,	I am a scholar.
Tu vocāris Joannes,	Thou art called John.
Illa incēdit regīna,	She walks (as) a queen.

320.—EXPLANATION.—Under this rule, the nominative before the verb is the subject or thing spoken of; the nominative after it, is the predicate, or the thing asserted of the subject. The verb is the copula connecting the one with the other, and is usually a substantive verb (187), an intransitive verb, or a passive verb of naming, judging, appointing, &c., which, from its use, is called a copulative verb.

This rule applies to the accusative and dative before, and after, the infinitive of copulative verbs. See Obs. 5, 6, 7, 8, below.

OBSERVATIONS.

321.—Obs. 1. Any copulative verb between two nominatives of different numbers, commonly agrees in number with the former, or subject; as, Dos est decem talenta, "Her dowry is ten talents." TER. Omnia pontus erant, "All was sea." OVID. But sometimes with the latter or predicate; as, Amantium iræ, amoris integratio est, "The quarrels of lovers is a renewal of love."

a. So also, when the nouns are of different genders, an adjective, adjective pronoun, or a participle, in the predicate, commonly agrees with the subject of the verb; as, Oppidum appellatum est Possidonia;—but sometimes with the predicate; as, Non omnis error stultitia dicenda est. CIC.

b. The verb esse sometimes takes an adverb in the predicate, where, in English an adjective is commonly used; as, omnia mala abunde erant.—"were abundant;"—Romānos laxius futuros, "that the Romans would be more negligent;"—ea res frustra fuit, "that was of no avail."

322.—Obs. 2. When the predicate is an adjective, adjective pronoun, or participle without a substantive, it agrees with the subject before the verb according to Rule II (263); except as noticed in the same section. Obs. 6 (270).

323.—Obs. 3. When the subject is of the second person, and the verba stands before the verb, the adjective or participle will usually be in the nominative, according to the rule; as, esto tu, Cæsar, amicus; but sometimes it is put in the vocative; as, Quibus, Hector, ab Æris expectate venis (VIRG.), for expectatus. Hence the phrase, Macte virtute esto, for mactus.

324.—Obs. 4. The noun opus, commonly rendered “needful,” is often used as a predicate after sum; as, dux nobis opus est, “a leader is wanted by us.”

Note 1.—Such expressions as audivi hoc puer,—republicam defendi adolescens,—sapiens nil facit invitus, belong more properly to Rules I and II than to this (251 and 263).

325.—Obs. 5. The accusative or dative before the infinitive under this Rule, requires the same case after it in the predicate; as,

Novimus te esse fortem, We know that thou art brave.
Mihi negligenti non esse licet, I am not allowed to be negligent.

Note 2.—In this construction, the infinitive is sometimes omitted; as novimus te fortem, for esse fortem.

326.—Obs. 6. When the subject of the infinitive is the same with the subject of the preceding verb, it is often omitted, in which case the predicate after the infinitive is in the nominative agreeing with the preceding subject, or in the accusative agreeing with the subject of the infinitive understood; as, cupio dici doctus, or cupio dici doctum, i. e. me dici doctum, “I desire to be called learned.” The first of these is a Greek construction, and seldom used by Latin prose writers. See Gr. Gram., § 175, 3.

327.—Obs. 7. When the infinitive of such verbs has a dative before it, it may be followed either by a dative or an accusative; as, licet mihi esse reâto; or, licet mihi esse beatum, “I may be happy.” In the first case, beatô agrees with mihi; in the second, beatum agrees with me, to be supplied as the subject of esse. Sometimes, when the sentence is indefinite, the dative also is understood; as, licet esse beatum (sc. alicui), “one may be happy.” The first of these forms also is a Greek construction. See Gr. Gram., § 175, Obs. 5.

328.—Obs. 8. This variety of case after the infinitive, is admissible only with the nominative, dative, and accusative. The other cases before the infinitive have the accusative after it, agreeing with the subject of the infinitive understood; as, interest omnium (se) esse bonos

329.—§ 104. GOVERNMENT.

1. GOVERNMENT is the power which one word has over another depending upon it, requiring it to be put in a certain case, mood, or tense.

2. The words subject to government are nouns and verbs.

3. The words governing or affecting these in their case, mood, or tense, are nouns, adjectives, pronouns, verbs, and words indeclinable.

4. To the Syntax of nouns, belongs all that part of Syntax relating to the government of case. Every thing else in government belongs to the Syntax of the verb, § 137, et seq.

SYNTAX OF THE NOUN.

330.- In this part of Grammar, under the term noun or substantive, is comprehended every thing used as such; namely, nouns, personal pronouns, adjective pronouns used personally, adjectives without substantives, gerunds, together with infinitives, and substantive clauses used as nouns.

The construction of the oblique cases depends, in general, upon the particular ideas expressed by the cases themselves, as they are stated No. 50, or as they are mentioned hereafter, under each case.

§ 105. CONSTRUCTION OF THE GENITIVE.

331.—The Genitive, as its name imports, with the meaning of the word, connects the idea of origin, and hence that of property or possession. It is used, in general, to limit the signification of another word, with which it is joined, by representing it as something originating with, possessed by, or relating to, that which the genitive or limiting word expresses; and it is said to be governed by the word so limited, i. e., the word limited requires the word limiting it to be put in the Genitive case.

The Genitive is governed by Nouns, Adjectives, and Verbs; and also is used to express circumstances of place, quantity, or degree.

§ 106. THE GENITIVE GOVERNED BY NOUNS.

332.—RULE VI. One substantive governs another in the genitive, when the latter substantive limits the signification of the former; as,

Amor gloriæ,	The love of glory.
Lex naturæ,	The law of nature.

333.—EXPLANATION.—Under this rule, the two substantives must be of different signification, and the one used to restrict the meaning of the other. Thus, in the first example, amor, alone, means "love," in general, but the term gloriæ, joined with it, restricts its meaning here to a particular object, "glory," and so of other examples.

N. B. When a noun is limited by another of the same signification, it is put in the same case by Rule I (251).

OBSERVATIONS.

334.—Obs. 1. When the governing noun expresses a feeling or act, &c., inherent in, or exercised by, the noun governed in the genitive, the genitive is said to be subjective or active. But when the governing noun denotes something of which the noun governed is the object, the genitive is then said to be objective or passive. Thus, in the phrase providentia Dei, the genitive is necessarily subjective or active, because providentia expresses an act or operation of which God is the subject, and of which he cannot be the object. On the other hand, in the phrase timor Dei, "the fear of God," the genitive Dei is necessarily objective or passive, because timor denotes a feeling in some other subject of which God is the object, and cannot be the subject. Sometimes the meaning of both substantives is such, that the genitive may be either active or passive; thus, when the expression amor Dei means the love which God has to us, Dei is active or subjective; but when it means the love which we have to God, Dei is passive or objective. In such cases, the sense in which the genitive is used must be determined by the author's meaning.

335.—Obs. 2. Hence it often happens that a noun governs two substantives, one of which limits it subjectively, and the other objectively; as, Agamemnonis belli gloria, "Agamemnon's glory in war." NEP. Here, Agamemnonis limits gloria subjectively, and belli limits it objectively. So, Illius administratio provincie. CIC.

336.—Obs. 3. The governing noun is often omitted, but only, however, when the expression itself readily suggests the noun to be supplied; as, ad Dianæ, sc. adem; or when it can be readily supplied from the preceding or following words.

337.—Obs. 4. Instead of the genitive of the personal pronoun governed by the noun, it is more common to use the possessive adjective pronoun agreeing with it; as, meus pater, rather than pater mei. So also, instead of the genitive of a noun, a possessive adjective is sometimes used; as, causa regia, for regis causa; herilis filius, for filius heri.

338.—Obs. 5. The dative is often used instead of the genitive to limit a noun as to its object; as, fratri ades, for fratris, "the house of my brother;"—præsidium reis, "a defence to the accused." For this construction, see 380 and 381.

339.—RULE VII. A substantive added to another, to express a property or quality belonging to it, is put in the genitive or ablative; as,

Vir summæ prudentiæ, or summâ prudentiâ, A man of great wisdom.
Puer præbæ indulgiæ, or præbâ indôle, A boy of a good disposition.

340.—EXPLANATION.—Under this rule, the latter substantive in the genitive or ablative must denote a part or property of the former, otherwise does not belong to this rule. The latter substantive, also, has commonly an adjective joined with it as in the preceding examples, though this is not essential to the rule; and sometimes it is found without it; as, Homo nihili.

341.—Obs. 6. There is no certain rule by which to determine when the genitive is to be used, or when the ablative, though in some phrases we find the genitive only is used; as, vir imi subsellii, “a person of the lowest rank;”—homo nullius stipendii, “a man of no experience in war” (SALL.);—magni formica laboris, &c. In others, the ablative only; as, Es bono animo, “Be of good courage.” Sometimes both are used in the same sentence; as, adolescens crimina spe, summa virtutis. In prose, the ablative is more common than the genitive.

342.—Obs. 7. Sometimes, instead of the construction under this rule, the adjective is put with the former substantive; as, Vir gravitate et prudentia prastans. CIC. So, Vir prastantis ingenii,—prastanti ingenio,—prastans ingenio, and (poetically)—prastans ingenii, are all used. And sometimes, when the adjective takes the case of the former substantive, the latter substantive, especially by the poets, is, by a Greek construction, put in the accusative instead of the genitive or ablative; as, miles fractus membra, instead of membris;—os humerosque similis deo, instead of ore humerisque similis deo. For this use of the accusative, see 538.

Adjectives taken as Substantives.

343.—RULE VIII. An adjective in the neuter gender, without a substantive, governs the genitive; as,

Multum pecuniæ,	Much money.
Id negotiî,	That business.

344.—EXPLANATION.—Under this rule, the adjective, without a substantive expressed, is regarded as a substantive, and so, capable of being limited by the genitive, as under Rule VI (332).

345.—Obs. 8. The adjectives thus used have a partitive character and are generally such as signify quantity; multum, plus, plurimum, tantum, quantum;—the pronouns hoc, id, illud, istud, quod, quid, with its compounds;—also sumum, ultimum, extremum, dimidium, medium, aliud, &c. To these may be added nihil, “nothing,” which is always a substantive; and the adverbs satis, parum, abunde, affatim, and sometimes argiter, in a substantive sense; as, nihil pretii, satis eloquentiæ, sapientia plurimum. 595.

This rule applies also to several neuter adjectives in the plural, used in a partitive sense; as, angusta viarum, “the narrow parts of the road;” opaca locorum; antiqua fœderum; cuncta camporum; &c.

Note.—Such adjectives, followed by a genitive, are always either in the nominative or accusative; and, when in the accusative, are not dependent on a preposition.

346.—Obs. 9 Most of these adjectives may have their substantives with which they agree; but the more common construction is with the genitive; as, tantum spei, "so much hope;"—quid mulieris? "what kind of a woman?"—aliquid formæ; quid hoc rei est? And sometimes the genitive after these neuters is the genitive of an adjective used as a substantive; as, aliquid nōvi, tantum bōni, &c.

347.—Obs. 10. Quod and quicquid, followed by a genitive, include the idea of universality; as, quod agri, "what of land," i. e. "all the land;" quicquid civium, "whatever of citizens," i. e. "all the citizens;" quicquid dēōrum, "all the gods."

348.—Obs. 11. Opus and ūsus, signifying "need," sometimes govern the genitive; as, Argentī ōpus fuit, "There was need of money." Liv Proēmīi non semper ūsus est, "There is not always need of an introduction." QUINCT. In general, these words govern the ablative. 456

§ 107. GENITIVE GOVERNED BY ADJECTIVES.

349.—RULE IX. Verbal adjectives, or such as imply an operation of mind, govern the genitive.
as,

Avidus gloriæ,	Desirous of glory.
Ignarus fraudis,	Ignorant of fraud.
Mēmōr beneficiōrum,	Mindful of favors.

350.—EXPLANATION.—The genitive in this construction, as in § 106, is used to limit the application of the general term or adjective by which it is governed, and may be rendered by of, or, in respect of, prefixed; thus, in the first example, avidus expresses the possession of desire generally; the genitive gloriæ limits it to a certain object, "glory;" and so of the other examples.

OBSERVATIONS.

351.—Obs. 1. Adjectives governing the genitive under this rule, are:

1st. VERBALS in AX; as, āpax, ēdax, fērax, fugax, pervicax, tēnax, &c.

2d PARTICIPLES in NS and TUS; as, āmans, appētens, cupiens, patiens, impatiens, sitiens, cōlens, fugiens, intelligens, metuens, tempērans, intempērans; consultus, doctus, expertus, inexpertus, insuētus, invidius, &c.

d Adjectives denoting various affections of the mind; such as, 1. DESIRE and DISGUST; as, avārus, avidus, cupidus, studiōsus, fastidiōsus, &c., with many other verbals in īdus and ōsus. 2. KNOWLEDGE and IGNORANCE; as, callidus, certus, conscius, gnārus, peritus, prudens, &c.—ignārus, incertus, inscius, imprudens, imperitus, rūdī. &c. 3. MEMORY or FORGETFULNESS; as, mēmor, immēmor, &c. 4. CARE and NEGLIGENCE; as, anxius, curiosus, sollicitus, providus, diligens;—incuriōsus, securus, negligens, &c. 5. FEAR and CONFIDENCE; as, pauidus, timidus, trepidus;—impavidus, interritus, &c. 6. GUILT and INNOCENCE; as, noxius, reus, suspectus, compertus;—innoxius, innocens, insons, &c.

4th To these, may be added many other adjectives of similar signification, which are limited by, or govern such genitives as anīmi, ingenii, mentis, irē, militiē, belli, labōris, rērum cōvi, mōram, and fidei.

352.—Obs. 2. Verbals in NS are used both as adjectives and participles, but usually with some difference of meaning; as, patiens algōris, ‘capable of bearing cold;’ patiens algōrem, ‘actually bearing cold;’ amans virtūtis, ‘loving virtue,’—spoken of the disposition; amans virtutem, ‘loving virtue,’—spoken of the act. So also, doctus grammaticæ, ‘skilled in grammar;’ doctus grammaticam, ‘one who has studied grammar.’

353.—Obs. 3. Many of these adjectives vary their construction; so that, instead of the genitive, they sometimes take after them,

- 1st. An infinitive clause; as, Certus ire, ‘determined to go.’ OVID. Cantare perit. VIRG. Anxius quid opus facto sit. SALL.
- 2d. An accusative with a preposition; as, avidior ad rem; anīmi, capax ad præcepta; ad fraudem callidus; potens in res bellicōsas, &c.
- 3d. An ablative with a preposition; as, avidus in pecuniis, ‘eager to regard to money;’ anxius de famā; super scelere suspectus; &c.
- 4th. An ablative without a preposition; as, arte rūdī, ‘rude in art.’ regni crimine insons; præstans ingenio. 535.

354.—Obs. 4. Some adjectives usually governing the dative, sometimes govern the genitive; such as similis, dissimilis, &c. See 385.

355.—RULE X. Partitives and words placed partitively, comparatives, superlatives, interrogatives, and some numerals, govern the genitive plural; as,

Alīquis philosophōrum,
Senior fratrum,
Doctissimū Romanōrum,
Quis nostram?
Una musarum,
Octāvus sapientium,

Some one of the philosophers.
 The elder of the brothers.
 The most learned of the Romans.
 Which of us?
 One of the muses.
 The eighth of the wise men.

356.—EXPLANATION.—A partitive is a word which signifies a part of any number of persons or things, in contradistinction to the whole. A word placed partitively is one which, though it does not signify a part, yet is sometimes used to distinguish a part from the whole; as, expediti militum, “the light armed (of the) soldiers.” The partitive, when an adjective, takes the gender of the whole, and governs it in the genitive plural; or, if a collective noun, in the genitive singular; and in this case, the partitive takes the gender of the noun understood; as, doctissimus suæ ætatis.

357.—Obs. 5. Partitives are such words as, utrusque, nullus, solus, aterus, iter, uterque, neuter, alter, aliquis, quidam, quisquis, quicumque, quis? qui? quot? tot, aliquot, nonnulli, plerique, multi, pauci, medicus, &c.

Words are used partitively in such expressions as the following. super deorum; sancte deorum; degeneres cæcum; piscium feminae. To which add omnis, cunctus, nemo; as, omnes Macedonum; nemo nostrum.

358.—Obs. 6. The comparative with the genitive denotes one of two; the superlative denotes a part of a number greater than two; as, majer fratrum, “the elder of two brothers;” maximus fratrum, “the eldest of (three or more) brothers.” So also, uter, alter, and neuter, generally refer to two; quis, alius, and nullus, to more than two; as, uter nostrum? “which of us (two)?” quis nostrum? “which of us (three or more)?” Nostrum and vestrum are used after partitives; seldom nostrum and vestrum.

359.—Obs. 7. The partitive is sometimes understood; as, Fies nobilium tu quodque fontium (sc. unus). НОВ.

360.—Obs. 8. Instead of the genitive after the partitives, the ablative is often found governed by de, e, ex, or in; or the accusative with inter or ante; as, unus e stoicis; ante omnes pulcherrimus; inter reges opulentissimus.

361.—RULE XI. Adjectives of plenty or want govern the genitive or ablative; as,

Plenus iræ or iræ,	Full of anger.
Inops rationis or ratione,	Void of reason.

EXPLANATION.—As in Rule IX, the adjective here is a general term, but limited in its application by the genitive or ablative following it.

362.—Obs. 9. Among adjectives denoting plenty or want, a considerable variety of construction is found.

a. Some govern the genitive only; as, benignus, exsors, impos, impudens, virtus, liberalis, munificus, &c.

b. Some govern the ablative only; as, beatus, multus, tumidus, turgidus.

c. Some govern the genitive more frequently; as, compos, consors, egenus, exheres, expers, fertilis, indigus, parcus, pauper, prodigus, sterilis, prosper, insatiatus, insatiabilis.

d. Some govern the ablative more frequently; as, abundans, alienus cassus, extorris, firmus, factus, frequens, gravis, gravidus, jejūnus infirmus, liber, lupus, latus, mactus, nudus, onustus, orbus, pollens, satiatus, tenuis, truncus, viduus.

e. Some govern the genitive or ablative indifferently; as, coꝝ dives, dives, fecundus, ferax, immānis, inānis, inops, largus, modicus, immodicus, nimius, opulentus, plenus, potens, purus, refertus, satur, vacuus, uber.

363.—Obs. 10. Many of these adjectives are sometimes limited by a preposition and its case; as, Locus copiosus a frumento. CIC. Ab omni re paratus. ID. Parcus in victu. PLIN. In affectibus potentissimus. QUINCT. Potens in res bellicas. LIV. &c.

§ 108. THE GENITIVE GOVERNED BY VERBS.

364.—RULE XII. Sum governs the genitive of a person or thing to which its subject belongs as a possession, property, or duty; as,

Est regis,	It belongs to the king.
Homīnis est errāre,	It is characteristic of man to err.

365.—EXPLANATION.—The genitive in this construction is supposed to be governed by the adjective proprius, or the substantive officium, munus, res, negotium, opus, &c., understood. (When it is expressed, the genitive is governed by it according to Rule VI.) The verb is in the third person,—often has an infinitive or clause for its nominative, and may be rendered in any way by which the sense is expressed; such as, it belongs to;—it is the property—the part—the duty—the peculiarity—the character of, &c. The following are examples:

Insipientis est dicere non putāram,	It is the part of a fool, &c.
Militum est suo duci parere,	It is the duty of soldiers, &c.
Laudare se vāni est,	It is the mark of a vain man, &c.

See the following—Arrogantis est neg'igere quid de se quisque sentiat CIC. Pecus est Melibæi. VIRG. Hæc sunt hominis. TER. Pauperis est numerare pecus. OVID. Temeritas est florentis ætatis, prudentia senectutis. CIC. Antiqui moris fuit. PLIN.

366.—Obs. 1. Sometimes the genitive, in the predicate of a sentence, is governed by the preceding word repeated after the verb; as, Hoc pecus est (pecus) Melibæi Hic liber est (liber) fratris. Sometimes the genitive depends on some general word understood, but easily supplied in the mind; as, Thucydides, qui ejusdem ætatis fuit sc. homo. The same construction is sometimes used after fit, and some other verbs; as, Asia

Romanorum facta est, sc. provincia, "Asia became (a possession or province) of the Romans."

367.—Obs. 2. Instead of the genitive of the personal pronouns, the nominative neuter of the possessive is commonly used, agreeing with officium, mūnus, &c., understood; as, tuum est, "it is your duty," instead of tui; meum est, "it is my part," instead of mei. So also, instead of a genitive of a noun, an adjective derived from it may be used; as, humanum est; regium est; et facere et pati fortia Romanum est.

368.—Obs. 3. If the verb be in the infinitive, the possessive pronoun must be in the accusative; as, scio tuum esse, "I know it is your duty;" and if a substantive be expressed, the possessive must agree with it in gender, number, and case; thus, hæ partes fuerunt tue is equivalent to tuum fuit, or tuarum partium fuit, "it was your part."

369.—RULE XIII. Miserere, miseresco, and satāgo, govern the genitive; as,

Miserere civium tuorum,
Satāgit rerum suarum,

Pity your countrymen.
He is busy with his own affairs

370.—EXPLANATION.—The genitive, in this construction, has been supposed to be governed by such a noun as negotio, causa, re, &c., understood; governed by the prepositions de, a, in, or the like; as, miserere de causa civium, &c. We consider it better, however, to regard these genitives as governed directly by the verb, and expressing, as in Greek, the cause or origin of the feeling which the verb expresses. See Gr. Gram., § 144, Rule XIV.

371.—Obs. 4. Many other verbs denoting some affection of the mind are sometimes followed by a genitive, denoting that with regard to which or on account of which, the affection exists. These are ango, decipior, desipio, discrucior, fallo, fallor, fastidio, invideo, lutor, mīror, pendo, studeo, vereor, &c. Thus, Absurde facis qui angas te animi. PLAUT. Discrucior animi. TER. Fallēbar sermōnis. PLAUT. Lutor malōrum. VIRG. These verbs have commonly a different construction. Note 2. See No. 540.

Note 1.—The first and second of these examples resemble the peculiar Greek construction, explained Gr. Gram., § 148, Obs. 2.

372.—Obs. 5. Several verbs, especially among the poets, are found with the genitive, in imitation of the Greek construction (Gr. Gram., § 144, Rules XVI. and XVII.). These are abstineo, desino, desisto, quiesco, regno; also, adipiscor, condico, crēdo, frustror, fūro, laudo, libero, lēvo, participo, prohibeo; thus, Abstinēto irarum. HOR. Desine querelarum. ID. Regnā ut populorum. ID. Lēvas me labōrum. PLAUT.

Note 2.—All these verbs, however, in Obs. 4 and 5, have, for the most part, a different construction, being followed sometimes, as active transitive verbs, by the accusative, and more frequently, by the accusative or ablative with a preposition

373.—RULE XIV. Recordor, memini, reminiscor, and obliviscor, govern the genitive or accusative; as,

Recordor lectionis, or lectionem, I remember the lesson.
Obliviscor injurie, or injuriam, I forget an injury.

374.—EXPLANATION.—When these verbs are followed by an accusative, they are considered transitive, and fall under Rule XX. But when a genitive follows them, they are regarded as intransitive; and the genitive denotes that in regard to which the memory, &c., is exercised.

375.—Obs. 6. These verbs are often construed with an infinitive or some part of a sentence, instead of the genitive or accusative; as, Memini vidēre virginem. TER.

376.—Obs. 7. Recordor and memini, signifying "to remember," are sometimes followed by an ablative with de. Memini, signifying "to make mention of," has a genitive or an ablative with de. Ei venit in mentem, being equivalent to recordatur, has a genitive after it; as, Ei venit in mentem potestatis tue.

N. B. For the genitive with verbs of accusing, see § 122;—with verbs of valuing, § 122, R. XXVIII.;—with Passive verbs, § 126;—with Impersonal verbs, § 113;—with Adverbs, § 135; denoting place, § 130, 548 and 558.

377.—§ 109. CONSTRUCTION OF THE DATIVE.

1. The Dative is used to express the remote object to which any quality or action, or any state or condition of things tends, or to which they refer. This tendency is usually expressed in English by the words TO or FOR. Hence,

2. The dative, in Latin, is governed by nouns, adjectives, and verbs; or denotes the object to which they refer.

3. A use of the dative of the personal pronouns, common in Greek, and usually called the dative redundant, has also been imitated in Latin. See Gr. Gram., 517, Rem. The following are examples: Quo tantum MIHI dexter ābis? VIRG. Fur MIHI es. PLAUT. Tongilium MIHI eduat. CIC. Ubi nunc vobis deus ille magister? VIRG. Ecce tibi Sebōsus. CIC. Suo sibi gadio hunc jugulo.—But, though the dative thus used is said to be redundant, still it adds something to the meaning or emphasis of the expression, or shows that the person expressed in the dative has some relation to, or participation in, the fact expressed; thus, Fur mihi es, "(In my opinion,) you are a thief."

§ 110.—DATIVE GOVERNED BY SUBSTANTIVES.

378.—RULE XV. Substantives frequently govern the dative of their object; as,

Hostis virtutibus,	An enemy to virtue.
Exitium pecōri,	Destruction to the flock.
Obtemperantia legibus,	Obedience to the laws.

379.—EXPLANATION.—Under this rule, the governing substantive generally denotes an affection, or some advantage, or disadvantage, or act, which is limited, as to its object, by the dative following it, as in the preceding examples.

380.—Obs. 1. Rule. The dative of the possessor is governed by substantives denoting the thing possessed; as,

Ei vēnit in mentem,	It came into his mind.
Cui corpus porrigitur,	Whose body is extended.

381.—Obs. 2. The dative in this construction is said to be used for, or instead of, the genitive, as in Rule VI. There are but few instances, however, in which the genitive under that rule could, with propriety, be changed for the dative. On the other hand, when the dative is used, the genitive would fail to express so precisely the idea intended. In this construction, the noun governing the dative is connected with a verb in such a way as clearly to show, that the dative is rather the object of that which is expressed by the verb and noun together, than under the government of the noun alone. Thus, in the first example, ei denotes the person to whom that which is expressed by vēnit in mentem, occurred. So, corpus porrigitur states what was done to the person represented by cui. The principle of this construction will be more manifest from what is stated § 111.

§ 111. THE DATIVE GOVERNED BY ADJECTIVES

382.—RULE XVI. Adjectives signifying profit or disprofit, likeness or unlikeness, govern the dative; as,

Utilis bello,	Useful for war.
Similis patri,	Like his father.

383.—EXPLANATION.—The dative under this rule, like the genitive under Rule IX, is used to limit the meaning of the adjective to a particular object or end, to which the quality expressed by it is directed. Thus, in the first example, utilis means "useful" in a general sense; bello limits the use ness intended to a particular object, "war." The dative, thus used is rendered by its ordinary signs to or for, but sometimes by other prepositions, or without a preposition, as in the last example.

OBSERVATIONS.

384.—Obs. 1. To this rule belong adjectives signifying :

- 1st. Profit, or disprofit ; as, benignus, bonus, commōdus, felix ;—damnosus, dirus, exitiosus, funestus, &c.
- 2d. Pleasure, or pain ; as, acceptus, dulcis, grātus, jucundus, lætus, suavis ;—acerbus, amarus, ingrātus, molestus, &c.
- 3d. Friendship, or hatred ; as, æquus, amicus, blandus, cārus, deditus, fidus ;—adversus, asper, crudelis, infestus, &c.
- 4th. Perspicuity, or obscurity ; as, apertus, certus, compertus, conspicuus, nūtus ;—ambiguus, dubius, ignōtus, obscurus, &c.
- 5th. Propinquity ; as, finitimus, propior, proximus, propinquus, socius, vicinus, affinis, &c.
- 6th. Fitness, or unfitness ; as, aptus, appositus, habilis, idoneus, opportunus—ineptus, inhabilis, importunus, &c.
- 7th. Ease, or difficulty ; as, facilis, levis, obvius, pervius ;—difficilis, arduus, grāvis. Also those denoting propensity or readiness ; as, pronus, proclivis, propensus, &c.
- 8th. Equality, or inequality ; likeness, or unlikeness ; as, æquālis, æquāvus, par, compar ;—inequālis, impar, dispar, discors ;—similis, amūlus ;—dissimilis, alienus, &c.
- 9th. Several adjectives compounded with CON ; as, cognātus, congruus, consōnus, conveniens, continens, &c.
- 10th. Verbal adjectives in BILIS ; as, amabilis, terribilis, optabilis, and the like.

385.—Obs. 2.—Exc. The following adjectives have sometimes the dative after them, and sometimes the genitive ; viz: affinis, similis, commūnis, par, proprius, finitimus, fidus, conternimus, superstes, conscius, æquālis, contrarius, and adversus ; as, similis tibi, or tui.

Consciūs and some other adjectives, govern the dative according to this rule, and, at the same time, a genitive by Rule IX. ; as, Mens sibi conscia recti, "a mind conscious to itself of rectitude." VIRG.

386.—Obs. 3. Adjectives signifying motion or tendency to a thing take after them the accusative with ad, rather than the dative ; as, proclivus, pronus, propensus, vëlox, celer, tardus, piger, &c. ; thus, Piger ad penas. OVID.

387.—Obs. 4. Adjectives signifying usefulness or fitness, and the contrary, often take the accusative with ad ; as, utilis ad nullam rem, "good for nothing."

388.—Obs. 5. Propior and proximus take after them sometimes the genitive, sometimes the dative, or the accusative governed by ad understood ; as, propior caliginis aer ; propius vero ; proximus (ad) Pompeium

389.—Obs. 6. Some adjectives that govern the dative sometimes instead of the dative, have an ablative with a preposition expressed or understood; as, discors secum; alienum nostrâ amicitia.

390.—Obs. 7. Idem is sometimes followed by the dative, chiefly in the poets; as, Jupiter idem omnibus; Invitum qui servat, idem facit cecidenti. In prose, idem is followed commonly by qui, ac, atque, ut or quam, 728.

§ 112. THE DATIVE GOVERNED BY VERBS.

391.—RULE XVII. All verbs govern the dative of the object or end, to which the action, or state expressed by them, is directed; as,

Finis venit imperio,	An end has come to the empire.
Animus redit hostibus,	Courage returns to the enemy.
Tibi seris, tibi metis,	You sow for yourself, you reap for yourself.

392.—EXPLANATION.—This rule may be considered as general, applying to all cases in which a verb is followed by a dative. When the verb is transitive active, it governs its remote object in the dative, not as that upon which the action is exerted, but as that to which it is directed, while, at the same time, it governs also its immediate object in the accusative (501). If intransitive, it will be followed by a dative only.

This rule, being applicable to all cases in which a dative follows a verb, is too general to be useful, as it could be applied correctly without much discrimination. It will therefore be of more advantage, when it can be done, to apply the special rules comprehended under it as follows:

SPECIAL RULES.

393.—I. Sum, and its compounds, govern the dative (except possum); as,

Praefuit exercitui,	He commanded the army.
Debemus omnibus prodesse,	We ought to do good to all.

394.—II. The verb Est, signifying to be, or to belong to, governs the dative of the possessor; as,

Est mihi liber,	A book is to me, i. e. I have a book.
Sunt mihi libri,	Books are to me, i. e. I have books.
Scio libros esse mihi,	I know that books are to me, i. e.—that I have, &c.

395.—EXPLANATION.—In this construction, the dative expresses the person or thing, to or for which the subject spoken of, is, or exists. The verb will always be in the third person singular, or plural, in any tense, or

In the Infinitive.—This very common Latin construction will be rendered correctly into English, by the verb "have," instead of "is," &c., of which the word in the dative, in Latin, becomes the subject or nominative in English, and the Latin nominative, the object, as is shown in the above examples.—For the verb est with the gerund, see 699.

396.—Obs. 1. The dative is used in a similar manner after fōrem, suppēto; dēsum, deficio, &c.; as, Pauper non est cui rerum suppētit usus, "He is not poor to whom the use of property is supplied," i. e. who has the use of property. Hor. So, si mihi cauda fōret.—Abest and deest mihi, as opposed to est mihi, mean, "I have not."—So, defuit ars vōbis,—iac mihi non dēfit,—nisi vinum vōbis defecisset,—&c.

Note.—An adjective, or participle, denoting willingness or unwillingness, agreeing with the dative after est, is sometimes put for a verb of like signification, having the word in the dative for its subject; thus, Mihi vōlenti est=vōlo; tibi invīto fuit=noluisti, &c.; as, Aliquid mi i vōlenti est, "I like (or wish) a thing;" Aliquid mihi invīto est, "I dislike a thing." So, Quibus bellum volentibus erat, "Who wished for war," TAC., Agr., 18;—Neque plebi militia volenti esse putabatur, "It was thought the Common people did not wish for war," or, "That war would not be agreeable to the common people."—This is a Greek construction, for which see Greek Grammar, § 148. Obs. 3.

397.—III. Verbs compounded of sātis, bene, and māle, govern the dative; as,

Legibus satisficit,	He satisfied the laws.
Benefacere reipublicæ,	To benefit the state.

398.—Obs. 2. These compounds are often written separately, and the dative is governed by the combined force of the two words.

399.—IV. Many verbs compounded with these ten prepositions ad, ante, con,—in, inter, ob,—post, præ, sub, and super, govern the dative; as,

Annue cæptis,	Favor our undertakings.
----------------------	-------------------------

400.—Verbs governing the dative under this rule are such as the following; viz.

1. Accēdo, accresco, accumbo, acquiesco, adno, adnāto, adequō, adhæreo, adsto, adstipulor, advolvor, affulgeo, allābor, allabōro, annuo, appareo, applaudo, appropinquo, arrideo, aspīro, assentior, assideo, assisto, assuecō, assurgo.

2. Antecello, anteco, antesto, anteverto.

3. Collūdo, concīno, consōno, convīvo.

4. Incumbo, indormio, indubito, inhio, ingemisco, inhæreo, insideo, insdeor, insto, insisto, insūdo, insulto. inrigilo, illacrīmo, illūdo, immūno immūrior, immūror impendo.

5. Intervenio, intermīco, intercēdo, intercīdo, interjacio.

6. Obrēpo, obluco, obrecto, obstrēpo, obmurmūro, occumbo, occurro, curso obslo, obsisto, obvenio.

7. Postfēro, posthabeo, postpōno, postpūto, postscribo, with an accusative.

8. Præcēdo, præcurro, præeo, præsideo, præluceo, præniteo, præsto, prævalco, præverto.

9. Succēdo, succumbo, sufficio, suffrāgor, subcreasco, suboleo, subjaceo, subtrēpo.

10. Supervenio, supercurro, supersto. But most verbs compounded with SUPER govern the accusative.

401.—Obs. 3. Some verbs compounded with ab, de, ex, circum, and contra; also compounds of di and dis, meaning generally “to differ,” are sometimes followed by the dative. These, however, chiefly fall under Rule XXXI, § 125.

402.—Obs. 4. Many verbs compounded with prepositions, instead of the dative, take the case of the preposition, which is sometimes repeated. Some intransitive verbs so compounded, either take the dative, or, acquiring a transitive signification by the force of the preposition, govern the accusative by Rule XX.; as, Helvetii reliquos Gallos virtute præcēdunt, “The Helvetii surpass the other Gauls in bravery.”

403.—V. Verbs govern the dative which signify to profit or hurt;—to favor or assist, and the contrary;—to command and obey, to serve and resist;—to threaten and to be angry; to trust.

404.—EXPLANATION.—Verbs governing the dative, under this and the preceding rule, are always intransitives or transitives used intransitively, and consequently it is applicable to the active voice only. The dative after passive verbs, does not come under these rules, but belongs to § 126, Rule XXXIII.

405.—Obs. 5. The verbs under this rule are such as the following :

1st. To profit or hurt; as,

Proficio, prōsum, placeo, commōdo, propicio, caveo, metuo, timeo, consūla for prospicio. Likewise, noceo, officio, incommōdo, displiceo, &c.

2d. To favor or assist, and the contrary; as,

Faveo, gratūlor, gratifīcor grātor, ignosco, indulgeo, parco, adūlor, plaudo, blandior, lenocīnor, palpor, assentor, subparasūtor Likewise, suxūlior, adminicūlor, subvenio, succurro, patrocīnor, medcor, iudicior opitūlor Likewise, decrōgo, detraho, invideo, amūlor.

3d. To command and obey, to serve and resist; as,

Impēro, præcipio, mando; modēror, for mōdum adhibeo. Likewise, pareo, ausculto, obedio, obsequor, obtempēro, mō-em gēro, morigēror obscunda

Likewise, fam̄lor, servio, inservio, ministro, ancillor Likewise, repugnab̄sto, reductor, ren̄tor, resisto, refrāgor, adversor.

4th. To threaten and to be angry; as.

Minor, comm̄nor, irascor, succenseo.

5th. To trust; as, F̄ido, conf̄ido, crido, diff̄ido.

To these, add, nūbo, excello, harco, supplico, c̄do, desp̄ero, op̄eror, p̄c̄st̄ol̄or, p̄c̄v̄ar̄cor; recipio, "to promise;" renuncio; respondeo, "to answer," or "satisfy;" temp̄ero, studeo; vāco, "to be at leisure for;" convicior.

Exc.—Jubeo jūvo, lādo, and offendo, govern the accusative.

406.—Obs. 6. Many of these verbs, however, are variously construed, the same verb sometimes governing the dative according to this rule; and sometimes, taken in a transitive sense, governing the accusative by Rule XX. Sometimes they are followed by an accusative with a preposition, and sometimes by an ablative with a preposition. Thus, imp̄nd̄ere alicui, o. aliquem, or in aliquem, "to hang over:" congruere alicui, cum aliqua re inter se, "to agree."

407.—Obs. 7. Many verbs, when they vary their construction, vary their meaning also; as, Timeo tibi,—de te,—pro te, signifies, "I fear for you," i. e. "for your safety;" but timeo te, means, "I fear you," "I dread you." Consūlo tibi, is "I consult for you," i. e. "for your safety." Consūlo te, means "I consult you. I ask your advice;" and so of others.

408.—Obs. 8. Verbs signifying motion or tendency to a thing, instead of the dative, have usually the preposition ad or in with the accusative; as, clāmor it ad cælum; seldom, and chiefly with the poets, cælo

§ 113. DATIVE GOVERNED BY IMPERSONALS:

409.—RULE XVIII. An impersonal verb governs the dative; as,

Exp̄d̄it reip̄blica,

It is profitable for the state.

410.—EXPLANATION.—This rule applies to the dative governed by the passive of all those verbs which, in the active voice, govern the dative only, according to Nos. 397, 399 and 403,—the passive of all intransitives being used only impersonally (223–3); thus, fav̄etur mihi, "I am favored." not ego favor. When the passives of such verbs are used personally, then the verb is to be considered as used in a transitive sense. 406.

OBSERVATIONS.

411.—Obs. 1. These verbs, potest, c̄p̄it, inc̄p̄it, des̄init, debet and v̄let, before the infinitive of impersonals, become impersonal also; as, non p̄t̄est cr̄di tibi, "you cannot be believed."

412.—Obs. 2. Some verbs are used both personally and impersonally as, doleo, "I grieve;" dolet mihi, "it grieves me," i. e. "I grieve." So also verbs commonly used impersonally sometimes have a subject in the nominative, and are, of course, used personally. This is the case especially with such nominatives as these—id, hoc, illud, quid, quod, nihil, &c.; as, Nonne hæc te pudent? "Are you not ashamed of these things?"

413.—Obs. 3. An infinitive mood or part of a sentence is commonly joined to an impersonal verb, which, in fact, may be regarded as its subject; as, delectat me studere, "it delights me to study," i. e. "to study delights me" 307 and 662.

414.—Obs. 4. The dative after impersonals is sometimes understood; as, faciat quod libet (sc. sibi)

415.—Exc. I. Rēfert and Intērest govern the genitive; as,

Rēfert patris,
Intērest omnium,

It concerns my father.
It is the interest of all.

416.—But, instead of the genitives mei, tu, sui, &c., the possessives mea, tua, sua, nostra, vestra, are used; as,

Non mea rēfert,

It does not concern me.

417.—Obs. 5. The case and construction of these possessives are in much doubt. Some regard them as the accusative plural neuter agreeing with negotia or commōda governed by ad; as, non (ad negotia) mea rēfert. But as the final ā, in this construction, is found in Terence to be long, others consider it in the ablative singular, feminine, agreeing with re or causa governed by in; as, in mea re non rēfert; while others suppose that mea, tua, &c., are abbreviations from meam, tuam, &c., agreeing with rem, and hence the final ā long. Non nostrum tantas componere lites. It is more manifest that rēfert, in which ē is long, is not from rēfero, but from res and fero, and means, impersonally, "it profits," "it befits," "it concerns," &c. Sometimes it is used personally with hoc, id, or an infinitive, for its subject. It is equally obvious that if mea or tua, or sua, &c., agrees with some word understood, then the genitive under the rule may be governed by the same word, according to Rule VI.; i. e. if mea rēfert is for mea negotia, &c., rēfert, then rēfert patris may be for rēfert negotia patris, whether negotia in the accusative, or re in the ablative, be governed directly by the verb, or by a preposition understood.

418.—Obs. 6. Instead of the genitive, these verbs sometimes take the accusative with a preposition; as, rēfert ad me, for rēfert mea, i. e. mei. Sometimes they are used absolutely, without a case expressed.

419.—Exc. II. These five Misēret, pœnitet, pūdet, vœdet, and piget, govern the accusative of the immediate, with the genitive of the remote object; as,

Misèret me tui,	I pity you.
Pœnitètet me peccâti,	I repent of my sin.
Tuèdet me vitæ,	I am weary of life.
Pûdet me culpæ,	I am ashamed of my fault.

420.—EXPLANATION.—These examples may be rendered literally thus: "It grieves me on account of you," i. e. ergo, or causa tui;—"It repents me of my sin;"—"It wearies me of life;"—"It shames me of my fault." For the method of rendering impersonal verbs in a personal form, as in the above examples, see 223-6.

421.—Obs. 7. The infinitive mood or part of a sentence may supply the place of the genitive; as, pœnitètet me peccâsse, or quod peccavèrim. Non pœnitètet me quantum profecèrim. Misèret is found with an accusative instead of the genitive; as, Menedèmi vicem misèret me. The accusative of the immediate object is sometimes omitted; as, Scelèrum si bêne pœnitètet (scil. nos). HOR.

422.—Obs. 8. The preterites of these verbs, in the passive form, govern the same cases as the active; as, Miseritum est me tuarum fortunarum. TER. Miserescit and miserètur are sometimes used impersonally; as, Miserescit me tui. TER. Misereâtur te fratrum; Neque me tui, neque tuorum liberorum misereri potest. CIC.

423.—Exc. III. Dêcet, delectat, jûvat, and oportet, govern the accusative of a person with the infinitive; as,

Delectat me studère,	It delights me to study.
Non dêcet te rixâri,	It does not become you to quarrel.

424.—Obs. 9. These verbs are sometimes used personally; as, Parvam parva dêcent. HOR. Dêcet sometimes governs the dative; as, Itis nobis dêcet. TER.

425.—Obs. 10. Oportet, instead of the infinitive, elegantly takes the subjunctive with ut, "that," understood; as, Sibi (ut) quisque consûlat oportet. CIC. When followed by the perfect participle, esse or fuisse is understood, which, being supplied, makes the perfect infinitive.

426.—Obs. 11. Fallit, fûgit, pratèrit, lâtet, when used impersonally are construed with the accusative and infinitive; as, fûgit me ad te scribere. CIC.

§ 114. VERBS GOVERNING TWO DATIVES.

427.—RULE XIX. The verbs sum, do, habeo, and some others, with the dative of the object.

govern also the dative of the end, or design;
as,

- |                                 |  |
|---------------------------------|--|
| 1 Est mihi voluptāti,    | { It is to me for a pleasure, i. e.It is, or brings, a pleasure to me.     |
| 2 Hoc misit mihi munēri, | This he sent as a present to me.   |
| 3 Ducitur honōri tibi,   | { It is reckoned to you for an honor, i. e.It is reckoned an honor to you. |

428.—EXPLANATION.—In these examples, it is manifest that the words voluptāti, honōri, and munēri, each express the end or design for which the thing spoken of, or referred to is, is reckoned, is sent, to the object expressed by the other datives, mihi and tibi. See also 431.

The verb sum, with the dative of the end, may be variously rendered, according to the sense, by such words as, brings, affords, serves, &c. For, the sign of the dative, is often omitted, especially after sum.

OBSERVATIONS.

429.—Obs. 1. Verbs governing two datives under this rule, are chiefly sum, fōre, fiō, habeo, do, verto, relinquo, tribuo, duco; and a few others.

430.—Obs. 2. Instead of the dative of the end, the nominative after est, &c., or the accusative in apposition with the object of the preceding verb, expresses the same thing; as, Amor est exitium pecōri, for exitio; Se Achilli comitem esse datum dicit, for comiti. In the first example, exitium is the nominative after est, by Rule V. In the second, comitem is in apposition with se, by Rule I.

431.—Obs. 3. Intransitive verbs, such as sum, fōre, fiō, eo, curro, precificor, venio, cēdo, suppedito, are followed by two datives, as in the first example; transitive verbs in the active voice, besides the two datives, have an accusative expressed or understood by Rule XX., as in the second example; and in the passive voice, two datives, as in the third example, the one by Rule XXIX., and the other by this rule.

432.—Obs. 4. The dative of the object (commonly a person) is often to be supplied; as, est exemplo, indicio, præsidio, usui, &c., scil. mihi, alicui, hominibus, or some such word. So, ponere, opponere, pignori, scil. alicui, “to pledge;” canere receptui, scil. suīs militibus, “to sound a retreat;” habere curam, questui, odio, voluptati, studio, &c., scil. sibi.

433.—Obs. 5. To this rule is sometimes referred the forms of naming, so common in Latin; such as, Est mihi nomen Alexandro; Cui cognomen Iūlio additur. The construction 261 is much better.

434.—Obs. 6. From constructions under this rule, should be distinguished those in which the second dative may be governed by another word in the dative, according to 378.

N. B. For the dative with the accusative, see § 123.

For the dative after the passive voice, see § 126.

For the dative after particles, see 598 and 600.—After
Hei and Vae, 453

435. —§ 115. CONSTRUCTION OF THE ACCUSATIVE.

1. The accusative, in Latin, is used to express the immediate object of a transitive active verb,—or, in other words, that on which its action is exerted, and which is affected by it.

2. It is used to express the object to which something tends or relates, in which sense it is governed by a preposition, expressed or understood. When used to express the remote object of a transitive verb, or certain relations of measure, distance, time, and place, the preposition is usually omitted.

§ 116. ACCUSATIVE GOVERNED BY VERBS.

436.—RULE XX. A transitive verb in the active voice, governs the accusative; as,

Ama Deum,                                      Love God.

SPECIAL RULES.

437.—I. A transitive deponent verb governs the accusative; as,

Reverere parentes,                      Reverence your parents.

438.—II. An intransitive verb may govern a noun of kindred signification, in the accusative; as,

Pugnare pugnam,                      To fight a battle.

439.—EXPLANATION.—These rules apply to all verbs which have an accusative as their immediate object; and that accusative may be any thing used substantively, whether it be a noun, a pronoun, an infinitive mood, or clause of a sentence. Intransitives under Rule II. are often followed by the ablative, with a preposition expressed or understood; as, Ire (in) itinere, gaudere (cum) gaudio, &c.

440.—Obs. 1. Verbs signifying to name, choose, reckon, constitute, and the like, besides the accusative of the object, take also the accusative of the name, office character, &c. ascribed to it; as, urbem Romam vocavit, “he called the city Rome.” All such verbs, in the passive, have the same case after as before them. (320).

441.—Obs. 2. Verbs commonly intransitive, are sometimes used in a transitive sense, and are therefore followed by an accusative under this rule; thus,

TRANSITIVE.

INTRANSITIVE.

Abhor-ēre fāmiam, to dread infamy.

Abhorrēre a litibus, to be averse, &c.

Abolēre monumenta, to abolish, &c.

Memoria abolēvit, memory failed.

Declināre ictum, to avoid a blow.

Declināre lōco, to remove from, &c.

Laborāre arma, to forge arms.

Laborāre morbo, to be ill.

Morāri iter, to stop.

Morāri in urbe, to stay in the city.

To these may be added horrēre, furēre, vivēre, ludēre; and verbs signifying to taste of, to smell of, &c.; as, horrēre aliquid; furēre opus cœdis; Bacchanalia vivunt; ludēre pila; redolēre vinum; pastillos Rufillus olet, Gorgonius hircum; mella herbam sapiunt; unguenta terram sapiunt.

442.—Obs. 3. The accusative, after many intransitive verbs, depends on a preposition understood; as, Morientem nomine clāmat; Meas quōror fortūnas; Num id lacrymat virgo; Quicquid delirant rēges, plectuntur Achivi; Stygias juravimus undas; Maria ambulavisset, terram navigasset, VIRG.; Pascuntur vero sylvas, ID.; Ire exsequias; Ibo amicam meam, PLAUT.; &c. In these, and similar sentences, the prepositions ob, propter, circa, per, ad, in, &c., may be supplied.

This construction of intransitive verbs is most common with the neuter accusatives id, quid, aliquid, quicquid, nilil, idem, illud, tantum, quantum, hoc, multa, alia, pauca, &c.

443.—Obs. 4. The accusative, after many verbs, depends on a preposition with which they are compounded. This is the case,

1st. With intransitive verbs; as, Gentes quæ mære illud adjacent, "the nations which border upon that sea." So, ineunt prælium, adire provinciam, transcurrere mære, allōquor te, &c. Thus compounded, many verbs seem to become transitive in sense, and so govern the accusative by this rule. In general, however, they fall under Rule LII.

2d. With transitive verbs, in which case two accusatives follow—one governed by the verb, and another by the preposition; as, Omniem equitatum pontem transducit, "He leads all the cavalry over the bridge;"—Hellespontum copias trajecit. Here also the second accusative falls under Rule LII.

Note 1.—After most verbs, however, compounded with prepositions governing the accusative, the preposition is repeated before it; as, Cæsar se ad neminem adjunxit.

444.—Obs. 5. a. The accusative after a transitive verb, especially if a reflexive pronoun, or something indefinite or easily supplied, is sometimes understood; as, tum præra avertit, scil. se; flumina precipitant, scil. se; faciam vitulâ, scil. sacra; bene fecit Silius, scil. hoc.

b Sometimes the verb which governs the accusative is omitted, especially in rapid or animated discourse; thus, the interrogative quid often stands alone for quid ais? quid censes? or the like. So also, quid vèro? nuid igitur? quid ergo? quid enim? Quid quod, commonly rendered

"nay," "nay even," "but now," "moreover," may be resolved, thus, Quia dicam de eo quòd. With quid multa? quid plūra? ne multa, ne plūra, scil. verba, supply dicam; as, Quid dicam multa (verba)? But, quid postea? quid tum? and the like, may be regarded as the nominative to sequitur understood; and the phrase quid ita? may be resolved by supplying the preceding verb or some part of facio.

445.—Obs. 6. RULE. The infinitive mood, or part of a sentence (439), is often used as the object of a transitive verb. Instead of the accusative (665 and 670, Note); as,

Da mihi fallere,	Give me to deceive.
Cupio me esse clementem,	I desire to be gentle.
Statuerunt ut naves conscenderent.	They determined that they would embark.

Note 2.—In such constructions, the subject of the clause is sometimes, by a Greek idiom, put in the accusative as the object of the verb; as, Nosti Marcellum, quam tardus sit; instead of Nosti quam tardus Marcellus sit. So, illum ut vivat optant, instead of ut ille vivat optant; or illum vivere optant. Gr. Gram., § 150, Obs. 4.

446.—Obs. 7. A few cases occur in which the accusative is put after a noun derived from a verb, or the verbal adjectives in bundus; as, Quia tibi huc receptio ad te est meum virum? "Wherefore do you receive my husband hither to you?" PLAUT. Quid tibi hanc additio est. Id. Vitabundus castra. Liv.

447.—Obs. 8. Many verbs considered transitive in Latin, are intransitive in English, and must have a preposition supplied in translating; as, Ut caveret me, "That he should beware of me." On the other hand, many intransitive verbs in Latin, i. e. verbs which do not take an accusative after them, are rendered into English by transitive verbs; as, Fortuna favet fortibus, "Fortune favors the brave."

N. B. For the Accusative governed by Recordor, &c., see 373;—with another accusative, 508;—governed by prepositions, 602, 607, 608, 613;—denoting time, 565, R. XLI.;—place, 553;—measure or distance, 573; in exclamations, 451.

§ 117. CONSTRUCTION OF THE VOCATIVE.

448.—The vocative is used to designate the person or thing addressed, but forms no part of the proposition with which it stands; and it is used either with, or without, an interjection.

449.—RULE XXI. The interjections O, heu, and proh. are construed with the vocative; as,

O formose puer!

O fair boy.

450.—To these, may be added other interjections of calling or addressing; as, ah, au, ehem, eheu, eho, eja, hem, heus, hui, io, ohe, and vah, which are often followed by the vocative: as, Heus Syre, Ohe libelle.

451.—Obs. 1. In exclamations, the person or thing wondered at, is put in the accusative, either with or without an interjection; as, Me miserum, or, Heu me miserum, "Ah, wretch that I am!"—sometimes in the nominative; as, O vir fortis atque amicus, TER.; Audi tu, populus Romanus, LIV

452.—Obs. 2. The vocative is sometimes omitted, while a genitive depending upon it remains; as, O misera gentis, sc. homines, LUCAN.

453.—Obs. 3. The interjections Hei and Væ, govern the dative; as, Hei mihi, "Ah me!" Væ vobis, "Woe to you!"

454.—Obs. 4. Ecce and en, usually take the nominative; as, Ecce nova turba atque rixa. En ego.

§ 118. CONSTRUCTION OF THE ABLATIVE.

455.—The ablative is used in Latin generally, to express that from which something is separated or taken; or, as that by or with which, something is done, or exists. It is governed by nouns, adjectives, verbs, and prepositions, and also is used to express various relations of measure, distance, time, and place, &c.

THE ABLATIVE AFTER NOUNS.

456.—RULE XXII. Opus and usus, signifying need, require the ablative; as,

Est opus pecuniâ,	There is need of money.
Nunc usus viribus,	Now, there is need of strength.

457.—EXPLANATION.—The ablative, after these nouns, is probably governed by a preposition, such as pro, understood. In this sense, they are used only with the verb sum, of which opus is sometimes the subject, and sometimes the predicate; usus, the subject only.

OBSERVATIONS.

458.—Obs. 1. Opus, in the predicate, is commonly used as an indeclinable adjective, in which case it rarely has the ablative; as, Dux nobis opus est, "We need a general," CIC. So, Dices nummos mihi opus esse CIC.; Nobis exempla opus sunt, CIC. In these examples, opus, as an indeclinable adjective, agrees with dux, nummos, exempla, by Rule II. This construction is most common with neuter adjectives and pronouns, and is always used with those denoting quantity; as, Quod non opus est, usque carum est. Cato apud SEN.

459.—Obs. 2. Opus and usus are often joined with the perfect participle; as, opus maturato, "need of haste;" opus consulto, "need of deliberation;" usus facto, "need of action." The participle has sometimes a substantive joined with it after opus; as, Mihi opus fuit Hirtio convento, "It behoved me to meet with Hirtius," CIC. Sometimes the supine is joined with it; as, Ita dictu opus est, TER.

460.—Obs. 3. Opus is often followed by the infinitive, or by the subjunctive with ut; as, Siquid forte, quod opus sit scribi, CIC. Nunc tibi opus est, agrum ut te adsimiles, PLAUT. Sometimes it is absolutely without a case, or with a case understood; as, Sic opus est; Si opus est.

461.—Exc. Opus and usus are sometimes followed by the genitive, by Rule VI.; as, Argenti opus fuit, "There was need of money;" sometimes by an accusative, in which case an infinitive is probably understood; as,
Uero opus est cibum; scil. habere, PLAUT.

§ 119. ABLATIVE GOVERNED BY ADJECTIVES.

[For the ablative governed by adjectives of plenty or want, see 361.]

462.—RULE XXIII. These adjectives dignus, indignus, contentus, præditus, captus, and frētus;
also the participles nātus, sātus, ortus, editus, and the like, denoting origin, govern the ablative; as,

Dignus honore,	Worthy of honor.
Contentus parvo,	Content with little.
Præditus virtute,	Endued with virtue.
Captus oculis,	Blind (injured in his eyes).
Frētus viribus,	Trusting in his strength.
Ortus regibus,	Descended from kings.

463.—EXPLANATION.—The ablative, after these adjectives and participles, is governed by some preposition understood; as, cum, de, e, ex in, &c.
Sometimes it is expressed; as, Ortus ex concubina, SALLUST.

464.—Obs. 1. Instead of the ablative, these adjectives often take an infinitive, or a subjunctive clause with qui, or ut; as, Dignus amari, VIRG.; Dignus qui impèret, CIC.; Non sum dignus, ut figam pælum in parietem, PLAUT.

465.—Exc. Dignus, indignus, and contentus, are sometimes followed by the genitive; as, Dignus avorum, VIRG. For the ablative governed by adjectives of plenty or want, see 361. ◊

§ 120.—THE ABLATIVE WITH THE COMPARATIVE DEGREE.

466.—REM. When two objects are compared by means of the comparative degree, a conjunction, such as, quam, ac, atque, &c., signifying 'than,' is sometimes expressed, and sometimes omitted. In the first, the construction of the case falls under other rules; in the second, it falls under the following; viz.

467.—RULE XXIV. The comparative degree, without a conjunction, governs the ablative; as,

Dulcior melle,
Præstantior auro,
Perennius ære,

Sweeter than honey.
More precious than gold.
More durable than brass.

468.—EXPLANATION.—The ablative, under this rule, is supposed to be governed more properly by præ understood, which is sometimes expressed. Urus præ cæteris fortior.

OBSERVATIONS.

469.—Obs. 1. Of these two modes of comparison, the ablative without a conjunction is commonly used, when the object is compared with the subject of a proposition, or with a word in the vocative or nominative, addressed; as, Quid magis est durum saxo, quid mollius undâ? Neminem Romanorum eloquentiorem fuisse veteres judicârunt Cicerone; O fons Bandusie, splendidior vitæ, HOR. But when, in such a comparison, quam is used, the second substantive will be in the same case with the first, because, in the same construction; as, Melior est certa pax, quam sperata victoria (est); Meliorem esse certam pacem putabat, quam speratam pacem (esse).

Note 1.—The construction of the ablative without quam, is sometimes used, especially by the poets, when the first substantive is not the subject of a verb; as, Exegi monumentum ære perennius, HOR.; Cur olivum sanguine viperino cautius vitat? HOR. This is always so, when the second object of comparison is expressed by a relative; as, Hic Attalo, quo graviorem inimicum non habui, sororem in matrimonium dedit. “He gave his sister in marriage to Attalus, than whom, &c.”

470.—Obs. 2. When the object is compared with the predicate of a proposition, the conjunction quam is commonly used, and then there are two cases.

- 1st. If the verb after quam is not expressed, but may easily be supplied from the preceding clause, and if the first substantive is in the accusative, the second is put by attraction in the accusative also; as, Ego hominem callidiorem vidi neminem quam Phormionem, instead of quam Phormio est.
- 2d. But if the verb after quam cannot be supplied from the preceding clause, the substantive must be in the nominative with est, fuit, &c., expressed; as, Meliorem quam ego sum, suppono tibi; Hæc sunt verba M. Varronis, quam fuit Clodius, doctioris; Argentum reddidisti L. Carridio, homini non gratiosiori quam Cn. Clodius est, CIC.

471.—Obs. 3. Quam is frequently understood after plus, minus, and amplius, and sometimes after major, minor, and some other comparatives without a change of case; as, Capta plus (quam) quinque millia hominum.

"More than five thousand men were taken;" Obsides ne minores (quam) octonūm denūm annōrum.

Note.—These words are also followed by the ablative without quam, according to the rule.

472.—Obs. 4. When the second member of a comparison is an infinitive mood, or a part of a sentence, quam is always expressed; as, Nihil turpius est quam mentiri.

473.—Obs. 5. The comparative is often followed by the ablative of the following nouns, adjectives, and participles; viz. opiniōne, spe, expectatiōne, fide, dicto, solito, æquo, credibili, justo; as, citius dicto, tumida æquora plācat, VIRG. These ablatives often supply the place of a clause; as, gravius æquo, equivalent to gravius quam æquum est.

These ablatives are sometimes omitted; as, Liberius vivēbat, sc. æquo, "He lived more freely than was proper;" i. e. "He lived too freely," or, "rather freely."

474.—Obs. 6. When one quality is compared with another, in the same subject, the adjectives expressing them are both put in the positive degree with māgis, or in the comparative connected by quam; as, ars magis magna quam difficilis. Triumphus clarior quam gratior, "a triumph more famous than acceptable." Gr. Gr. 393-3.

475.—Obs. 7. The prepositions præ, ante, præter, and supra, are sometimes used with a comparative; as, scelere ante alios immanior omnes: also with a superlative; as, ante alios carissimus. Pro is used after quam, to express proportion; as, Pralium atrocius quam pro numero pugnantium.

476.—Obs. 8. Māgis and minus joined to the positive degree, are equivalent to the comparative; as, O luce māgis dilecta. Māgis and plus joined with a comparative, only strengthen it; as, Nihil invenies māgis hoc certius.

477.—Obs. 9. Inferior, sometimes governs the dative; as, vir nulla arte cuiquam inferior; the ablative also is found, but it is usually followed by quam.

478.—Obs. 10. Alius is sometimes construed like comparatives, and sometimes, though rarely, is followed by the ablative; as, non pūtes ilium sapiente bonoque beatum.

479.—Obs. 11. The conjunction ac, or atque, in the sense of than, is sometimes used after the comparative degree (728), instead of quam: as, Arctius atque hedera procera adstringitur vlex, HOR.

§ 121. ABLATIVE GOVERNED BY VERBS.

480.—RULE XXV. Verbs of plenty and scarceness, for the most part govern the ablative; as,

*Abundat divitiis,
Caret omni culpa,*

He abounds in riches.
He has no fault.

481.—EXPLANATION.—The ablative after such verbs, may be governed by a preposition understood;—sometimes it is expressed; as, vacat a culpa. Or it may be used to limit the verb, by showing in what respect its meaning is to be taken; as, “he abounds in respect of riches.” (See R. XXXIV.) Instances of this construction, however, are so common as to warrant the rule here given.

482.—Obs. 1. Verbs of plenty are such as, Abundo, affluo, exubero, redundo, suppedito, scatèo, &c., of want, careo, egeo, indigeo vāco, deficior, destituor, &c.

483.—Exc. 1. Egeo, and indigeo, sometimes govern the genitive; as, Eget æris, “He needs money,” HOR.; Non tam artis indiget, quam laboris, CIC. So, also, some verbs denoting to fill, to abound, such as abundo, careo, saturo, scatèo.

484.—RULE XXVI. Utor, abutor, fruor, fungor, potior, vescor, govern the ablative; as,

Utitur fraude,	He uses deceit.
Abutitur libris,	He abuses books.

485.—Obs. 2. To these, add gaudeo, ercor, nascor, fido, vivo, victo, consto, laboro (“to be ill”); pascor, epulor, nitor, &c.

486.—Exc. 2. Potior often governs the genitive; as, Potiri urbis “To get possession of the city;” Potiri rerum (never rèbus), “To possess the chief command.” In such cases, the genitive may be governed by imperio, understood.

487.—Exc. 3. Potior, fungor, vescor, epulor, and pascor, sometimes govern the accusative; as, Potiri urbem, CIC.; Officia fungi, &c.; and also, in ancient writers, utor, abutor, and fruor. Depasco and depascor have the accusative always.

N. B. For the ablative of the adjunct, see § 106, R. VII. —For the ablative governed by adjectives of plenty, or want, § 107, Rule XI.;—by verbs of loading, binding, &c., § 125;—by passive verbs, § 126, Rule V;—by a preposition, § 136, R. XLIX., LI., LII.

For the ablative of limitation, see § 128;—of cause, manner, &c., § 129;—of the place where, § 130, Exc.;—from which, § 130, 3;—of time when, § 131, R. XL.;—How long, R. XLI.;—of measure, § 132, R. XLII.;—of excess, R. XLIII.;—of price, § 133;—in the case absolute, § 146, R. LX.

§ 122. VERBS GOVERNING THE ACCUSATIVE AND GENITIVE.

488.—Many transitive verbs, with the accusative of the direct object, govern also another word, to which the action has an indirect or remote reference, in the genitive, dative, accusative, or ablative, as the nature of that reference may require. All verbs under these rules, are transitive verbs in the active voice, or transitive deponents.

489.—RULE XXVII.—Verbs of accusing, condemning, acquitting, and admonishing, govern the accusative of a person, with the genitive of a thing; as,

Arguit me jurti,
Meipsum inertie condanno,
Illum homicidii absolvunt,
Monet me officii,

He accuses me of theft.
I condemn myself of laziness
They acquit him of manslaughter
He admonishes me of my duty.

490.—To this rule belong the following—

1. ACCUSING; as, accuso, ago, oppello, arcesso, anquiro, arguo, coarguo, capto, increpo, increpito, urgeo, insto, insimulo, interrigo, postulo, alligo, arstringo, defero, compello.

2. CONDEMNING; as, danno, condanno, infamo, noto, convinco, prehendō, apprehendo, juco, plector.

3. ACQUITTING; as, absolvo, libero, purgo, and perhaps solvo.

4. ADMONISHING; as, monco, admoneo, commoneo, commonefacio.

491.—Obs 1. With many of these verbs, instead of the genitive of the crime or punishment, the ablative is used with, or without, a preposition; as, Accusare de negligentia, Cic.; Liberare culpa, Id. The ablatives crimine and nomine are often inserted before the genitive, which may be regarded as the full form of the construction; as, Arcessere aliquem crimine ambitus, Liv. Sometimes the punishment is put in the accusative after ad or in; as, Dannare ad pœnam,—in metallum, rarely in the dative; as, dannatus morti. Multo has always the ablative; as, multare pœnâ pecuniâ, exiliis, &c.

492.—Obs. 2. Accuso, incuso, insimulo, together with verbs of admonishing, instead of the genitive, are sometimes followed by the accusative, especially of the neuter pronouns hoc, id, illud, quod, &c., and their plurals. as, Si id me non accusas, PLAUT.; Eos hoc moneo, Cic.; rarely by the accusative of nouns; as, Sic me insimulare falsum facinus, PLAUT.

493.—Obs. 3. Many verbs signifying to accuse, and among them some of the verbs enumerated under this rule, do not govern the genitive of the crime, but, as transitive active verbs, govern it in the accusative by Rule XX as, arguo culpam; ejus avaritiam perfidiamque accusat. When thus construed, the immediate object of condemnation is the crime; in the other construction, it is the person.

494.—Obs. 4. Verbs of admonishing, instead of the genitive, are sometimes followed by the ablative with a preposition; as, Oro ut Terentiam moneatis de testamento; sometimes by an infinitive or clause; as Soror monet succurrere Lauso Turnum, VIRG.; Monet ut suspiciones vitet, CÆS.; Immortalia ne speres monet annus, HOR.

495.—RULE XXVIII. Verbs of valuing, with their own case, and sometimes without a case, govern such genitives of degree as magni, parvi, nihili; as,

Æstimo te magni,
Mihi stetit plūris,
Est parvi,

I value you much
It cost me more.
It is of little value.

496.—EXPLANATION.—By its own case is meant the case which the verb usually governs. Verbs without case, as sum, fiō, existo, &c., have the genitive only. The adjectives magni, parvi, &c., may agree with pretii, momenti, or the like, understood, and the construction perhaps come under R. VII. If so, it would account for the ablative sometimes used after the same verbs. See 500.

497.—Verbs of valuing are such as æstimo, existimo, dūco, facio, habeo, pendeo, pūto, taxo, sum, fiō, consto, &c.; also rēfert and intērest.

498.—Among the genitives of degree governed by such verbs, are the adjectives tantū, quantū, plūris, minōris, magnū, plurimū, minimū, parvū, quantilibet, &c., and the substantives assis, flocci, nauci, pūli, teruncii, hujus, &c. For the genitive of price, see 582.

499.—Obs. 5. Æqui and bōni are put in the genitive after facio and consūlo; as, æqui bonique facio, "I take this in good part."

500.—Obs. 6. Instead of the genitive, æstimo, and a few others, sometimes take the ablative. After habeo, pūto, dūco, the ablative with pro is common; as, pro nihilo putāre. Rēfert and intērest, with their own case (415), often take nihil, or a neuter accusative, or an adverb, instead of the genitive, to express degree; as, mea nihil rēfert; multum intērest. So also nihil is used with æstimo and mōror.

§ 123. VERBS GOVERNING THE ACCUSATIVE AND DATIVE.

501.—RULE XXIX. Verbs of comparing, giving, declaring, and taking away, govern the accusative and dative; as,

Compāro Virgilium Homēro,
Suum cuique tribuō,
Narras fabulam surdo,
Eripuit me morti,

I compare Virgil to Homer.
Give every man his own.
You tell a story to a deaf man.
He rescued me from death.

502.—EXPLANATION.—This is a rule of very extensive application. When, together with the thing done (expressed by the transitive active verb and in accusative), we express also the remote object to which it is done, that object will be put in the dative; thus, in the above examples, the verb and the accusative following it, express the whole of that which is represented as done to, or with reference to, the object expressed in the dative; i. e. comparo Virgilium, expresses all here said to be done (Homero) to Homer, “I compare Virgil to him.” Narras fabulam expresses all here said to be done (surdo) to the deaf man, “you tell a story to him;” and so eripuit me, together, express what is here done (morti) to death, “he rescued me from it;” and so of other examples. See this more fully illustrated, Gr. Gram., § 152, Obs. 3.

OBSERVATIONS.

503.—Obs. 1. Verbs of comparing and taking away, and some others, instead of the dative, often take a preposition and its case; as, Comparare tuam rem cum aliâ, — ad aliâ, — res inter se. Eripuit me morti, — morte, — a, or ex morte, &c.

504.—Obs. 2. Instead of the accusative, these verbs have frequently an infinitive mood or a part of a sentence; as, Da mihi fallere, Reddes mihi dulce loqui, &c., HOR.; Perfacile factu esse illis prout; Itemque Dumnorigi, ut idem conaretur persuadet, CÆS. This construction is especially common with such verbs as aio, dico, inquam, persuadeo, respondeo, &c., when the thing said, replied, &c., though a sentence or a paragraph, is to be regarded as the accusative, and the word denoting the person or persons to whom said, is put in the dative.

505.—Obs. 3. Several verbs governing the accusative and dative are often construed differently; as, circumdare mania oppido, or oppidum navibus, “to surround a city with walls;” intercludere commeatum alicui, or aliquem commeatu, “to intercept one’s provisions;” induere, exuere vestem tibi, or, se vesti. So the following, Universos frumento donavit, NXP.; and Prædam militibus donat, CÆS.; Aspergere sule carnes, or, aspergere sulem carnibus, PLIN.

506.—Obs. 4. The accusative is sometimes understood; as, Nubere alicui (sc. se.), Cedere alicui (sc. locum), detrahere alicui (sc. laudem), &c.

507.—Obs. 5. Verbs signifying motion or tendency to a thing, instead of the dative, have an accusative after them, with the preposition ad; as, Ad prætorem hominem traxit

§ 124. VERBS GOVERNING TWO ACCUSATIVES.

508.—RULE XXX. Verbs of asking, and teaching, govern two accusatives, the one of a person, and the other of a thing; as,

Poscimus te pacem,
Docuit me grammaticam,

We beg peace of thee.
He taught me grammar

509.—EXPLANATION.—The first accusative, under this rule, belongs to Rule XX., the second may be governed by a preposition understood; or the reason of this rule may be, that most of the verbs under it, admit either of the nouns after them, as their immediate object.

OBSERVATIONS.

510.—Obs. 1. Verbs of asking, which govern two accusatives, are rōgo ōro, exōro, obsecro, prēcō, posco, reposeo, flagito, &c.; of teaching, docco, edoceo, dedoceo, crudio. To these, may be added cēlo, to conceal; as Antigōnus ūter omnes cēlat, NEP. For two accusatives after verbs of naming, choosing, &c., see 440.

511.—Obs. 2. Verbs of asking, instead of the accusative of the person often take the ablative with ab or ex; as, Veniam orēmus ab ipso. So, also, instead of the accusative of the thing, many verbs, both of asking and teaching, sometimes take the ablative with de; as, De itinere hostium senātum edocet, SALL.; Sic ego te eisdem de rebus interrōgem.

512.—Obs. 3. Some verbs of asking and teaching, are never followed by two accusatives, but by the ablative of the person, with a preposition; such as, exigo, pēto, quero, scitor, sciscitor, and the following verbs of teaching, viz.: imbuo, instituo, instruo, and some others, are followed by the ablative of the thing, sometimes with, and sometimes without, a preposition; and sometimes they are otherwise construed.

513.—Obs. 4. Many other transitive active verbs, frequently, besides the accusative of a person, take also an accusative of nihil, or of the neuter pronouns, hoc, id, quid, or of adjectives of quantity; as, Fabius ea memonuit, CIC.; Nec te id consulo, ID. These verbs, however, in their signification, generally resemble verbs under this rule; or the accusative of the thing may be governed by a preposition understood.

 § 125. VERBS GOVERNING THE ACCUSATIVE AND ABLATIVE.

514.—RULE XXXI. Verbs of loading, binding, clothing, depriving, and their contraries, govern the accusative and ablative; as,

Onerat naves auro,

He loads the ships with gold.

515.—EXPLANATION.—The accusative under this rule belongs to Rule XX. The ablative may be governed by a preposition understood.

OBSERVATIONS.

516.—Obs. 1. Verbs of loading are onero, cumulo, premo, opprimo, obruo, impleo, expleo, complec;—of unloading, levo, exonero, &c.;—of binding, astriugo, ligo, alligo, devincio, impedio, irretio, illaqueo, &c.;—of loose ing, solvo, exsolvo, libero, laxo, expedio, &c.;—of depriving, privo, ndo, orbo, spolio, fraudo, emungo;—of clothing, vestio, amicio, induo, cingo, tego, velo, corôno;—of unclothing, exuo, discingo, &c.

To these may be added many other verbs, such as mûto, dono, munero, remunero, communico, pasco, beo, impertior, dignor, afficio, prosequor, asssequor, spargo, oblecto, &c., with which, however, in many cases, the ablative may come under Rules XXXIV. and XXXV.

517.—Obs. 2. These verbs are sometimes followed by the ablative with a preposition expressed; as, Solvère aliquem ex catēnis, Cic. The ablative is sometimes understood; as, complet naves, sc. viris, Virg.

518.—Obs. 3. Several of these verbs denoting to fill, likewise govern the genitive; as, Adolescentem suæ temeritatis implet, "He fills the youth with his own rashness" Some of them also vary their construction as, induit se vestibus, or, vestes sibi; Abdicare magistratum, SALL. Abdicare magistratu, Cic. See 505.

§ 126. CONSTRUCTION WITH PASSIVE VERBS.

519.—RULE XXXII. Verbs that govern two cases in the active voice, govern the latter of these in the passive; as,

Accūsor furti.	I am accused of theft.
Virgilius comparatur Homēro.	Virgil is compared to Homer.
Doceor grammaticam,	I am taught grammar.
Navis oneratur auro,	The ship is loaded with gold.

This rule may be subdivided into the five following, which will be much more convenient in practice, than the general rule.

520.—I. Verbs of accusing, condemning, acquitting, and admonishing, in the passive, govern the Genitive.

521.—II. Verbs of valuing, in the passive, govern such genitives as magni, parvi,  nihili, &c.

522.—III. Verbs of comparing, giving, declaring and taking away, in the passive, govern the dative.

523.—IV. Verbs of asking, and teaching, in the passive, govern the accusative.

524.—V. Verbs of loading, binding, clothing, depriving, and their contraries, in the passive, govern the ablative.

525.—EXPLANATION.—This rule applies to the passive of all verbs under Rules XXVII. to XXXI. inclusive. In all of these, the "latter case" is that which, with the active voice, expresses the remote, and never the immediate object of the verb. In all constructions under this rule it must be noticed, that that which was, or would be, the accusative after 'he vert in the active voice, must be its nominative in the passive, otherwise the construction does not belong to this rule. Thus, active, Narras fabulam surdo; passive, Narratur fabula surdo. Here, fabulam, the direct object of narras, is changed into the nominative or subject of narratur; and surdo remains the same in both sentences. The "latter case," in other words, the remote object of the active voice is never, in Latin, converted into the subject of the passive, except in a few instances, which are manifest Græcisms. See Greek Gram., § 154, Obs. 2. In English, however, there are some expressions in which this is allowed. See Am. & Pr. Eng. Gr., 814.

Hence, where, in some cases, the Greek and the English idioms admit of two forms of expression, the Latin admits of only one, e. g. "This was told to me," or, "I was told this," is rendered into Latin by the first form: thus, Hoc mihi dictum est. But we cannot say, according to the second form, Hoc dictus sum.

526.—Exc. to R. V. In poetical language, with the passive verbs induo, amicior, cingor, accingor, exuo, discingor, the accusative of the article of dress, &c., is often used, instead of the ablative. Thus, instead of induo veste, the poets frequently say, induo vestem. Hence the expressions, Induitur faciem cultumque Dianæ, OVID; Induiturque aures aselli, Id.; Inutile ferrum cingitur, VIRG.; Pueri lævo suspensi loculos tabulamque lacerto, HOR. This resembles the Greek accusative, 538, 539.

527.—Obs. 1. When the active voice is followed by three cases (481), the passive has the two last; as, hoc missum est mihi muneri, "this was sent as a present to me." Here muneri is the dative of the end. R. XIX.

528.—RULE XXXIII. Passive verbs frequently govern the dative of the doer; as,

*Vix audior ulli,
Scriberis Vario,*

Nulla audita mihi sororum, }

I am scarcely heard by any one.

You shall be described by Varius.

None of your sisters have been heard of by me.

529.—EXPLANATION.—This construction is used chiefly by the poets, and by them, as a substitute for another still more common; namely, that the voluntary agent, after the passive voice, is put in the ablative with a, or ab and so comes under Rule XLIX. as (in the active voice), Clodius me diligit "Clodius loves me;" (in the passive), A Clodio diligo, "I am loved by Clodius." The preposition is sometimes omitted; as, colitur linigera turba.

530.—Obs. 2. After passive verbs, the principal agent or actor is usually expressed in the ablative with the preposition a or ab; as, laudatur ab his, culpatur ab illis, "he is praised by these, he is blamed by those." But,

The secondary agent, means, or instrument, after transitive verbs in the active or passive voice, or after intransitive verbs, is put in the accusative with per; as, Per Thrasylbulum Lyci filium, ab exercitu recipitur NEP.; but oftener in the ablative, by Rule XXXV.

531.—Obs. 3. The passive participle in dus has the agent or doer almost always in the dative; and besides, when it agrees with the subject of a sentence, conveys the idea of obligation or necessity; as, Sēnes omnibus calcanda est via liti. "The way of death (is to be, i. e.) must once be trod by all," HOR.; Adhibenda est nobis diligentia, "Diligence must be used by us" (i. e. we must use diligence), CIC.; Cæsari omnia uno tempore erant agenda, "All things had to be done by Caesar at one time." 182-6.

532.—Obs. 4. The accusative of place or time, after intransitives in the passive voice, is not governed by the verb, but by a preposition understood, or comes under other rules; as, itur Athenas, Rule XXXVII. pugnatum est biduum, R. XLI.; dormitur totam noctem, R. XLI. We find, however, Tota mihi dormitur hyems; Noctes vigilantur amarae; Oceanus aditur, TAG.

§ 127. CONSTRUCTION OF CIRCUMSTANCES.

533.—In order to express some CIRCUMSTANCE connected with the idea of the simple sentence, words and phrases are often thrown in between the parts of a sentence in an adverbial manner, and which do not depend for their case on any word in the sentence to which they belong, but on a preposition, or adverb, or other word, understood; or are, by common usage, put in a particular case in certain circumstances, without government or dependence on any words either expressed or understood.

To this may be referred circumstances: 1. Of limitation;—2. Of cause, manner, &c.;—3. Of place;—4. Of time;—5. Of measure;—6. Of price as follows.

§ 128. CIRCUMSTANCES OF LIMITATION.

534.—A particular qualification of a general expression, made in English by the phrase "in respect of," "with regard to," is expressed in Latin by the ablative, or, more briefly as follows:

535.—RULE XXXIV. Respect wherein, and the part affected are expressed in the ablative; as,

Pietate filius,	In affection a son.
Jure peritus,	Skilled in law.
Pedibus aeger,	Lame in his feet.

536.—EXPLANATION.—The ablative, under this rule, is used, to limit the signification of nouns, adjectives, and verbs, and may be variously renders it to express the nature of the limitation intended; as, in, in respect of, with respect to, with regard to, &c.

537.—Obs. 1. The part affected, after adjectives and verbs, belongs to this rule, containing, as it does, a similar limitation of a general expression, as in the last of the examples above. The following are of a similar character: Anxius animo, TAC.; Crīne rüber; ore niger, MART.; Contremisco totā mente et omnibus artibus, CIC.; Animōque et corpore torpet, HOR.

538.—Exc. 1. The part affected, in imitation of a Greek construction, is sometimes expressed in the accusative; as, Nūdus membra, “Bare as to his limbs,” VIRG. So, sibīla colla tunentem, Id.; explēri mentem nequit, Id.; fractus membra, HOR.; tempōra cinctus, VIRG. This construction is in imitation of the Greek. See Gr. Gram., § 157, Obs. 1.

539.—Exc. 2. In like manner, a noun or pronoun, denoting that in regard to which, or with respect to which, any thing is, is said, or is done, is sometimes put in the accusative; as, Nunc illos qui in urbe remanserunt, “Now, in regard to those who remained in the city;” Quod reliquum est, “As to that which remains.”

This construction is quite common with such accusatives as id, hoc, aliquid, reliqua, cætēra, magnam partem, maximam partem, and the like; as, reliqua similis; cætēra egregium; meos libros magnam partem amisi, &c. In such constructions, ad, meaning “in regard to,” “in respect of,” “as to,” (Andrews’ Lexicon, D. 1), is probably understood.

540.—Exc. 3. After certain adjectives and verbs denoting an affection or state of mind, respect wherein, or the part affected, is, in imitation of the Greek, expressed in the genitive; as, intēger vitæ; diversus mōrum; discrucior animi; animi pendeo; recreābar animi. See also 371.

541.—Obs. 2. To this rule may be referred the matter of which any thing is made; as, ære cavo clypeus, “a shield of hollow brass.” But here the preposition is commonly expressed; as, templum de marmōre. In imitation of the Greeks, the matter is sometimes put in the genitive; as, cratēres argenti, “goblets of silver.” Gr. Gram., § 156, Obs. 3.

§ 129. THE ABLATIVE OF CAUSE, MANNER, &c.

42.—RULE XXXV. The cause, manner, means, and instrument, are put in the ablative; as,

Palleo mētū,	I am pale for fear.
Fecit suo mōre,	He did it after his own way.
Auro ostrōque decōri,	Decked with gold and purple
Scribo catāmo,	I write with a pen.

543.—EXPLANATION.—The ablative, in this rule, is probably governed by a preposition understood,—as there are numerous instances in which the preposition is expressed. The cause will be known by putting the question, “Why?” or “Wherefore?” the manner, by “How?” the means, by “By what means?” the instrument, by “Wherewith?”

544.—Obs. 1. The cause sometimes takes the prepositions per, propter, ob, with the accusative; or de, e, ex, præ, with the ablative; as, de pulsus per invidiam; fessus de viâ.

545.—Obs. 2. The manner is sometimes expressed by a, ab, cum, de, ex, per; as, de mōre suo;—the means frequently by per, and cum; as, cum meis copiis omnibus vexâvi Amaniensis. See 530.

546.—Obs. 3. The instrument, properly so called, seldom admits a preposition, though, among the poets, a, ab, de, sub, are sometimes used, as, pectora trajectus ab ense; exercere solum sub vomere.

§ 130. CIRCUMSTANCES OF PLACE.

547.—The circumstances of place may be reduced to four particulars: 1. The place where, or in which;—2. The place whither, or to which;—3. The place whence, or from which;—4. The place by, or through which.

N. B. The following rules respecting place, refer chiefly to the names of towns. Sometimes, though very seldom, the names of countries, provinces, islands, &c., are construed in the same way. With these, however, the preposition is commonly added.

1. The place WHERE, or IN WHICH.

548.—RULE XXXVI. The name of a town, denoting the place where, or in which, is put in the genitive; as,

Vixit Rōmæ,	He lived at Rome.
Mortuus est Milēti,	He died at Miletus.

549.—Exc. But if the name of the town where, or in which, is of the third declension, or plural number, it is expressed in the ablative; as,

Habitat Carthagine,	He dwells at Carthage.
Studuit Athēnis,	He studied at Athens.

550.—Obs. 1. When the name of a town is joined with an adjective, or common noun in apposition, a preposition is commonly added; as, Rōmæ in celebri urbe; or, in Rōmæ celebri urbe; or, in Rōmā celebri urbe; or sometimes, Rōmæ celebri urbe. 262.

Note.—In this construction, the name of a town, in the third declension frequently has the ablative singular in i; as, Habitat Carthagēni. Fuere Sicyōni jamdiu Dionysia, PLAUT.; Tībūri genitus, SUET.

551.—Obs. 2. The name of the town where, or in which, is sometimes, though rarely, put in the ablative when it is of the first or second declension; as, Tyro rex decessit, for Tyri, "The king died at Tyre," JUST.; Hujus exemplar Rōmā nullum habemus, VITRUV.

552.—Obs. 3. The preposition in is sometimes expressed before the ablative; as, In Philippis quidam nunciavit, SUET. At, or near a place is expressed by ad, or apud with the accusative; as, ad, or apud Trojam, "at, or near Troy."

2. The place WHITHER, or TO WHICH.

553.—RULE XXXVII. The name of a town denoting the place whither, or to which, is put in the accusative; as,

Vēnit Rōman,	He came to Rome
Profectus est Athēnas,	He went to Athens.

554.—Obs. 4. Among the poets, the town to which is sometimes put in the dative; as, Carthagēni nuncios mittam, HOR.

555.—Obs. 5. After verbs of telling, and giving, when motion to is implied, the name of a town is sometimes put in the accusative; as, Rōmā erat nunciatum, "The report was carried to Rome;" Messānam iteras dedit.

3. The place WHENCE, or FROM WHICH.

556.—RULE XXXVIII. The name of a town whence or from which, by or through which, is put in the ablative; as,

Discessit Corintho,	He departed from Corinth.
Laodiceā iter fecit,	He went through Laodicea.

557.—Obs. 6. The place by or through which, however, is commonly put in the accusative with per; as, Per Thēbas iter fecit, NER.

4. Domus and rus.

558.—RULE XXXIX. Domus and rus are construed in the same way as names of towns; as,

Mānet dōmi (548).	He stays at home
Dōmum revertitur (553).	He returns home .
Dōmo arcessitus sum (556).	I am called from home .

So also

Vivit rūre or rūri (548).	He lives in the country .
Abiit rus (553).	He is gone to the country .
Rediit rūre (556).	He has returned from the country .

559.—Obs. 7. Hūmi, militiæ, and belli, are likewise construed in the genitive like names of towns; as, jacet hūmi, “he lies on the ground;” dōmī et militiæ (or belli), “at home or abroad.”

560.—Obs. 8. When dōmus is joined with an adjective, the preposition is commonly used; as, in dōmo paternā. So, ad dōmum paternam, ex dōmo paternā.—Except with meus, tuus, suus, noster, vester, regius, and atiēnus; then it follows the rule. When dōmus has another substantive after it in the genitive, it may be with, or without, a preposition; as, deprehensus est dōmī, dōmo, or in dōmo Cæsaris.

561.—Obs. 9. Rus, and rāre, in the singular, joined with an adjective, are used with, or without, a preposition. But rūra, in the plural, is never without it.

562.—Obs. 10. The names of countries, provinces, and all other places except towns, are commonly construed with a preposition; as, nātus in Italiā; abiit in Italiām; rediit ex Italiā; transit per Italiām, &c. A few cases occur, however, in which names of countries, provinces, &c., are construed like the names of towns, without a preposition; as, Pompeius Cypri vīsus est, &c., CÆS.

563.—Pēto, “I seek,” or “go to,” always governs the accusative as a transitive active verb, without a preposition; as, Petivit Egyptum, “He went to Egypt.”

564.—Obs. 11. The word containing an answer to the question whither? is often put by the poets in the accusative without a preposition; as, Speluncam Dīdo dux et Trojānus eandem deveniunt, VIRG. Likewise, the answer to the question where? or whence? in the ablative, without a preposition; as, Silvis que agrisque viis que corpōra fœda jacent. So, cadere nubibus; descendere cælo; currus carceribus missi. See 611.

§ 131. CIRCUMSTANCES OF TIME.

565.—RULE XL. Time when, is put in the ablative; as,

Vēnit hōrā tertiā, He came at the third hour.

RULE XLII. Time how long, is put in the accusative, or ablative; as,

Mansit paucos dies, He staid a few days.
Sex mensibus abfuit, He was absent six months.

566.—EXPLANATION.—A precise period or point of time, is usually put in the ablative,—continuance of time, not marked with precision, for the most part, in the accusative.

567.—Note.—It must be observed here, that the point of time under this rule, must coincide with the time of the verb with which it is connect ed; otherwise, the rule does not hold good;—thus, “He invited me to dine with him next day,” is properly rendered under this rule: Secum postero die ut pranderem invitavit; because postero die and pranderem are cotemporary. But, if we change the verb pranderem for a noun, postere dies will not do in the ablative, but must be changed thus; ad prandium me invitavit in posterum diem. Postero die, in this sentence, would mean that the invitation was given next day, and would be rendered, in English, “Next day, he invited me to dinner.”

OBSERVATIONS.

568.—Obs. 1. All the circumstances of time are often expressed with a preposition; such as, in, de, ad, ante, circa, per, &c. Sometimes ad, or circa, is understood before hoc, illud, id, isthuc, with ætatis, temporis, hōræ, &c., following in the genitive; as, (ad) id temporis, for eo tempore, &c.

569.—Obs. 2. Precise time, before or after another fixed time, is expressed by ante, or post, regarded as adverbs, either with the accusative or ablative; as, aliquot ante annos; paucis ante diebus; paucos post dies, &c.

570.—Sometimes quam, with a verb, is added to ante, or post; as, Paucis post diebus quam Lūca discesserat, “A few days after he had departed from Luca.” Sometimes post is omitted before quam; as, Die vigesima quam creatus erat.

571.—Obs. 3. Instead of postquam, we sometimes find ex quo, or quum, or a relative agreeing with the preceding ablative; as, Octo diebus quibus has literas dabam, “Eight days after I gave these letters.”

572.—Obs. 4. The adverb abhinc is used to express past time, joined with the accusative or ablative, without a preposition; as, Factum est abhinc biennio, or biennium, “It was done two years ago.”

§ 132. CIRCUMSTANCES OF MEASURE.

573.—RULE XLII. Measure or distance is put in the accusative, and sometimes in the ablative; as,

Murus est decem pēdes altus,		The wall is ten feet high.
Urbs distat triginta millia,	or	} The city is distant thirty miles.
triginta millibus passuum,
Iter, or itinere unius diei,		One day's journey.

OBSERVATIONS.

574.—Obs. 1. The accusative or ablative of measure, is put after such adjectives, and verbs of dimension, as longus, latus, crassus, profundus, alius; Pātet, porrigitur, eminet, &c. The names of measure are pes, cubitus, ulnus, digitus, pāmus, mille passuum, a mile, &c.

575.—Obs. 2. The accusative or ablative of distance, is used only after verbs which express motion or distance: as, eo, curro, lūco, absuro.

isto, &c. The accusative, under this rule, may be governed by ad or per, understood, and the ablative by a, or ab.

576.—Obs. 3. When the measure of more things than one is expressed, the distributive numeral is commonly used; as, Mūri sunt dēnos pēdes alti, "The walls are each ten feet high." Sometimes dēnum pēdum, for dēnōrum, is used in the genitive, governed by ad mensūram, understood. But the genitive is used to express the measure of things in the plural only.

577.—Obs. 4. The distance of the place where any thing is said to be done, is usually expressed in the ablative or in the accusative with a preposition; as, Sex millibus passuum ab urbe consēdit; or ad sex millia passuum. CAS

578.—Obs. 5. Sometimes the place from which distance is estimated is not expressed, though the preposition governing it is, and may be rendered off, distant, &c. as, Ab sex millibus passuum abfuit; "He was six miles off, or distant" (scil. Rōmā, from Rome).

579.—RULE XLIII. The measure of excess or deficiency, is put in the ablative; as,

Sesquipēde longior,	Taller by a foot and a half.
Nōvem pedibus minor,	Less by nine feet.
Quanto doctior, tanto submissior.	The more learned, the more humble.

580.—Obs. 6. To this rule are to be referred the ablatives tanto, quanto, quo, eo, hor, al quanto, multo, paulo, nihilo, &c., frequently joined to comparatives, and sometimes to superlatives. †

§ 133. CIRCUMSTANCES OF PRICE.

581.—RULE XLIV. The price of a thing is put in the ablative; as,

Constitit talento,	It cost a talent.
Vendidit hic ouro patriam,	This man sold his country for gold

582.—Exc. But tanti, quanti, plūris, minōris, are used in the genitive; as,

Quanti constitit?	How much cost it?
Non vendo plūris quam ceteri,	I do not sell for more than others.

583.—Obs. 1. When joined with a noun, tanti, quanti, &c., are put in the ablative; as, Quam tanto pretio mercatus est. Tanto, quanto, and plūre, are sometimes, though rarely, found without a noun; as, plūre venit, "it is sold for more."

584.—Obs. 2. The ablative of price is often an adjective without a noun; as, magno, permagno, parvo, paululo, minimo, plurimo, vili, nimie. These refer, however, to some such noun as pretio, ere, &c., understood. Valeo is found with an accusative.

§ 134. CONSTRUCTION OF ADVERBS.

585.—RULE XLV. Adverbs are joined to verbs, adjectives, and other adverbs, to modify and limit their signification; as,

Bène scribit,
Fortiter pugnans,
Egregie fidelis,
Satis bene,

He writes well.
Fighting bravely.
Remarkably faithful.
Well enough.

OBSERVATIONS.

586.—Obs. 1. Adverbs are sometimes joined with nouns, as, Homērus plāne orātor, “Homer evidently an orator.”

587.—Obs. 2. The adverb is usually placed near the word modified or limited by it.

Negatives.

588.—Obs. 3. Two negatives in Latin, as well as in English, destroy each other, or are equivalent to an affirmative; as, Nec non senserunt, “nor did they not perceive;” i. e. et senserunt, “and they did perceive.” So, Non potēram non exanimāri metu. Cic. Non sum nescius, i. e. scio, haud nihil est, “it is not nothing,” i. e. “it is something;” nonnulli, “not none,” i. e. “some;” nonnunquam, “not never;” i. e. “sometimes;” non nemo, “not nobody,” i. e. “somebody,” &c.

589.—Obs. 4. Exc. In imitation of the Greeks, however, two negatives in Latin, as well as in English, sometimes make a stronger negative; as, Nēque ille haud objiciet mihi, “He will not by any means object to me;” Itēra, te non nocitūrum homīni nemini, &c. Nēque, and nec, and sometimes non, are especially thus used after a negative; as, Non me carminibus vincet, nec Orpheus, nec Iūnus.

590.—Obs. 5. Non is sometimes omitted after non modo, or non solum, when followed in a subsequent clause by ne quidem; as, Mihi non modo irasci, (i. e. non irasci), sed ne dolere quidem impūne licet. Sometimes, but rarely, it is omitted after sed, or vērūm, with etiam; as, Non modo ea futura timeat (i. e. non timeat), vērūm etiam fert sustinetque præsentia. For ne, and ut, with timeo, &c., see 633.

591.—Obs. 6. Certain adverbs are joined to adjectives, and also to adverbs, in all the degrees of comparison, for the purpose of imparting greater force to their signification; as,

1st. To the positive are joined such adverbs as, apprīme, admōdum, vehementer, maximē, perquam, valde, oppidō, and per, in composition; as, grātum admodum, “very agreeable;” perquam puerile, “very childish;” &c. In like manner, pārum, multum, nimium, tantum, quantum, aliquantum; as, pārum firmus; multum bonus.

2d. To the comparative are joined, paulo, nimio, aliquanto, eo, quo, hoc, inpendio, nihilō; as, Eo gravior est dolor quo culpa major.—Cic. See 630. Sometimes, also, pārum, multum, &c., as with the positive.

3d To the superlative are joined, longe, quam, facile, meaning "certainly," undoubtedly; also tanto, quanto, multo, &c.; as, Facile doctissimus, "certainly the most learned;" longe bellicosissima (sc. gens), "by far the most warlike;" quam maximas potest copias armat, "he arms as great forces as possible."

4th. Quam, (and also ut), is also used as an intensive word with the positive, but in a sense somewhat different, resembling an exclamation as, Quam difficile est! "how difficult it is!" quam, or ut crudelis! "how cruel!" Flens quam familiariter, "weeping how affectionately," i. e. very affectionately; quam severe, "how severely," i. e. very severely.

§ 135. CASES GOVERNED BY ADVERBS.

592.—RULE XLVI. Some adverbs of time, place, and quantity, govern the genitive; as,

Pridie ejus diēi,
Ubique gentium,
Satis est verborum,

The day before that day
Every where.
There is enough of words

593.—1. Adverbs of time governing the genitive are, interea, postea, inde, tunc; as, Interea loci, "in the mean time;" postea loci, "afterwards;" inde loci, "then;" tunc temporis, "at that time."

594.—2. Of place, Ubi, and quo, with their compounds, ubique, ubicunque, ubiubi, quovis, &c. Also, eo, huc, hucine, unde, usquam, nusquam, longe, ibidem, &c.; as, unde terrarum or gentium; longe gentium; ibidem loci. Also, huc, eo, and quo, expressing degree; as, Eo audaciæ, vecordię—miseriarum, &c., "to that pitch of boldness—madness—misery," &c.

595.—3. Of quantity, abunde, affatim, largiter, nimis, satis, parum, minime; as, abunde glorię; affatim divitiarum; largiter auri; satis eloquentię; sapientię parum est illi, or habet, "He has enough of glory, riches" &c. minimę gentium, "by no means."

596.—Obs. 1. Ergo (for the sake of), instar, and partim, also govern the genitive; as, donari virtutis ergo.

597.—Obs. 2. Pridie and postridie, govern the genitive or accusative, as, Pridie Kalendarum, or pridie Kalendas, sup. ante; Postridie Kalendarum, or Kalendas, sup. post.

598.—Obs. 3. En and Ecce govern the nominative or accusative; as, En causa, Ecce homo or hominem, sometimes a dative is added; as, Ecce duas aras tibi. VIRG. In such constructions, a verb may be understood. The dative may be referred to, 377-3.

599.—Obs. 4. Certain prepositions used adverbially by the poets, are followed by the dative; as, Mihi clam est, "it is unknown to me." Contra vobis.

600.—RULE XLVII. Some derivative adverbs govern the case of their primitives; as,

Omnium optime loquitur,	He speaks the best of all
Convenienter naturæ,	Agreeably to nature.
Venit obviam ei,	He came to meet him.
Proxime castris or castra,	Next the camp.

601.—EXPLANATION.—In the first example, optime is derived from optimus, which governs the genitive by Rule X. 855. Convenienter and obviam, are derived from conveniens, and obvius, which govern the dative by Rule XVI. 382; and proxime is derived from proximus, which governs the dative or accusative. (888.)

§ 136. CASES GOVERNED BY PREPOSITIONS.

602.—RULE XLVIII. Twenty-eight prepositions, ad, apud, ante, &c., govern the accusative; as,

Ad patrem,	To the father.
-------------------	----------------

603.—RULE XLIX. Fifteen prepositions a, ab, abs, &c., govern the ablative; as,

A patre,	From the father.
-----------------	------------------

604.—EXPLANATION.—The twenty-eight prepositions which govern the accusative are those contained in the list 220-1, and the fifteen governing the ablative are those in 220-2.

OBSERVATIONS.

605.—Obs. 1. Clam, one of these fifteen, is sometimes followed by the accusative; as, clam vos, "without your knowledge." When followed by a genitive or dative, a substantive may be understood, or it may be regarded as an adverb; as, clam patris. TER. mihî clam est. PLAUT.

606.—Obs. 2. Tenus after a plural noun, commonly governs it in the genitive; as, crurum tenus. VIRG.

607.—RULE L. The prepositions in, sub, super and subter, denoting motion to, or tendency towards govern the accusative; as,

Venit in Urbem,	He came into the city.
Amor in te,	Love towards thee.
Sub jugum missus est,	He was sent under the yoke.
Incidit super agmina	It fell upon the troops.

608.—RULE LI. The preposition in and sub denoting situation, govern the ablative; super and subter either the accusative or ablative; as,

Jacet in terrâ,
Mediâ in urbe,
In poetis,
Sub muribus,

He lies upon the ground.
In the middle of the city.
Among the poets.
Under the walls.

609.—Obs. 3. To both of these rules there are some exceptions. Instances occur in which in and sub denoting motion to, or tendency towards, instead of the accusative, govern the ablative; as, In conspectu meo audet venire; sub jûgo dictator hostem misit. Others are found in which they govern the accusative when they denote situation; as, Mihi in mentem fuit. Hostes sub montem consedissee, &c.

610.—Obs. 4. The preposition in with the accusative, usually signifies into, towards, until, for, against; with the ablative in, upon, among. With both these cases, however, considerable variety of translation is necessary to convey correctly the idea of the original. The following are instances, "In the case of," tâlis in hoste fuit Priâmo. VIRG. "On account of," in quo facto dômum revocatus;—In sex mensibus, "within six months;" in dies, "from day to day." So, in horas, "from hour to hour;" in capita, "per head;" in pueritiâ, "during boyhood;" in hoc tempore, "at this time," &c.

611.—Obs. 5. The preposition is frequently understood before its cases as, devenire locos. VIRG. homo id ætatis. CIC. propior montem. SALL. in which ad is understood. So, Nunc id prodeo, sc. ob;—TER. Maria aspéra jûro, sc. per. Se loco movere, sc. e, or de. Quid illo facias? sc. in oi d; "what can you do in this case?" Ut patriâ expelleretur, sc. ex. NEP

612.—Obs. 6. Sometimes, but much more rarely, the case is omitted after the preposition; as, circum Concordiæ, sc. ædem. SALL. multis post annis, i. e. post id tempus. ^

613.—RULE LII. A preposition in composition often governs its own case; as,

Adeamus urbem,
Exeamus urbe,

Let us go to the city.
Let us go out of the city.

614.—EXPLANATION.—By "its own case" is meant the case it governs when not in composition. This rule only takes place when the preposition may be separated from the verb, and placed before the case without altering the sense. Thus, adeamus urbem, and eamus ad urbem, express the same thing.

615.—Obs. 7. The preposition is often repeated after the compound word; the case is then governed by the preposition repeated; as, ex navibus expositi. CÆS. Nunquam accedo ad te, quin abs te abeam doctior. TER.

Note—Some verbs never have the preposition repeated after them; such as, Affaris alliquor allatro, alluo, accollo; circum with venio, eo, sto, sedo.

volo; obeo, prætereo, abdico, affero, everto, &c. Some compounds with inter, and præter, commonly omit the preposition. The compounds of in, ob, and sub, generally take the dative; those of super, generally the accusative.

616.—Obs. 8. Some verbs compounded with e, or ex, are followed by an accusative or ablative; as, exire timen. TER. exire septis. VIRG. Some words compounded with præ, take an accusative; as, Tibur aquæ præfluunt. HOR. In some of these cases, however, the accusative may be governed by præter or extra, understood.

617.—Obs. 9. The case governed by the preposition in composition is sometimes omitted; as, Emittere servum, sc. manu. PLAUT. Evomere vitæ, sc. ore. CIC. Educere copias, sc. castris. CÆS.

For the construction of interjections, see § 117.

SYNTAX OF THE VERB.

§ 137. CONNECTION OF TENSES.

618.—The tenses in the indicative and subjunctive moods, so far as relates to their construction, may be divided into two classes, Primary and Secondary, as follows,

Primary.	Secondary.
Present.	Imperfect.
Perfect definite. 162.	Perfect indefinite. 163.
Futures.	Pluperfect.

With the primary tenses may be classed, the Imperative Mood.

Of these tenses, the Primary are used to express actions, &c., as present or future; the Secondary, in the recital of these actions as past.

In the construction of sentences consisting of different members, the subjunctive mood, in the subordinate or secondary parts, usually corresponds, in time, to the tense in the primary, or leading part. Hence the following Rule.

619.—RULE LIII. Any tense of the subjunctive mood, may follow a tense of the same class in the indicative; as,

PRES.	Lêgo,	} ut discam,	I read,	} that I may learn
PERF. DEF.	Lêgi,		I have read,
FUT.	Lêgam,		I will read,
IMPER.	Lêge, ut discas,		Read, that you may learn .
IMPERF.	Legëbam,	} ut discërem,	I was reading,	} that I might learn .
PER. INDEF.	Lêgi,		I read,
PLUP.	Legëram,		I had read,

620.—EXPLANATION.—In clauses connected, the present, the perfect, and periphrastic future with sim or fuërim, 214–8, in the subjunctive mood, may follow either the present, or the perfect definite, or the futures, of the indicative, or the imperative mood. In like manner, the imperfect, the pluperfect, and the periphrastic future with essem or fuissem, in the subjunctive mood, may follow either the imperfect, or the perfect indefinite, or the pluperfect in the indicative.

621.—Obs. 1. When the present tense of the indicative is used in narration for the past, 157–3, it may be followed by the secondary tenses of the subjunctive, as Legatos mittunt ut pacem impetrarent.

622.—Obs. 2. Primary tenses are sometimes followed by secondary, and secondary by primary, in order to express actions whose time is different.

623.—Obs. 3. When the subjunctive follows an infinitive or participle in the primary clause, the class of tenses employed, usually corresponds to the time of the verb on which the infinitive or participle depends.

N. B. This rule and the observations under it, are to be regarded as stating only general principles, the deviations from which, in expressing the endless variety of relations among actions with reference to time, dependence, &c., can be learned only by practice and close attention to classic usage.

For the interchange of tenses in the same and in different moods, see observations on the tenses, §§ 44 and 45. ^

624.—§ 138. CONSTRUCTION OF THE INDICATIVE MOOD.

1. The indicative mood is used in Latin, to express what is actual and certain, in an absolute and independent manner; as, vëni, vidi, vici, “I came, saw, and conquered.” It is also used in direct and independent interrogations; as, Quid agis? “what are you doing?”

2. The indicative mood is used in conditional and dependent clauses, to denote, not what is contingent or uncertain, but what is supposed, or admitted as fact; as, Si vales, bene est, “if you are in health, it is well,” i. e. “since you are in health.”

3. Independent assertions made in English by shall, will, can, may, ought, and the like, are made in Latin by the indicative of verbs expressing these ideas; as, volumus ire, “we will go,” dëbes facëre, “you ought to do it,” 147. In general, the verbs oportet, necesse est, debeo, convënit, possum, licet;—also, the expressions par, fas, æquum, justum, consentaneum est;—

and œquius, melius, utilius, optabilis est, are put in the past tenses of the indicative, though translated by the imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive. Hence,

4. The indicative is used in the sense of the subjunctive, and translated by the potential in English, when an act, &c., though not performed, is expressed as what would have been proper, practicable, or advantageous; as, Milōni optabilius fuit dāre jugūlum P. Clodio; "it would have been more desirable," &c., 164-4.

5. The past tenses of the indicative, are sometimes used for the imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive, in the conclusion of a conditional clause, by which the description is rendered more animated; as, pons sublicius iter hostibus dedit, ni, &c. "the wooden bridge would have afforded a passage to the enemy, unless" &c; so, actum erat de pulcherrimo imperio, nisi, &c., 140 and 625-4th.

The signification and use of this mood, in its several tenses, are specified § 44.

§ 139. CONSTRUCTION OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

[For the character and meaning of this mood, in its several tenses, see § 42. II. and § 45.]

The subjunctive mood is used sometimes in independent, but, for the most part, in dependent propositions.

THE SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD IN INDEPENDENT PROPOSITIONS.

625. The subjunctive mood is used, apparently at least, in independent propositions:—

- 1st. To soften an assertion or statement; as, nemo istud tibi concedat, "no one would grant that to you;" forsitan temere fecerim, "perhaps I may have acted rashly;" quis dubitet? "who can doubt it?"
- 2d. To express a wish or desire, like the Greek Optative; as, eāmus, "let us go;" moriāmur, "let us die;" nunc revertāmur, "let us now return." In the second, and the third person, it is used to exhort or command; and, with a negative, to forbid; as, faciat, "let him do it;" ipse vidērit, "let him see to it himself." Cic. Nē me attingas, "do not touch me" TER. Emas quod necesse est (171-1). SEN.

- 3d. To express a doubtful question; as, quo eam? "whither shall I go?" quid aliud faceret? "what else could he do?" (171-2). CIC.
- 4th. After the imperfect, and pluperfect subjunctive, in a conditional clause with si, etsi, quæsi, etiamsi, tametsi, ni, nisi, the subjunctive is used independently in the apodosis, or conclusion, in the same tenses, when the thing supposed did not exist. Also, after the present, and perfect in the sense of the imperfect or pluperfect; as, si hic sis, aliter sentias, "if you were here, you would think otherwise." TER. Quos ni mea cûra resistat, jam flammæ tulderint. VIRG. In this construction, the conditional clause is sometimes omitted; as, magno merentur Atridæ (si possint). VIRG.

Note.—But, though in these and many similar expressions, the subjunctive appears to be used independently, it is easy to see, that in most cases, if not in all, it depends on an indicative or imperative understood, and which has been omitted for the sake of brevity (145).

THE SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD IN DEPENDENT PROPOSITIONS.

626.—The subjunctive mood is used, for the most part, in dependent clauses, and is preceded by another verb in the indicative, imperative, or infinitive mood, expressed or understood, with which it is connected by a conjunction, a relative, or an indefinite term, and may generally be rendered by the potential in English (142-2d, and 143).

Obs.—The construction of the subjunctive mood, in Latin agrees, generally, with its construction in English and in Greek. Its use, however, is much more extensive in Latin, being employed in many cases in which the indicative is used in these languages. Its construction in dependent propositions, is subject to the following Rules. ^

§ 140. SUBJUNCTIVE AFTER CONJUNCTIONS, &c.

627—RULE LIV. The conjunctions, ut, quo, licet, ne, utinam, and dummôdo, &c., and words used indefinitely in dependent clauses, for the most part, require the subjunctive mood; as,

*Ego ut discam,

I read that I may learn.
He knows not who I am

EXPLANATION.—The conjunctions requiring the subjunctive mood, are those which imply doubt, contingency, uncertainty, and the like, as follows :

1. Ut, quo, “that,” ne, quom̄inus, “that not,” referring to the result, end, or design, take the subjunctive; thus,

1st. Ut, “that,” denoting a result, after such words as sic, ita, adeo, tam, talis, tantus, is, ejusmōdi, is followed by the subjunctive.

2d. Ut, “that,” and ne, “that not,” denoting purpose or design; or when “that” is equivalent to “in order that,” “so that,” take the subjunctive.

3d. After verbs signifying to request, admonish, advise, commission, encourage, command, and the like; or to endeavor, aim at, or accomplish; as, facio, efficio, &c.; and sometimes to permit, to wish, to be necessary, &c., ut and ne usually take the subjunctive.

4th. Ut, with the subjunctive, usually follows such impersonals as fit, fieri non potest, accidit, incidit, occurrit, contingit, evenit, usu venit, rarum est, sequitur, futurum est, reliquum est, relinquitur, restat, superest, opus est, est signifying it happens, it occurs, it remains, &c.

2. Si “if;” ut si, quāsi, ac si, æque ac si, perinde ut si, aliter ac si, vĕlut si, tanquam, ceu, “as if,” expressing a condition or supposition, commonly take the subjunctive.

3. Ut, licet, etiam si, quamvis, “although;” quin for qui non, or ut non, or quom̄inus, take the subjunctive.

4. Antĕquam, priusquam, “before;” dum, dōnec, quoad, “until;” mōdo, dum, dummodo, “provided,” and the particles of wishing, utinam, O si, ut or ŭti, for utinam, commonly take the subjunctive.

5. Interrogative words used indefinitely in dependent clauses, or containing an indirect question, take the subjunctive.

The words thus used are, the particles an, ne, num, utrum, anne, annon;—the adverbs ubi, quo, unde, quorsum, quamdiu, quoties, cur, quāre, quamobrem, quemadmodum, quomōdo, ut, quam, quantopĕre;—the adjectives quantus, quālis, quot, quōtus, ŭter; quis, qui, cujus, &c.

Note.—In double questions, direct or indirect, expressed in English by “whether—or,” the first is commonly made by utrum, or the enclitic ne, and the second by an, or anne. The first particle, however, is often omitted, but must be supplied in translating, as, id frustra an ob rem faciam, (“whether) I shall do this to no purpose or successfully.” The English “or not” is made, in the second part, by necne; as, dii utrum sint necne sint queritur. Posset lĕge āgi necne pauci quondam sciebant. It is used also in direct questions; as, sunt hæc tua verba necne?

628.—Obs. 1. Many of these conjunctions are used also with the indicative mood. In such cases, they are to be regarded merely as connectives, or used adverbially, denoting circumstances of time, manner, &c.

629.—Obs. 2. Many other conjunctions are used, sometimes with the indicative, and sometimes with the subjunctive mood; such as, quum (or quoniam, quando, and quandoquidem, usually have the indicative.

630.—Obs. 3. Quum (or cum), when it signifies time, merely, takes the indicative, and is translated when; as, tempus fuit quum homines vāgābantur. When it denotes a connection of thought, implying dependence, it takes the subjunctive, and may be translated variously, according to the nature of the connection, since, although, as soon as, seeing that, &c.; as, cum ea ita sint, “since these things are so.”

631.—Obs. 4. In narration, quum is joined with the imperfect and the pluperfect subjunctive, even when it relates to time, but the event denoted by the subjunctive, usually relates to that expressed in the clause on which the subjunctive depends, not only in regard to time, but also, in some sense, as a cause; as, cum sciret Clodius iter necessarium Milōni esse Lanuvium, Rōmā subito ipse profectus est.

632.—Obs. 5. The conjunction ut, is elegantly omitted after volo, nōto, rōgo, prēcō, censeo, suadeo, licet, oportet, neccesse est, and the like. Also, after the imperatives sine, fac, or facito; as, prēcō venias, “I beg (that) you would come;” fac facias, “see (that) you do it.” So also ne is omitted after the imperative cave; as, cave facias, “See thou do it not.”

633.—Obs. 6. After the verbs timeo, vercor, and the like, ut is used in a negative sense, “that not,” and ne, in an affirmative sense, “that;” as, timeo ut faciat, “I fear that he will not do it.” Timeo ne faciat, “I fear that he will do it.” In a few examples, however, ut seems to have an affirmative, and ne, a negative meaning. Ne non, after timeo, vercor, is equivalent to ut non after other verbs; as, timeo ne non impetrem, “I fear that I shall not obtain it.”

634.—6. In oblique discourse (651 Exp.), the verb, in dependent clauses, takes the subjunctive after any conjunctive term.

§ 141. THE SUBJUNCTIVE AFTER THE RELATIVE.

635.—RULE LV. The relative qui, quæ, quod, requires the subjunctive, when it refers to an indefinite, negative, or interrogative word,—to words implying comparison,—or assigns the reason, cause, or end of that which precedes,—and also in all cases of oblique narration.

This General Rule may be subdivided into the following

SPECIAL RULES.

636 —Rule I. When the relative qui, quæ, quod refers to an indefinite, negative, or interrogative word, it requires the subjunctive mood; as,

Sunt (homines) qui dicant, , Some people say.
Nemo est qui haud intelligat, There is no one who does not understand.
Quis est qui utilia fugiat? Who is there that shuns what is useful!

637.—EXPLANATION.—This rule takes effect only when the antecedent is something indefinite, and when the relative clause is the predicate of the sentence, i. e. when it expresses what is affirmed or denied respecting the subject of the verb, and has for its antecedent, the indefinite, negative, or interrogative itself, and not any intervening word. These are indispensable conditions of this rule.

638.—Obs. 1. The indefinites referred to in this rule are the indefinite pronouns (127-1, and 128, except quidam), and the periphrastic expressions, est qui, “some one,” sunt qui, fuērunt qui, “some;” to which may be added the verbs reperio, invenio, habeo, adsum, desum, venio, and some others, used in a similar manner, by which indefinite expressions are formed nearly of the same import with est qui, sunt qui, &c.; as, omnis aetas quod agat inveniet.

639.—The negative antecedents most common under this rule are such as nemo est, nullus est, unus non est, alius non est, or extat, nihil est, nec est, or non quisquam est, vix ullus est, nec ullus est, vix decimus quisque est, (or any other ordinal used in a similar manner,) non multi sunt, non multum est; also, non est, or nihil est, meaning “there is no cause, or reason why;” and also after non or nihil habeo. After these last, quod “which,” must follow, governed by propter understood; as, non est quod scribas; “there is no reason why you should write.”

640.—The interrogative expressions in the antecedent clause under this rule are chiefly these: Quis est? quantus est? uter est? ecquis est? numquid est? an quisquam est? an est aliquis? quotusquisque est? quid est? quod est? quomodo est? quomodo sunt? quam multi sunt? And also, quid est? numquid est? “what cause?” as, num quid est quod timeas? “why should you fear?”

Note.—Interrogatives under this rule are of a general character, and usually imply a negation; as, quis est qui faciat? “who is there that does it?” i. e. “nobody does it.”

641.—Rule II. The relative is followed by the subjunctive, when the relative and antecedent clauses involve a comparison, or when the latter expresses the purpose, object, or design, of something expressed by the former; as,

Dignus qui amētur, “worthy to be loved.” Quis tam esset amens qui semper vivēret? “who would be so foolish as to live always?”

642.—EXPLANATION.—In all cases under this rule, the relative is equivalent to ut, with the personal pronoun representing the antecedent; i. e. it is used for ut ego, ut tu, ut ille, ut nos, ut vos, ut illi. In such cases, ut with the personal pronoun, is frequently used instead of the relative. Here, also, the relative clause must belong, not to the subject, but to the predicate of the sentence, for in such cases only can it be resolved into ut ego, &c.

643.—Obs. 2. The relative is used in this sense, and requires the subjunctive.

- 1st. When it comes after dignus, indignus, idoneus, and the like in the predicate; as, patres, si dignum qui (ut ille) securus ab Romulo numeretur, crearit, auctores fient.
- 2d. When it follows tam, tantus, adeo; as, quis est tam Lynceus, qui in tantis tenebris nihil offendat? i. e. ut in tantis, &c., “who is so quick-sighted that he would not stumble in such darkness?”—In like manner when it follows talis, ejusmodi, hujusmodi, the subjunctive is commonly used; as, est innocentia affectio talis animi qui nocet nemini. Also, after is, ille, and hic, in the sense of talis (123–2. b.); as, non tu is es qui nescias, “you are not such a one as not to know.” Sometimes, in such cases, ut takes the place of qui; as, nèque enim is es, Catilina, ut te pudor revocarit, &c.
- 3d. When it follows a comparative with quam; as, major sum quam cui possit fortuna nocere.
- 4th. When the relative clause expresses the purpose, object, or design, for which the person mentioned in the antecedent clause is appointed, or the thing spoken of is possessed, or done; as, Lacedæmonii legatos Athènas miserunt qui (i. e. ut illi) eum absentem accusarent. In such sentences the relative and subjunctive may be properly rendered, to, in order to; thus, “the Lacedæmonians sent ambassadors to Athens, to accuse (or in order to accuse) him in his absence.” Sometimes here also, ut takes the place of the relative; as, missus sum ut (i. e. qui) te adducèrem. ¶

644.—Obs. 3. When qui combines with its signification as a relative, or when the preceding clause implies a force equal to so that, such that, the man to, such a man as, it requires the subjunctive; as, stultum est timere quod vitare non possis, “it is foolish to fear that which (i. e. such a thing as) you cannot avoid.” In all such cases, the antecedent clause conveys a vague and general idea, i. e. the person or things referred to are regarded as a species or class, rather than as individuals.

645.—Rule III. When the relative with its clause assigns the cause or reason of the action or event announced by the antecedent clause, it requires the subjunctive; as,

Peccavisse mihi videor qui a te decesserim, “I think that I have erred in having (or, because I) left you.”

646.—EXPLANATION.—In all constructions of this kind, the relative is equivalent to quum, quod, quia, or quoniam ego, tu, is, nos, &c., signifying “because,” or “seeing that I,” “thou,” &c.

647.—Obs. 4. The relative has this force in the expressions quippe qui, ut qui, utpote qui, and consequently is followed by the subjunctive; as, libros non contemno, eorundem, qui ppe qui nunquam legèrim, “I do not, indeed, despise the books, for (or because) I have never read them.”

648.—Rule IV. When qui possesses a power equal to quamquam, or etsi is. or to si, modo, or dummodo, “although—if—provided that he, she, it," &c., it requires the subjunctive mood; as,

Tu aquam pumice postulas, qui ipse siti at. "you demand water from a pumice stone, though itself is parched with thirst." Laco, consilii quam vis egregii quod non ipse afferret inimicus. "Laco was the enemy of any measure, however excellent, if (i. e. provided that) he himself did not propose it."

649.—Rule V. The relative qui takes the subjunctive after unus and solus; when they restrict the affirmation to a particular subject; as,

Hæc est una contentio quæ adhuc permansèrit. "this is the only dispute which has remained till this time."

650.—Rule VI. In oblique or indirect discourse, the relative requires the subjunctive mood; as,

Socrâtes dicere solèbat, omnes in eo quod scirent satis esse eloquentes. "Socrates was accustomed to say, that all were eloquent enough in that which they knew."

651.—EXPLANATION.—Discourse is said to be direct, when a writer or speaker delivers his own sentiments,—oblique, when a person relates in his own language, what another speaker or writer said; an example will best illustrate this distinction.—Tacitus introduces Galgacus, addressing the Caledonian army as follows: "When I contemplate the causes of the war, and the necessity to which we are reduced, great is my confidence that this day, and this union of yours, will prove the beginning of universal liberty to Britain." This is the direct discourse. If, instead of introducing Galgacus himself, to speak his own speech, the historian had only told us what he said, he would have used the oblique or indirect style, thus: Galgacus said, "that when he contemplated the causes of the war, and the necessity to which they (the Roman army) were reduced, his confidence was great, that that day, and that union of theirs, would prove the beginning of universal liberty to Britain."

In the first of these, or the direct discourse, it will be observed that when the speaker refers to himself, he uses the first person, "I," "we." When he refers to those addressed, he uses the second person, "thou," "you,"—and that the leading verbs in Latin are all in the indicative mood, and independent of any previous word. But in the second or oblique discourse, the third person only is used, whether the speaker is said to refer to himself, or his hearers, or a third person. And the leading verbs in Latin, are in the infinitive mood, or in the subjunctive with ut, and, in either case, dependent on the verb with which the account is introduced such as, "he said," "stated," "replied," or the like. It is evident, therefore, that while in both forms, the same idea is expressed in nearly the same language, the construction of the sentence in each is entirely different; thus, in direct discourse: Antonius inquit, "Ars eârum rerum est quæ sciuntur." Cic. Quintilian relates the same thing in the oblique form; thus, "Antonius ait, artem eârum rerum esse quæ sciuntur." Here, the leading verb in the direct form, is est in the indicative mood, having no dependence on any previous word, and having its subject in the nominative case. In the oblique form, the same verb is in the infinitive, esse; it is dependent on ait, and has its subject in the accusative. In the first, the verb in the subordinate clause, is in the indicative, sciuntur; in the last, it is in the subjunctive mood, sciuntur. Hence, the following general principle.

652.—In every unmixed example of oblique narration, two moods only are admissible, the infinitive and subjunctive, and consequently, as the relative is never employed but in the secondary, and subordinate members of a sentence, it must always, in oblique statements, be followed by the subjunctive.

653.—Obs. 5. In connection with this general principle, however, two things must be noticed :

1st. In oblique discourse, the narrator frequently introduces a remark of his own, for the purpose of explanation, but yet so closely interwoven with the discourse he is reporting, as to seem to be a part of it. Such remark is usually introduced with the relative, and the indicative, and may be detected by this construction: Thus, Disseruit Cæsar, non quidem sibi ignara quæ de Silano vulgabantur, sed non ex rumore statuendum, "Cæsar replied 'that those things, indeed,' viz.: which were rumored concerning Silanus, 'were not unknown to him,'" &c. TAC. Here, the clause, quæ de Silano vulgabantur, is not to be regarded as a part of what Cæsar said, but as a clause thrown in by the historian to inform his readers what things they were which Cæsar meant. But if the verb had been vulgarentur, it would have shown that it was a part of what Cæsar said.

2d. In animated oblique narration, the historian sometimes suddenly passes from the oblique to the direct discourse, and, instead of reporting the remarks of the speaker, introduces him, as it were, to speak for himself. This is always manifest by the transition, from the use of the infinitive and subjunctive, to that of the indicative, and from the use of the third person to denote the speaker, and the person addressed, to that of the first and second. The following is often quoted as an appropriate example of this. (OBLIQUE) "Sabinæ mulieris dirimere infestas acies, hinc patres, hinc viros orantes, ne se sanguine nefando, soceri, generique respergerent; ne parricidio macularent partus suos, nepotum illi, liberum hi progenem. (DIRECT) Si piget affinitatis inter vos, si connubii piget, in nos vertite iras, nos causa belli, nos vulnèrum ac cædium viris ac parentibus sumus, melius peribimus, quam sine alteris vestrum viduæ aut orbæ vivemus. Liv. I. 13.

654.—Obs. 6. A verb in the Future-perfect indicative, in direct discourse, will always take the pluperfect subjunctive, when the same sentence is thrown into the oblique form, whatever be the tense of the introductory verb: thus, Dabitur quodcumque optaris. Ov.; in direct discourse, is thus related by Cicero, in the oblique form: Sol Phæthonti filio facturum esse dixit quidquid optasset.

655.—Obs. 7. To this construction may be referred the subjunctive connected by a relative or casual conjunction with the preceding verb in any of its parts, for the purpose of expressing, not what the writer asserts himself, but what is alleged by others; as, Socrates accusatus est quod corrumpēret juventūtem, "Socrates was accused, because (as was alleged) he corrupted the youth." The indicative here would assert, on the part of the writer, that Socrates did corrupt the youth.

Note.—The verbs pūto, dīco, arbītror, and the like, are sometimes used, especially by Cicero, in the subjunctive, with the verb following in the infinitive, when properly they should be in the indicative, (meaning, "as they said, thought, &c.") and the verb, in the clauses dependent on them, in the subjunctive; as, Rediit paulo post, quod se oblītum nescio quia dicēret, Cic., "He (Hannibal) returned soon after, because, as he said, he had forgotten something;" for quod, ut dicēbat, oblītus esset nescio quid. Ementiundo quæ se . . . audisse dicērent, SALL., "By forging stories which, as they said, they had heard;" for quæ, ut dicēbant, audivissent.

656.—Obs. 8. When an infinitive or subjunctive mood has a clause connected with it by a relative or other connecting word, for the purpose of restricting the predicate, otherwise indefinite, the verb of the latter clause is put in the subjunctive mood; as,

Quid enim pōtest esse tam perspicuum, quam esse aliquod nūmen quo hæc regantur, "For what can be so clear, as that there is some divinity by whom these things are governed?"

657.—§ 142. CONSTRUCTION OF THE IMPERATIVE.

1. The Imperative mood is used to command, exhort, &c., 149. Its subject, with which it agrees by Rule IV., is the person or persons addressed in the command, &c., and hence, it is properly used only in the second person. In Latin, as well as in Greek, the imperative mood has a distinct form for the third person; it is, however, but seldom used, and chiefly in the enacting of laws, having the force of a command on those for whom they are designed.

2. With the imperative, not is expressed by ne, and nor by nēve; as, Ne crēde colōri. VIRG. Homīnem mortuum in urbe ne sepelīto, neve urīto. CIC.

3. Instead of the simple imperative, sometimes fac or cāve, with the subjunctive, are used, and nōli with the infinitive; as, fac venias, "come;" cāve existīmes, "do not think;" Nōli timēre, "do not fear." For other tenses, used imperatively, see 150.

§ 143. CONSTRUCTION OF THE INFINITIVE.

[For the tenses of the infinitive mood, in connection with different tenses of the verb, see § 47.]

658.—The infinitive mood, in Latin, is used in two ways; First, as a verbal noun, and Second, as a verb. As a verbal noun, it has no subject; as a verb it always has. Without a subject, it cannot form a proposition, or express an affirmation; with a subject, it always does. In the first case, it comes under the regimen of the verb, either alone as a verbal noun, or with the words depending upon it, as a substantive phrase. In the second, it comes under its regimen, only in connection with its subject, as a distinct, though dependent proposition, or substantive clause. Hence, all that belongs to the construction of this mood, may be comprised in what relates to the use of it, in these two ways.

§ 144. I. THE INFINITIVE WITHOUT A SUBJECT.

659.—The infinitive without a subject, may be regarded as a verbal noun in the singular number, neuter gender (271), and in form indeclinable, but differing from all other nouns, inasmuch as it involves the idea of time, and has all the power of governing that belongs to the verb. The character of the infinitive as a noun, is manifest from its being used in almost every way that a noun is. It is used,

1. As the nominative to a verb; as, invidere (invidia) non cedit in sapientem. Didicisse fideliter artes emollit mores. Ov. Utinam emori fortunis meis honestus exitus esset; or as the nominative after the verb; as, sive illud erat sine funere ferri; bene vivere est bis vivere.

2. As a case in apposition to a preceding nominative; as, res erat spectaculo digna, videre Xerxem, &c.; "it was a thing worthy of being seen, to see Xerxes," &c.

3. It is used as a genitive after substances and adjectives; as, tempus est abire, for abundi;—soli cantare periti Arcades, equivalent to cantandi or cantus. Rules VII. IX.

4. As a dative after adjectives, &c.; thus, et vos servare magis quam imperare parati estis. Rule XVI.

5. As an accusative after an active verb; as, da mihi fallere, HOR. terram cum primum arant, prosciendere appellant; cum iterum, offringere dicunt. VARR.—After a preposition; as, nil interest inter dare et accipere. SEN. Præter plorare. HOR. Præter loqui. LIV.

6. As a vocative; as, O vivere nostrum, for O vita nostra.

7. As an ablative in various constructions; as, dignus amari; as the case absolute; thus, Audito regem in Siciliam tendere. This example, however, has a subject regem. Rule XXIII.

8. It has an adjective or pronoun agreeing with it; as, scire tuum nihil est; ipsum dicere nunquam non ineptum est, &c. CIC. In this way, we may account for the poetic "dulce loqui," "ridere decorum," &c.

9. It governs the genitive like a noun; as, cujus non dimicare fuit vincere.

Note.—It is however, chiefly as the subject or the object of a verb, in the nominative or accusative, that it is used as a noun. The examples above (3, 4, 7,) in which it is used, where a noun or pronoun would be put in the genitive, or dative, or ablative, are of rare occurrence, and in some cases may be otherwise explained. The infinitive as a noun, in the nominative or accusative, is subject to the following Rules:

660.—RULE LVI. One verb being the subject of another, is put in the infinitive; as,

Facile est quæri,
Mentiri turpe est,

To complain is easy
To lie is base.

661.—EXPLANATION.—In the first example the subject or thing spoken of is expressed by the infinitive quæri, which is therefore the nominative to the verb est. A noun used instead of quæri would have to be in the nominative case. In such sentences, it is manifestly improper to say that est governs quæri, just as it would be improper to say the verb governs its nominative. This rule applies also to the infinitive with a subject.

662.—Obs. 1. A proper attention to this rule will show that many verbs considered impersonal, or thought to be used impersonally, are not really so, but have an infinitive or a clause of a sentence for their subject or nominative; thus, ne profuit Hydræ crescere per dæmonum, "nor did it profit the Hydra to grow by his wounds." Ovid. Here, instead of saying that profuit is used impersonally, and governs crescere in the infinitive; the true construction is, that profuit is used personally, and has crescere for its nominative. So, the following, cædit in eundem misereri et invidere. Cic. Vacare culpâ magnum est solatium; neque est te fallere quidquam, &c., 307.

663.—RULE LVII. One verb governs another, as its object, in the infinitive; as,

Cupio discere,

I desire to learn.

664.—EXPLANATION.—The infinitive mood under this rule is equivalent to a noun in the case which the preceding verb usually governs: Thus, in the example, cupio is a transitive active verb and governs discere, as if it were a noun in the accusative. The meaning is, that a verb, used as the object of another, without a conjunction or connective word, must be put in the infinitive. This Rule also applies to the infinitive with a subject.

Note.—In all cases of the infinitive without a subject, under this rule the infinitive expresses an act, or state, of the subject of the preceding verb.

665.—Obs. 2. The infinitive without a subject, is used only after certain verbs, especially such as denote desire, ability, intention or endeavor; such as, cupio, opto, volo, nolo, malo;—possum, queo, nequeo, valco, cogito, canor, tendo, disco, doceo, debeo, &c. By the poets it is used after fuge, parce for noli, and sometimes after carco, fugio, gaudeo, &c. In a few instances it is used after verbs of motion, to denote a purpose; as, intrâit videre, "he came to see." TER. Iniit consilia tollere reges, "he devised a plan to destroy the kings."

666.—Obs. 3. In many cases, the infinitive after such verbs may be changed for the infinitive with a subject; as, cupio me esse clementem. CIC.; for esse clemens, or clementem. §26. Or, for the subjunctive with ut, or ne; as, sententiam ne diceret recusavit, for sententiam dicere.

667.—Obs. 4. The infinitive without a subject is also used after adjectives, and nouns. So used, it is equivalent to a noun in the case governed by such adjective or noun. See examples, 659-3, 4, 7.

668.—Obs. 5. Sometimes the infinitive is understood; as, ei provinciam Numidiam populus jussit; sc. dāri.

Note 1.—When the verbs possum, volo, nolo, malo, in the indicative or subjunctive, are translated by the English auxiliaries can, will, will not, could rather; or in the past tense by could, would, &c., the infinitive following is translated without to before it; as, pōtest fieri, “it can be done” volo ire, “I will go;” malo facere, “I would rather do it;” nolite timere, “do not fear.”

Note 2.—The present infinitive is generally translated as the perfect, without to, when it comes after the imperfect, perfect, or pluperfect, of possum, volo, nolo, malo, translated could, would, would not, would rather; and with to after the same tenses of debeo and oportet, translated ought, as, melius fieri non potuit, “it could not have been done better;” volui dicere, “I would have said;” sumere arma noluit, “he would not have taken arms;” dividi oportuit, “it ought to have been divided.” &c.

Note 3.—After verbs denoting to see, hear, feel, and the like, the present infinitive is sometimes rendered by the English present participle; as, audivi eum dicere, “I heard him saying.” Also when the infinitive is the subject of another verb; as, morari periculōsum est, “delaying (to delay) is dangerous.”

The Historical Infinitive.

669.—Obs. 6. The verb governing the infinitive is sometimes omitted, especially is this the case in historical narration, when the infinitive follows a nominative case in the sense of the imperfect indicative, or the perfect indefinite; as, invidere omnes mihi, “all envied me.” TER. At Romāni, domi militaque intenti, festinare, parare, alius alium hortari. SALL. When thus used, it is supposed to be governed by cepit or cepērunt understood. Cases occur, however, in which this supplement cannot be made; as, verum ingenium ejus haud absurdum; posse facere versus, jocum novere, &c., (310.) SALL. The historical infinitive and the imperfect, are often connected in the same construction; as, Albinus . . . senatum de fœdere consulēbat; et tamen interim exercitui supplementum scribere . . . auxilia arcessere, denique modis omnibus festinare. SALL., Jug. 39.

570.—§ 145. II. THE INFINITIVE WITH A SUBJECT

The infinitive with a subject possesses the character of the verb, and affirms of its subject as in the indicative or the subjunctive mood; but only in subordinate and dependent propositions. These propositions themselves have a substantive character, and generally stand in the relation of substantives to a verb, or phrase, on which they depend; sometimes as a nominative to, or the subject of the verb, but generally as an object or an accusative after it. Thus used, they may be called substantive clauses—and as such, they fall under the two preceding rules. Thus:

1st. The infinitive with a subject must be considered as the nominative when it is the subject of a sentence, i. e. when anything is declared of it as, te non istud audivisse mirum est, “that you have not heard that is wonderful” Here, te non istud audivisse stands as the nominative to est. Rule LVI. See 661.

2d. The infinitive with its subject is the accusative or object after a verb, when it has for its direct object, the idea expressed by a dependent infinitive clause, or when such a clause takes the place of a noun or pronoun governed by the verb; as, miror te non scribere, “I wonder that you do not write.” Here, te non scribere stands as the object of miror, which governs it as an accusative by Rule LVII, or XX. See 664.

Note.—The verbs which admit an infinitive with its subject as their direct object, are those which denote an action of our senses, or internal faculties, or such as denote feeling, knowing, thinking, or saying; as, audio, video, sentio, cognosco, intelligo, memini, puto, duco, dico, prodo, scribo, promitto, and the like. These seldom take a conjunction (ut or quod) with the indicative or subjunctive as their object. See Obs. 5, et seq.

671.—RULE LVIII. The subject of the infinitive is put in the accusative; as,

Gaudeo te valere,

I am glad that you are well.

672.—EXPLANATION.—The subject of the infinitive is the person or thing spoken of in the dependent clause, and may be, as in Rule IV., a noun, a pronoun, &c., and is always to be in the accusative case; except as in 669.

Under this Rule, the infinitive with its subject forms a distinct proposition, and is equivalent to the indicative, or subjunctive mood in English, together with the connective “that.” Thus, in the example, te valere contains the simple proposition, “You are well.” The equivalent of the English “that,” connecting it as a subordinate clause with the preceding verb, is implied in the infinitive form. If the infinitive stand after an accusative which does not form with it a distinct proposition, i. e. which is not its subject, it does not belong to this Rule, but the accusative is governed by Rule XX.; as, Præteus pæcus egit altos visere montes. HOR. Hence.

OBSERVATIONS.

673.—Obs. 1. The English particle “that,” may be called the sign of the accusative before the infinitive, being used to connect the infinitive clause with the preceding. It may often be omitted, however, in translating, as it frequently is in English; thus, aiunt regem adventare, “they say the king is coming, or, “that the king is coming.”

674.—Obs. 2. The accusative subject, in Latin, is translated by the nominative in English. Hence, the accusative of the relative pronoun referring to persons must be rendered who, not whom; as quem confectum vulneribus diximus, “who, we said, was exhausted with his wounds.”

Note.—The infinitive with its subject in the accusative is sometimes translated in the same form in English; as, cupio te venire, “I wish you to come;” quos discordare novèrat, “whom he had known to differ;” eum vocari jussit, “he ordered him to be called.”

N. B.—For the various ways of rendering the different tenses of the infinitive after different tenses of the indicative or subjunctive, see at length, 180.

675.—Obs. 3. When the subject of the infinitive is the same with the subject of the preceding verb, it is seldom expressed, unless required to be emphatic; as, pollicitus sum scripturam (esse) se. me, “I promised that I would write.” After verbs signifying to be accustomed, to dare, I can, I ought, the infinitives esse, judicari, videri, &c. having the same subject with the preceding verb, have an adjective or noun after them in the nominative case, indicating that the subject of the infinitive understood is regarded as a nominative according to the Greek construction. Gr. Gr. § 175. Ère. Thus, sòlet tristis videri; aude sapiens esse; debes esse diligens. See also, 325–328, and 733–3, 3d.

676.—Obs. 4. When the preceding verb is in the passive voice, the subject of the infinitive may be changed into the subject of that verb, or remain unchanged in the accusative, the passive verb being used impersonally, or rather having the infinitive clause for its subject; thus, matrem Pausaniæ eo tempore vixisse dicitur, or, mater Pausaniæ eo tempore vixisse dicitur, “it is said that the mother of Pausanias was living at that time,” or, “the mother of Pausanias is said to have been living,” &c. Gr. Gr., § 175, Obs. 3.

Note.—When a relative clause has the same verb as the proposition with the infinitive on which the relative clause depends, but without the repetition of the verb, the subject of the verb in the relative clause is put by attraction in the accusative; as, Platonem ferunt idem sensisse quod Pythagoram, “They say that Plato thought as Pythagoras did.” But, if the verb of the relative clause is expressed, its subject must be in the nominative; as, Platonem ferunt . . . idem sensisse quod Pythagoras sensit.

The same analogy is observed with the conjunction quam after a comparative. See 470, 1st and 2d.

677.—Obs. 5. The accusative with the infinitive, in a subordinate clause, is in some cases equivalent to the subjunctive with ut or quod, “that,” preceding; as, Optavit ut in currum patris tolleretur, or, Optavit se in currum patris tolli, “He (Phæthon) desired that he should be taken up into his father’s chariot.” Gaudeo te valere, or gaudeo quod valeas, “I am glad that you are well.” But though, in a few cases, the one expression may be changed for the other, usage has given so decided a preference in some cases to the one form, and in others to the other, that such change would be improper; thus.

1st. When the dependent clause expresses purpose or design, or when "that" is equivalent to "in order that," "so that," ut with the subjunctive is used. 627-1. 2d.

2d. After verbs of endeavoring, aiming, accomplishing, such as facio, efficio, perficio, &c., the subjunctive with ut is always used. Hence arises the use of facere ut, instead of the indicative, to denote a fact; thus, fēcit ut dimitteret milites, is equivalent to dimisit milites.

3d. Verbs signifying to request, demand, admonish, advise, commission, encourage, command, and the like, usually take the subjunctive with ut, which may generally be rendered as the infinitive; as, præcepit ut irem "He commanded me to go."

Note.—In narrative, dependent clauses, expressing obliquely the wish, command, or message of another, whether the verb be in the subjunctive with ut or ne, or in the infinitive with a subject, or both in connection, often depend on a word denoting to say, saying, understood, or implied in the leading verb; as, Ad Bocchum nuntios mittit (qui dicērent ut) quam primum copias adducēret; prælii faciendi tempus adesse. SALL. Jug. 97. Verba facit (dicens) se arma cepisse. Id. 102.

4th. Ut with the subjunctive follows verbs signifying to happen, to occur, &c., as, fit, incidit, occurrit, contingit; est, restat, superest, &c. 627-1. 4th.

5th. Verbs signifying willingness, unwillingness, permission, necessity, &c., commonly take the accusative with the infinitive. Also, generally, verbs denoting seeing, hearing, knowing, feeling, thinking, saying, &c., but sometimes they take the subjunctive.

6th. When the dependent clause expresses, not a thought or conception only, but a fact, the verb is put in the indicative or subjunctive with quod; as, inter causas malōrum nostrōrum est quod vivimus ad exempla.

7th. After verbs denoting a feeling of pain or pleasure, and the outward expression of those feelings, such as, gaudeo, delector, angor, doleo, and the like, quod, "that," in the sense of "because," with the indicative or subjunctive is used, or the accusative with the infinitive; as, Quo a spirātis (or vos spirāre) indignantur. Whether the indicative or subjunctive is to be used, depends on whether the proposition expresses a fact, or only a conception of the mind.

678.—Obs. 6. After such verbs as existimo, puto, spero, affirmo, suscipior, &c., the place of the future infinitive is elegantly supplied by fore, or futurum esse, followed by ut with the subjunctive; as, Nunquam putavi fore ut supplex ad te venirem; for (me) venturum esse.

This construction is necessary when the verb has no supine, and consequently no future infinitive active. See 179-9. Fore is sometimes used with the perfect participle, to denote a future action in the passive voice as, Quod videret nomine pacis bellum involutum fore.

679.—Obs. 7. The verb on which the infinitive depends is sometimes omitted, especially in interrogations, or exclamations, expressive of indignation; as, Mene incepto desistere nec posse, &c. VIAG. In such cases, some such expression as credibile est is understood.

680.—Exc. The historical infinitive has its subject in the nominative (810 and 669) as, Fama præclara esse, "His fame was illustrious." SALL.

§ 146. CONSTRUCTION OF THE PARTICIPLES.

[For the tenses, and the use of the participles in certain connections, see § 49.]

681.—RULE LIX. Participles, like adjectives, agree with their substantives in gender, number, and case; as,

Homo cārens fraude,
Pax tantum amāta,

A man wanting guile.
Peace so greatly loved.

682.—REM. Participles together with gerunds and supines being parts of the verb, govern the case of their own verbs; so that no separate rule for the government of cases by these, is at all necessary.

OBSERVATIONS.

683.—Obs. 1. The verbs do, reddo, vōlo, cūro, facio, habeo, comperto, with the perfect participle, form a periphrasis similar to the compound tenses in English, and other modern languages; thus, Habeo compertum, for compēri, “I have found;” Missam iram faciet, for iram mittet, &c.

684.—Obs. 2. The perfect passive participle is often used, to supply the place of a verbal noun, when such a noun is wanting, or but seldom used; as, Hæ lit̄eræ recit̄atæ magnum luctum fecerunt, “The reading of this letter, (not “this letter being read”) caused great mourning.” So, Captum Tarentum, “The taking of Tarentum;” receptus Hannibal, “the reception of Hannibal.” Ab urbe condita, “from the building of the city.”

685.—Obs. 3. The future active participle is frequently used, to denote the purpose or design of an action, and is in such case rendered to, in order to; as, ad Jovem Hammōnem perḡit consultūrus de origine sua, “he goes to Jupiter Ammon to (or in order to) consult him about his origin.” So also the present; as, p̄tens veniam v̄nit.

686.—Obs. 4. The future participle in dus, also, denotes a purpose, when joined with verbs signifying to give, to deliver, to agree for, to have, to receive, to undertake, &c.; as, Testamentum tibi tr̄dit legendum, “he delivers his will to you to be read;” So, his aera dedit habendum.

687.—Obs. 5. The participle in dus, generally implies the idea of propriety, necessity, or obligation. This is almost always the case when it agrees with the subject of a sentence; as, Delenda est Carthago, “Carthage must be destroyed.” Sometimes, also, when it agrees with words not in the subject; as, Facta narrabas dissimulanda tibi, “You were relating (things which) ought to have been concealed by you.” The doc̄ in such constructions, when expressed, must be in the dative. 531.

Note.—In some cases, the participle in dus, is used as a present participle passive. 182, Note 3.

688.—Obs. 6. Participles are often used instead of a dependent clause to express some condition or explanatory circumstance usually introduced in English, by a relative pronoun, or the particles as, when, although, since while, and the like; as, Cæsar hostes in fugam conjectos persecutus est, "Cæsar pursued the enemy who had been put to flight." Curio ad focum sedenti, "To Curius as he was sitting by the fire." Dionysius, Syracusis expulsus, Corinthi pueros docebat, "Dionysius, when he was expelled from Syracuse," &c.

689.—Obs. 7 A participle is joined with another verb, and in the same case with its subject, for the two following purposes, viz.:

1st. It is used simply to connect an accompanying with the main action, whether simultaneous or antecedent, in the same subject. Thus used, the participle and verb may be rendered as two verbs connected by a conjunction, as, vēnit ad me clamitans, "he came to me and cried out," lit., crying out, Cæsar hostes aggressus fugavit, "Cæsar attacked and defeated the enemy."

2d. Sometimes, as in Greek, it is used to connect an accompanying with the main action, in the same subject, as the cause, manner, or means of effecting it; as, hoc faciens vivam melius, "by doing this I will live better." HOR. So used, it is equivalent to the ablative Gerund.

When a participle does not refer to some leading subject in the proposition, but to a new subject introduced, and not depending on any word in the sentence, the participle is put with that new subject, in what is called—

THE CASE ABSOLUTE.

690.—RULE LX. A substantive with a participle, whose case depends on no other word, is put in the ablative absolute; as,

Sole oriente fugiunt tenebræ, { The sun rising, or while the sun rises, darkness flies away.

691.—EXPLANATION.—This Rule properly affects the substantive only, with which the participle then agrees by Rule LIX.

692.—Obs. 8. This construction is much more frequent in Latin, than in other languages, partly, because there is no perfect participle in the active voice. When, therefore, in connection with an active or deponent verb, a past act of its subject is to be expressed by the participle, the perfect participle passive must be used; and hence, the object of the act must be introduced as a new subject, which, having no dependence on any word in the sentence, must, under the rule, be put in the ablative absolute. Thus, in English we say: Cæsar, having sent forward the cavalry, followed with all his forces. There being no perfect participle in Latin corresponding to "having sent," which would agree with Cæsar, in the nominative case, this clause must be changed into the passive form; thus, Cæsar, equitatu præmissō, subsequēbatur, &c., "literally, Cæsar, the cavalry being sent before, followed," &c. Hence,

REM.—When in this construction, the act expressed by the perfect participle passive, is an act of the subject of the leading verb, it is better to render it into English by the perfect participle active; thus, Cæsar, hæc dictis, profectus est, "Cæsar having said these things departed."

693 —As the perfect participle of deponent verbs has an active sig nification, it is not necessary to resort to such a change in the use of them. Thus, Cæsar hæc locūtus concilium dimisit, "Cæsar having said these things, dismissed the council." With the participle of a verb, not deponent, the passive form and the ablative would be used thus; Cæsar his dictis, concilium dimisit, &c., "Cæsar, these things being said, dismissed the council."—The first of these expressions, besides being more direct, is also much more definite; for here, there is no doubt as to who said the things referred to, but in the second, it is left in doubt, whether the things referred to were spoken by Cæsar or by some other. This doubt can be removed only by the context, or by express mention of the doer, which is not often done. In the following sentence, the two forms are combined: Cæsar omnium remōtis equis, cohortātus suos prælium commisit.—So, agros Remōrum depopulāti omnibus vicis ædificiisque incensis. CÆS.

Note.—A few instances occur in which this construction is used when there is no change of subject, and where a different case would have expressed the same thing; thus, legio ex castris Varrōnis, adstante et inspectante ipso, for adstantis et inspectantis ipsius.

694.—Obs. 9. The ablative absolute, in the case of deponent, as well as of other verbs, is used to indicate the order and connection of events narrated, as in the above examples; or to mark the time of action by reference to that of another action; as, Pythagōras, Tarquinio Superbo regnante, in Italiam vēnit, "Pythagōras came into Italy in the reign of Tarquin the Proud." In all such cases, it is equivalent to the subjunctive with a connective word. Thus, his dictis, in the former example, is equivalent to quum hæc dixisset—Tarquinio Superbo regnante, to quum Tarquinus Superbus regnaret; and so of others.

695.—Obs. 10. The verb sum having no present participle, two nouns, or a noun and adjective, are used in the case absolute without a participle, which is supplied in English by the word being; thus, se dūce, "he (being) leader;" se consulē, "he (being) consul," or "in his consulship;" so, C. Duilio et Cn. Cornelio Asinā consulibus.

696.—Obs. 11. Some word, phrase, or clause of a sentence, sometimes supplies the place of the substantive, and has a participle with it in the ablative; as, nondum comperto quam regiōnem hostes petissent;—audito Dariūm appropinquāre;—vāle dicto, &c.

697.—Obs. 12. Sometimes the noun is understood; as, parto quod aēbas. Sometimes a plural substantive is joined with a singular participle, as, nōhis presente. For the construction of Gerundives, see next section.

698.—§ 147. GERUNDS* AND GERUNDIVES.

The Gerund is a verbal noun, in the singular number governed in the oblique cases as other nouns, and having the same power of government as the verb. As, therefore, the rules which apply to the construction of nouns and verbs, apply to the gerund, it is unnecessary to repeat them here. All that is peculiar to the construction of the gerund, is comprised in the following Rules and Observations.

* Some Grammaticians, who regard the gerund as a verbal noun, speak of it as such only in the oblique cases. They think that the nominative of the verbal is supplied by the infinitive mood, and that which is called the nomi-

699.—RULE LXI.—The verb Est with the gerund for its subject, implies necessity, and governs the dative of the doer; as,

Nom. Legendum est mihi,	I must read, lit. reading is to me.
Nom. Moriendum est omnibus,	All must die, lit. dying is to all.
Acc. Scio moriendum esse mihi,	I know that I must die, lit. that dying is to me.

700.—EXPLANATION. The dative here is governed by est, according to R. II (394.) In the first and second examples, the gerund in the nominative is the subject of est, which agrees with it by R. IV. (303.) In the third example, the gerund is in the accusative, and the subject of esse, by R. LVIII. (671.) The necessity implied in this construction is stronger than that expressed by the participle in *du*s, the latter implying only that a thing is to be done, or should be done,—the former that it must be done. See 214–9.

701.—Obs. 1. The dative of the doer in this construction is often understood; as, Orandum est (tibi) ut sit sana mens in corpore sano.

702.—Obs. 2. The gerund in di, of the genitive case, is governed by substantives or adjectives; as,

Tempus legendi,	Time of reading, 332.
Cupidus discendi,	Desirous of learning, 349.

703.—Obs. 3. The gerund in do, of the dative case, is governed by adjectives, signifying usefulness or fitness; as,

Charta utilis scribendo,	Paper used for writing, 382.
---------------------------------	------------------------------

Sometimes it is governed by verbs; as, adescere scribendo. Cic. Apud habendo censum. Virg. Is finis censendo factus est.

704.—Obs. 4. The gerund in dum, of the accusative case, native of the gerund, is really the neuter of the participle in *du*s, in a passive sense, joined with the verb est used impersonally. Thus, studendum est mihi, they think should be literally rendered “it is to be studied by me.” Though this solution is plausible, and would seem to answer in many cases, there are others in which we, at least, cannot see how it could be applied. It cannot be applied unless the participle in *du*s in all cases has, or may have, a passive sense; but of this there is no evidence, and facts are opposed to it. Thus, it will hardly be admitted as a literal rendering of moriendum est omnibus, to say “it is to be died by all,” and it certainly cannot be so used in those examples in which it governs the same case that it does in its active sense; thus, utrum pace nobis an bello esset utendum. Cic. Quum suo cuique iudicio utendum sit. Indeed, the fact that gerunds, in all cases, do govern the case of their own verb, seems to be opposed to their being considered as parts of the passive participle in *du*s.

when not the subject of the infinitive, is governed by the prepositions, ad, inter, &c.; as,

Inter docendum, In time of teaching.

705.—Obs. 5. The gerund in do, of the ablative case, is governed by the prepositions a, ab, de, e, ex, or in; as,

Pœna a peccando absterret, Punishment frightens from sinning.

Or, without a preposition, as the ablative of manner, or cause; as,

Memoria excolendo augetur, The memory is improved by exercising it.

Defessus sum ambulando, I am wearied with walking.

706.—Obs. 6. The gerund, as a verbal noun, resembles the infinitive, and is often put for it; as, Est tempus legendi, or legere. The gerund, however, is never joined with an adjective, and is sometimes taken in a passive sense; as, Cum Tisidium vocaretur ad imperandum—"to receive orders;" urit videndo,—"by being seen," i. e. dum videtur.

CONSTRUCTION OF GERUNDIVES.

707.—LXII. Gerunds governing the accusative, are elegantly turned into gerundives in dus, which, with the sense of the gerund, instead of governing, agree with their substantive in gender, number, and case; as,

Gerund,	Tempus petendi pacem,	} Time of seeking peace.
Gerundive,	Tempus petendæ pacis,
Gerund,	Ad petendum pacem,	} To seeking peace.
Gerundive,	Ad petendam pacem,
Gerund,	A petendo pacem,	} From seeking peace.
Gerundive,	A petendâ pâce,

708.—EXPLANATION.—This rule applies only to the oblique cases. In the first of these examples, the Gerund petendi is governed in the genitive by tempus according to Rule VI., 322, and then governs pacem in the accusative by Rule XX., 436. In the gerundive form, the genitive pâcis is governed by tempus, by Rule VI., 322, and the gerundive petendæ agrees with it by Rule II., 268. In the gerund form, the gerund is governed, and then governs the noun. In the gerundive form, the noun is governed, and then the gerundive agrees with it by R. II. In order to change from the gerund to the gerundive, it is necessary only to change the accusative of the noun, into the case of the gerund, and then make the gerundive agree with it; and from the gerundive to the gerund, change the noun into the accusative, and the gerundive into the gerund, in the same case as before.

The following are examples to be changed:

GER. Consilia urbis delendæ;—civium trucidandum;—nominis Romæ extinguendi

DAT. Perpetiēdo labōri idoneus;—capessendæ reipublicæ habilis;—nātus miserias ferendo;—ad miserias ferendas;—onēri ferendo aptus.

ACC. and AB. Ad defendendam Rōmam;—ab oppugnando Capuam;—ad collocandum signa;—in diripiēdis castris.

709.—Obs. 7. Instead of the gerundive in the genitive plural, to agree with a noun in that case, the gerund in the genitive singular is often retained, probably for the sake of Euphony; as, Fuit exemplōrum eligēdi potestas. CIC. Facultas agrōrum condonandi; sui (pl) condonandi, instead of eligēdōrum, condonandōrum. Also, sometimes when the noun is singular and feminine; as, ejus (fem.) vidēdi cupidus. TER.

710.—Obs. 8. The gerunds of verbs, which do not govern the accusative, are never changed into the gerundive, except those of medeor, utor, abutor, fruor, fungor, and potior; as, spes potiūdi urbe, or potiūde urbis: but we always say, Cupīdus subveniēdi tibi, never tui.

711.—Obs. 9. After esse, fōre, the gerund and the gerundive in the genitive (364), are used, to express tendency to a thing, or serving a certain purpose; as, Regium imperium initio conservandæ libertātis, atque augendæ reipublicæ fuerat. SALL., Cat. VI., "The regal government at first had served the purpose of preserving liberty, and increasing the state," [Aiebant] ea prodēdi imperii Rōmāni, tradēdæ Hannibālī victoriæ esse, "They said that these things had a tendency to betray the Roman government, and to give the victory to Hannibal." LIV. Quum animadvertisset plerūque diis solvendārum religiōnum esse, "When he had perceived that most of them tended to destroy religion." LIV.

§ 148. CONSTRUCTION OF SUPINES.

1. The Supine in um.

712.—RULE LXIII. The supine in um is put after a verb of motion; as,

Abiit deambulātum,

He hath gone to walk.

So, Ducere cohortes prædātum. LIV. Nunc venis irrīsūm domīnum? Quod in rem tuam optūmū factu arbūror, te id admonītum venio. PLAUT.

713.—Obs. 1. The supine in um is elegantly joined with the verb eo, to express the signification of any verb more strongly; as, it se perditum, the same with id agit, or opēram dat, ut se perdat, "he is bent on his own destruction." TER. So, ut perditum cātis=ut percatis; ereptum eunt,=eripiunt. SALL. This supine with iri, taken impersonally, supplies the place of the future infinitive passive; as, ut credēbas illam sine tud opēra iri deductam domum? Which may be thus resolved; an credēbas iri (= te, or ab aliquo) deductum (i. e. ad viducendum) illam domum. TER. The supine here may be considered as a verbal substantive governing the accusative, like the gerund

714.—Obs. 2. The supine in um is put after other verbs besides those of motion; as, dedit filiam nuptum; cantatum provocimus. TER. Vocatus defensum patriam; divisit copias hiematum. NFP.

715.—Obs. 3. The meaning of this supine may be expressed by several other parts of the verb; as, venit oratum opem: or 1. Venit opem orandi causa, or opis orandæ. 2. Venit ad orandum opem, or ad orandam opem. □

2. The Supine in u.

716.—RULE LXIV. The supine in u is put after AD adjective noun; as,

Facile dictu,

Easy to tell, or to be told.

So, nihil dictu fardum, visûque, hæc limina tangat, intra quæ puer est. Juv. Difficilis res est inventu verus amicus;—fas est, or nefas est dictu;—opus est scitu. Cic.

717.—Obs. 4. The supine in u, being used in a passive æsne, hardly ever governs any case. It is sometimes, especially in old writers, put after verbs of motion; as, nunc obsonatu redeo,—"from getting provisions." PLAUT. Præmus cubitu surgat (villicus), postræmus cubitum eat, "let the overseer be the first to rise, and the last to go to bed." CATO.

718.—Obs. 5. This supine may be rendered by the infinitive or gerund with the preposition ad; as, difficile cognitû, cognosci, or ad cognoscendum; res facilis ad credendum. Cic.

719.—Obs. 6. The supines being nothing else but verbal nouns of the fourth declension, used only in the accusative and ablative singular, are governed in these cases by prepositions understood;—the supine in um, by the preposition ad; and the supine in u, by the preposition in.

§ 149. CONSTRUCTION OF CONJUNCTIONS.

720.—RULE LXV. The conjunctions et, ac, atque, nec, nèque, aut, vel, and some others, couple similar cases and moods; as,

Honora patrem et matrem,

Honor father and mother.

Nec legit nec scribit,

He neither reads nor writes.

721.—EXPLANATION.—Words coupled by a conjunction under this æla, are in the same construction, i. e. two nominatives coupled together are the subject of the same verb, or predicates of the same subject; and nouns coupled together in the oblique cases are governed by the same word, as in the first example. Feros thus coupled have the same subject or nominative, as in the second example.

722.—Obs. 1. The copulative conjunctions under this Rule are such as et, ac, atque, etiam, que; the disjunctives nec, nèque, aut, vel, seu, sive, ve, nève, neu; also quam, præterquam, nisi, an, nempe, quamvis, necdum, sed, autem verum, and, in general, such connectives as do not imply a dependence of the following, on the preceding clause.

723.—Obs. 2. These conjunctions connect not only words, but also clauses whose construction is the same, i. e. whose subjects are in the same case, and their verbs in the same mood; as, concidunt venti, fugiuntque ræbes.

724.—Obs. 2. Words in the same construction are sometimes in a different case: still they are connected by the copulative conjunctions; thus, in reipublicæ interest. Here, mea and reipublicæ, though in different cases, are in the same construction by R. XVIII. (415). So, constitit asse et plûris, Rule XLIV. (581). Vir magni ingenii, summæque industriæ, Rule VII. (339), &c. The subjunctive being often used for the imperative is sometimes coupled with it; as, disce nec invidias.

725.—Obs. 4. The indicative and subjunctive may be connected in this manner, if the latter does not depend on the former.

726.—Obs. 5. When two words coupled together have each a conjunction, such as, et, aut, vel, sive, nec, &c., without being connected with a preceding word, the first et is rendered both or likewise; the first aut or vel, by either; the first sive, by whether; and the first nec or nèque, by neither. So, also, tum . . . tum, and cum . . . tum, "not only . . . but also" or "both . . . and;" and so of others; as, nunc . . . nunc; jam, . . . jam, &c. In such cases, the conjunctive before the first word renders it more emphatic: tum . . . tum often mean, "at one time, . . . at another time."

727.—Note: Affirmative and negative sentences are connected by conjunctions in pairs, as follows:

Affirmative.

et—et very common.
et—que, not unfrequently.
que—et, connecting single words.
que—que, only in poetry & SALL.

Negative.

neque—neque, nec—nec,
neque—nec, not unfrequently.
nec—neque, seldom.

Affirmative and negative.

et—neque, nec, very frequent.
neque, nec—et, very frequent.
nec, neque—que, occasionally.

728.—Obs. 6. After words expressing similarity or dissimilarity, ac and atque signify "as;" and "than;" as, fâcis ac si me rôges, "you do as if you should ask me;"—me cõlit æquè atque patrõnum suõrum, "I show me as much attention as," &c.;—si alitèr scribo ac scõ, "if I write otherwise than I think."

729.—Obs. 7. Conjunctions that do not imply doubt and contingency, are usually joined with the indicative mood; those which do imply doubt, contingency and dependence, are, for the most part, joined with the subjunctive (628).

§ 150. FIGURES OF SYNTAX.

A FIGURE is a manner of speaking different from the regular and ordinary construction, used for the sake of beauty or force.

730.—The figures of Syntax, or, construction, may be reduced to four: Klipsis, Pleonasm, Enallage, and Hyperbaton. Of these, the first, and second, and third, respect the constituent parts of a sentence; the fourth respects only the arrangement of words.

731.—1. ELLIPSIS, is the omission of one or more words necessary to complete the sense; as,

Aiunt, fêrunt, &c. sc., homînes. Abêrant bidui, sc., iter, or itinère. Quid multa? sc., dicam. Under this may be comprehended,

1st. ASYNDETON, or the omission of a conjunction; as, vêni, vîdi, vîci Deus optîmus, maxîmus, sc., et.

2d. Zeugma is the uniting of two nouns or infinitives to a verb which is applicable only to one of them; as, pâcem an bellum gêrens SALL., where gêrens is applicable to bellum only. In this way, nêgo is sometimes used with two propositions, one of which is affirmative; as, Nêgant Cæsârem mansûrum, postulâtique interposita esse; i. e. dicunt que postulata.

3d. Syllepsis is when an adjective or a verb, belonging to two or more nouns of different genders, persons, or numbers, agrees with one rather than another. See examples 266, 267.

4th. Synecdöche is the use of an accusative of the part affected instead of an ablative; as, Explêri mentem nêquit, 538. VIRG.

732.—2. PLEONASM, is using a greater number of words than is necessary, to express the meaning; as,

Sic ôre locûta est, “thus she spoke with her mouth.” VIRG. Under this are included,

1st. Polysyndeton, or, a redundancy of conjunctions; as, unâ Eurûs que Notus que ruunt. VIRG.

2d. Hendiädys, or the expression of an idea, by two nouns connected by a conjunction, instead of a noun limited by an adjective or genitive; as, Patêris libâmus et auro, “We offer a libation from cups and from gold,” instead of patêris aureis, “from golden cups.”

3d. Periphrasis, or a circuitous mode of expression; as, tendêri fœtû ovium, “the tender young of the sheep,” instead of agni, “lamb.”

733.—3. ENALLAGE, is a change of words, or a change of one gender, number, case, person, tense, mood, or voice, of the same word, for another. It includes,

1st. Antimeria, or the using of one part of speech for another as, nos iram vivêre, for nostra vita; conjugium vidêbit, for conjugem, &c.

2d. Heterösis, or the using of one form of a noun, pronoun, or verb, for another; as, Românus pralio victor, for Romani victores. Tranrus me sustulêrat, for sustulisset. Hor

3d. Antiptōsis, or the using of one case for another; as, cui nunc cognōmen Iūlo, for Iūlus. (261 and 433). VIRG. Uxor invicti Jōnis esse nescis, for te esse uxōrem. HOR. See 675.

4th. Synēsis, or Synthēsis, is adapting the construction to the sense of a word, rather than to its gender or number; as, Concursus popūli m rantiūm;—Paras in crucem acti;—scēlus qui, &c. 278 and 292.

5th. Anacoluthon, or a departure in the end of a sentence, from the construction with which it commenced. Thus, Nam nos omnes, quibus est alicunde aliquis objectus lābos . . . . lucro est. Here the writer began as if he intended to say lucro habēmus, and ended as if he had said nōbis omnibus. As it is, the nominative nos has no verb, and est, which, in such sentences, requires the dative of a person, is without it.

734.—4. HYPERBATON, is a transgression of the usual order of words or clauses. It includes,

1st. Anastrōphē, or an inversion of the order of two words; as Transtra per et rēnos, for per iranstra, &c.;—Collo dāre brachia circum, for circumdāre, &c.

2d. Hystēron protēron, or reversing the natural order of the sense; as, Moriāmur et in media arma ruāmus. VIRG. Vālet atque vivit TER.

3d. Hypallāgē, or an interchange of constructions; as, In nōva fert animus mutātas dicere formas corpōra; for corpōra mutāta in nōvas formas. Dāre classibus Austros, for dāre classes Austris.

4th. Tmesis, or separating the parts of a compound word; as, Septem subjecta triōni gens, for Septentriōni. VIRG. Que me cunque vōcant terre, for quæcunque, &c.

5th. Parenthesis, or the insertion of a word or clause in a sentence, which interrupts the natural connection; as, Tityre, dum redea (brēvis est viā) pasce capellas. VIRG.

To these may be added,

735.—ARCHAISM, which in Syntax means the use of ancient forms of construction; as, Opēram abutitur, for opērā. TER. Quil tibi hanc curatio est rem?

736.—HELLENISM, or the use of Greek constructions; as, Abstinēto irārum, for iris. HOR. Tempus desistere pugnæ, for pugnā. VIRG.

§ 151. LATIN ARRANGEMENT.

737.—In all languages, the arrangement of words in a sentence is different and all, it is probable, consider the order of arrangement in their own language the most natural, being that to which they have themselves been most accustomed. In a language like the English, however, the words of which have but few changes of form or termination, much more depends on their position in a sentence than in those languages which are able, by the changes of form only, to indicate the relation of words to each other, however they may be arranged. Thus, when we say in English, "Alexander conquered Darius," if we change the order of the words, we necessarily change the meaning also; as, Darius conquered Alexander. But whether we say in Latin, Alexander vicit Darium, or Darium vicit Alexander, or Alexander Darium vicit, or Darium Alexander vicit, or place these words in any other possible order of arrangement, the meaning is the same, and cannot be mistaken; because it depends, not on the position, but on the form of the words. This gave the Latin writer much more scope to arrange his words in that order which would best promote the strength or euphony of the sentence, without endangering its perspicuity. Still, even in Latin, custom has established a certain order of arrangement which is considered the best. And, though no certain rules can be given on this subject, which are applicable to every instance, the following general principles and Rules may be noticed.

738.—General principles of Latin Arrangement.

1. The word governed is placed before the word which governs it.

2. The word agreeing is placed after the word with which it agrees. More particularly,

739.—Rule I. The subject is generally put before the verb; as, Deus mundum gubernat.

Exc. 1. When the subject is closely connected with a clause following the verb, it is placed after the verb; as, erant omnino duo itinera, quibus, &c.

Exc. 2. When the subject is emphatic, it usually follows the verb and concludes the sentence.

740.—Rule II. The adjective or participle most commonly follows the substantive with which it agrees.

With few exceptions, however, the place of the adjective or participle is entirely arbitrary. The following usages may be noticed:

- 1st. The adjectives, primus, medius, ultimus, extremus, summus, infimus, imus, supremus, reliquus, cæterus, denoting the first part, the middle part, &c., are generally put before the substantive; as, summus mons; extremo libro, "the top of the mountain," &c.
- 2d. When the substantive governs another in the genitive, the adjective generally precedes both; as, Duo Platōnis precepta.
- 3d. When the substantive is governed by a preposition, the adjective is frequently put before the substantive; as, Hæc in questione; magna in parte.
- 4th. The adjective is often put before the substantive for the sake of Euphony.

5th. Is, ille, hic, iste, are generally placed before the substantive, and, if used substantively, are placed before the participle.

741.—Rule III. The relative is commonly placed after, and as near as possible to its antecedent.

Obs. 1. The relative is commonly the first word of its own clause, and when it stands for et ille, et hic, et is, or for these pronouns without et, (295, 1st,) it is always first. Sometimes, however, the relative and its clause, precede the antecedent and its clause.

742.—Rule IV. The governing word is generally placed after the word governed; as, Carthaginiensium dux—laudis avidus—Romanorum ditissimus—hostem fudit, &c. Hence,

Obs. 2. The finite verb is commonly the last in its own clause. To this, however, there are many exceptions.

743.—Rule V. Adverbs are generally introduced before the word which they are intended to modify; as, Leviter egrotantes, leniter curant. Cic.

744.—Rule VI. Conjunctions generally introduce the clause to which they belong; as, AT si dures;—SED profecto in omni re fortuna dominatur.

Exc. 1. The enclitics que, ve, ne, are always annexed—the two first, to the latter of the two words which they serve to connect; as, albus atrove. Cic. Boni malique;—and the last, to the subject which the question chiefly regards; thus, loquarne? “shall I speak?” egone loquar? “shall I speak?”

Exc. 2. The conjunctions autem, enim, vero, quoque, quidem, are always placed after the introductory word of the clause, generally in the second place, and sometimes in the third; etiam, igitur, and tamen, more frequently in the second and the third place than in the first.

745.—Rule VII. Words connected in sense, should be as close as possible to each other, and the words of one clause should never be mixed with those of another.

746.—Rule VIII. Circumstances, viz: the cause,—the manner,—the instrument,—the time,—the place, &c., are put before the predicate; as,

Eum ferro occidi;—Ego te ob egregiam virtutem semper amavi.

747.—Rule IX. The proper name should precede the name of rank or profession; as, Cicero orator.

748.—Rule X. The vocative should either introduce the sentence, or be placed among the first words; as, Crede vos, iudices.

749.—Rule XI. When there is an antithesis, the words chiefly opposed to each other, should be as close together as possible; as, Appetis pecuniam, virtutem abjicis.

750.—Rule XII. Dependent clauses, as well as single words, are placed before the principal finite verb, upon which they chiefly depend.

751.—Rule XIII. As a general rule, where the case will admit, it is proper to proceed from shorter to longer words, and from shorter to longer clauses and members of a sentence, as we advance towards the close.

Hence, it will follow, that a sentence should not conclude with a monosyllable, when it can be avoided.

REMARK.—These are to be considered only as general Rules, subject to many modifications and exceptions, according to the taste of different writers. However, as a general guide, with close attention to classical usage and euphony, they may be of use to enable the student to avoid errors on this subject.

752.—§ 152. ANALYSIS OF SENTENCES.

A sentence is such an assemblage of words as makes complete sense as, homo mortālis est, "man is mortal."

All sentences are either simple or compound.

A simple sentence contains only a single affirmation; as, vita brēvis est.

A compound sentence consists of two or more simple sentences connected together; as, bis dat, qui cito dat.

753.—SIMPLE SENTENCES.

A simple sentence or proposition consists of two parts—the subject and the predicate.

The subject is that of which something is affirmed.

The predicate is that which is affirmed of the subject.

The subject is commonly a noun or pronoun, but may be anything, however expressed, about which we can speak or think.

The predicate properly consists of two parts,—the attribute affirmed of the subject, and the copula, by which the affirmation is made; thus, in the sentence, vita brēvis est, the subject is vita; the predicate is brēvis est, of which brēvis is the attribute, and est the copula. In most cases, the attribute and copula are expressed by one word; as, equus currit, "the horse runs" = equus currens est, "the horse is running."

The name of a person or thing addressed forms no part of a sentence.

The predicate may be a noun, a pronoun, an adjective, a preposition with its case, an adverb, a participle, an infinitive mood, or clause of a sentence, as an attribute, connected with the subject by a substantive verb as a copula or it may be a verb which includes in itself both attribute and copula, and is therefore called an attributive verb

754.—THE SUBJECT.

The subject of a proposition is either grammatical or logical.

I. The grammatical subject is the person or thing spoken of, unlimited by other words.

The logical subject is the person or thing spoken of, together with all the words or phrases by which it is limited or defined; thus, in the sentence, vir bonus sui similem querit, the grammatical subject is vir; the logical, vir bonus. Again:

II. The subject of a proposition may be either simple or compound.

A simple subject consists of one subject of thought, either unlimited, as the grammatical, or limited, as the logical subject.

A compound subject consists of two or more simple subjects, to which belongs but one predicate; as, Romulus et Remus fratres erant

755.—MODIFICATIONS OF THE SUBJECT.

A grammatical subject may be modified, limited, or described in various ways; as,—

1. By a noun in apposition; as, Cicero orator factus est consul

2. By a noun in the genitive; as, Ira Dei lenta est.

3. By an adjunct; as, De victoria Cæsaris fama perfertur.

4. By an adjective word, i. e. an adjective, adjective pronoun, or participle; as, Iustitia gaudent viri boni.—Suus cuique erat locus definitus.—Vex missa nescit reverti.

5. By a relative and its clause; as, Vir sapit, qui pauca loquitur

Each grammatical subject may have several modifications; and if it has none, the grammatical and logical subject are the same.

756.—MODIFICATION OF MODIFYING WORDS.

Modifying, or limiting words, may themselves be modified.

1. A noun modifying another may itself be modified in all the ways in which a noun, as a grammatical subject, is modified.

2. An adjective qualifying a noun may itself be modified—

1st. By an adjunct; as, campi ad prælium boni: liber a delictis.

2d. By a noun; as, Major pietate:—ager pedibus.

3d. By an infinitive mood or clause of a sentence, a gerund, or a supine; as, Homo dignus cantari—dignus qui imparet—dignus ut figat pulam in pariete.—Charta utilis scribendo.—Monstrum mirabile dictu.

4th. By an adverb; as, Homo longe dissimilis;—facile princeps.

3. An adverb may be modified—

1st. By another adverb; as, multo magis.

2d. By a substantive in an oblique case; as, convenienter natura optime omnium; proxime castris

757.—The subject of a proposition may be an infinitive mood, with or without a subject; or a clause of a sentence; as, humānum est errāre. Incerta pro certis habere stultissimum est. Nunc opus est, tunc animo valere. Reliquum est, ut officiis certemus inter nos

758.—THE PREDICATE.

I. The Predicate, like the subject, is either grammatical or logical.

The grammatical predicate consists of the attribute and copula, not modified by other words.

The logical predicate is the grammatical, with all the words or phrases that modify it; thus, vir bonus sui similem quærit; the grammatical predicate is quærit; the logical, quærit similem sui.

When the grammatical predicate has no modifying terms, the logical and grammatical are the same.

II. The predicate, like the subject, is either simple or compound.

A simple predicate affirms but one thing of its subject; as, vila brevis est; ignis urit.

A compound predicate consists of two or more simple predicates affirmed of one subject; as, Cæsar venit, vidit, vicit. Probitas laudatur et alget.

759.—MODIFICATIONS OF THE PREDICATE.

The grammatical predicate may be modified or limited in different ways.

I. When the attribute in the predicate is a noun, it is modified—

1. By a noun or pronoun limiting or describing the attribute; as, honor est præmium virtutis. Invidia est supplicium suum.

2. By an adjective or participle limiting the attribute; as, ira furor brevis est.

II. When the grammatical predicate is an attributive verb, it is modified—

1. By a noun or pronoun as its object; as, res amicos invenit. Laus debetur virtuti. Sapiens imperat cupiditatibus. Venter caret auribus.

2. By an adverb; as, bis dat qui cito dat; bene scribit.

3. By an adjunct; as, venit in urbem; ex urbe venit.

4. By an infinitive; as, cupio discere.

5. By a dependent clause; as, poeta dicit iram esse brevem insipientiam.—Constituit ut ludii fierent.

760.—Nouns, pronouns, adjectives, and other words modifying the predicate, may themselves be modified, as similar words are when modifying the subject.

Infinitives and participles modifying the predicate, may themselves be modified in all respects, as the attributive verb is modified.

COMPOUND SENTENCES.

761.—A Compound sentence consists of two or more simple sentences or propositions connected together. The propositions which make up a compound sentence, are called members or clauses.

762.—The propositions or clauses of a compound sentence, are either independent or dependent; in other words, coördinate, or subordinate.

An independent clause is one that makes complete sense by itself.

A dependent clause is one that makes complete sense only in connection with another clause.

The clause on which another depends, is called the leading clause; its subject is the leading subject; and its predicate, the leading predicate.

763.—Clauses of the same kind, whether independent or dependent, are connected by such conjunctions as et, ac, atque, nec, nèque, aut, vel, &c.

764.—Dependent clauses having finite verbs, are connected with their leading clauses in three different ways.

1. By a relative; as, vir sapiens, qui pauca loquitur.

2. By a conjunction; as, loquaces, si sapiat, vitet.

3. By an adverb; as, ubi quid datur otii, illudo chartis; rogabat cur unquam fugisset.

765.—A subordinate clause, consisting of an infinitive with its subject, is joined to a leading clause without a connecting word; as, gaudeo te valere.

ABRIDGED PROPOSITIONS.

766.—A compound sentence is sometimes converted into a simple one, by rejecting the connective, and changing the verb of the dependent clause into a participle. A simple sentence thus formed is called an abridged proposition; as, bello confecto discessit, for quum bellum confectum esset, discessit. Cæsar, hæc locutus, profectus est, for quum Cæsar hæc locutus esset, profectus est.

767.—EXAMPLES OF ANALYSIS.

1. Vita brevis est.

This is a simple sentence, of which

The logical subject, and also the grammatical, is vita.

The logical predicate, and also the grammatical, is brevis est, in which brevis is the attribute, and est the copula.

2. Labuntur anni.

This is a simple sentence, of which

The logical subject, and also the grammatical, is anni.

The logical predicate, and also the grammatical, is labuntur, an attributive verb including both the attribute and copula.

3. Verum decus in virtute positum est.

This is a simple sentence, of which

The logical subject is verum decus.

The logical predicate is, in virtute positum est

The grammatical subject is dēus, qualified by the adjective vērūm.

The grammatical predicate is positum est, modified by the adjunct in virtūte.

4. Romulus et Remus fratres erant.

This is a simple sentence, having a compound subject.

The logical subject is Romulus et Remus, compound, consisting of two subjects connected by et.

The logical predicate is fratres erant.

The grammatical subject and predicate are the same as the logical

5. Probitas laudatur et alget.

This is a simple sentence with a compound predicate.

The logical subject is probitas.

The logical predicate is laudatur et alget, compound, the parts of which are connected by et.

The grammatical subject and predicate are the same as the logical.

6. Videō meliōra probōque; deteriōra sēquor.

This is a compound sentence, consisting of two independent or coordinate clauses in juxtaposition.

The first clause is a simple proposition with a compound predicate, of which

The logical subject is ēgo, understood.

The logical predicate is videō meliōra probōque.

The grammatical subject is the same as the logical.

The grammatical predicate is videō probō que, compound, consisting of two predicates connected by que, both modified by their object, negotia, understood, and that qualified by the adjective meliōra.

The second clause, deteriōra sēquor, is a simple proposition, of which

The logical subject is ēgo, understood.

The logical predicate is deteriōra sēquor.

The grammatical subject is the same as the logical.

The grammatical predicate is sēquor, modified by its object, negotia, understood, qualified by the adjective, deteriōra.

7. Quæ in terrā gignuntur, ad ūsum homīnis omnia creantur.

This is a compound sentence, consisting of one leading, and one independent clause, connected by quæ.

The leading clause, ad ūsum homīnis omnia creantur, is a simple sentence, or proposition, of which

The logical subject is omnia (negotia), restricted by the relative clause quæ in terrā gignuntur.

The logical predicate is, ad ūsum homīnis creantur.

The grammatical subject is negotia understood, qualified by the adjective omnia, and restricted by the relative clause.

The grammatical predicate is creantur, modified by the adjunct ad usum, and that modified by hominis.

The dependent clause is quæ in terrâ gignuntur, of which

The logical subject is the quæ, which, being a relative, connects the dependent with the leading clause. (125.)

The logical predicate is, in terrâ gignuntur.

The grammatical subject is quæ, the same as the logical.

The grammatical predicate is gignuntur, modified by the adjunct in terrâ.

CONSTRUING.

768.—In Latin and English, the general arrangement of a sentence is the same, i. e. the sentence commonly begins with the subject and ends with the predicate. But the order of the words in each of these parts is usually so different in Latin, from what it is in English, that one of the first difficulties a beginner has to encounter with a Latin sentence, is to know how "to take it in," or to arrange it in the order of the English. This is technically called construing or giving the order. To assist in this, some advantage may be found by carefully attending to the following

DIRECTIONS FOR BEGINNERS.

769.—DIRECTION 1. As all the other parts of a sentence depend upon the two leading parts, namely, the subject or NOMINATIVE, and the predicate or VERB; the first thing to be done with every sentence, is to find out these. In order to this,

First. Look for the leading verb, which is always in the present, imperfect, perfect, pluperfect, or future, of the indicative, or in the imperative mood,* and usually at or near the end of the sentence.

Second. Having found the verb, observe its number and person. This will aid in finding its nominative, which is commonly a noun or pronoun in the same number and person with the verb, commonly before it, and near the beginning of the sentence, though not always so, 739, R. I. with exceptions.

770.—DIRECTION 2. Having thus found the nominative and verb, and ascertained their meaning, the sentence may be resolved from the Latin into the English order, as follows:

1st. Take the Vocative, Ex iting, Introductory, or connecting words, if there are any.

2d. The NOMINATIVE.

3d. Words limiting or explaining it, i. e. words agreeing with it, or governed by it, or by one another, where they are found, till you come to the verb.

4th. The VERB.

5th. Words limiting or explaining it, i. e. words which modify it, are governed by it, or depend upon it. 759, II.

* All the other parts of the verb are generally used in subordinate clauses. So, also, is the pluperfect indicative. In oblique discourse, the leading verb is in the infinitive. 652.

6th. Supply everywhere the words understood.

7th. If the sentence be compound, take the parts of it severally as they depend one upon another, proceeding with each of them as above.

771.—DIRECTION 3. In arranging the words for translation, in the subordinate parts of a sentence, observe the following

772.—RULES FOR CONSTRUING.

I. An oblique case, or the infinitive mood, is put after the word that governs it.

Exc. The relative and interrogative are usually put before the governing word, unless that be a preposition; if it is, then after it.

II. An adjective, if no other word depend upon it, or be coupled with it, is put before its substantive; but if another word depend upon it, or be governed by it, it is usually placed after it.

III. The participle is usually construed after its substantive, or the word with which it agrees.

IV. The relative and its clause should, if possible, come immediately after the antecedent.

V. When a question is asked, the nominative comes after the verb (in English, between the auxiliary and the verb). Interrogative words, however, such as quis, quibus, quantus, ūter, &c., come before the verb.

VI. After a transitive active verb, look for an accusative;—and after a preposition, for an accusative or ablative; and arrange the words accordingly.

VII. Words in apposition must be construed as near together as possible.

VIII. Adverbs, adverbial phrases, prepositions with their cases, circumstances of time, place, cause, manner, instrument, &c., should be placed, in general, after the words which they modify. The case absolute commonly before them, and often first in the sentence.

IX. The words of different clauses must not be mixed together, but each clause translated by itself, in its order, according to its connection with, or dependence upon, those to which it is related.

X. Conjunctions are to be placed before the last of two words, or sentences connected.

773.—Examples of Resolution.

First. Et enim omnes artes, quæ ad humanitatem pertinent, habent quoddam commūne vincūlum, et quæsi cognatiōne quædam inter se continentur. Cic.

1. In looking over this sentence, according to Direction first, we find the first leading verb to be habent, which must have a plural nominative. This leads us at once to artes, as the nominative. The nominative and verb being thus found on which the other parts depend, then

2. By direction 2, the general arrangement will be—

- 1 Connective word, et̄nim.
2. NOMINATIVE, artes.
3. Words limiting and explaining, omnes, quæ ad humanitatem pertinent.
4. The VERB, habent.
5. Words governed by it, quoddam commūne vincūlum.

3. Then by the rules in direction 3, the words in each of these divisions will be arranged thus: 1. Et̄nim; 2. and 3. omnes artes, (R. II.) quæ (R. III.) pertinent ad humanitatem, (R. VIII.) 4. hābent, 5. quoddam commūne vincūlum, (R. II.)

By proceeding in the same manner with the next clause, the whole will then stand thus:

Et̄nim omnes artes, quæ pertinent ad humanitatem, hābent quoddam commūne vincūlum, et continentur inter se quāsi quādam cognatiōe;— and may be translated as follows:

“For all the arts which pertain to liberal knowledge (civilization) have a certain common bond, and are connected together as if by a certain affinity between them.”

The pupil will now see, that in the first clause, or simple sentence, the grammatical subject is artes; the logical—omnes artes quæ ad humanitatem pertinent.—The grammatical predicate is hābent; the logical—hābent quoddam commūne vincūlum (758-1); and so with the next clause.

In like manner proceed with every new simple sentence, or with every succeeding clause of a compound sentence.

774.—§ 153. ETYMOLOGICAL AND SYNTACTICAL PARSING.

Having arranged and translated a sentence, the next thing is to parse it, in doing which, every word should be fully described by its accidents, traced to its primitive, if a derivative,—analyzed into its parts if compound, and its concord or government pointed out. The following scheme, with each part of speech, may be useful to the beginner.

1. NOUN.—1. Kind; 2. Gender; 3. Declension; 4. Decline; 5. Derived from (if derived); 6. It is found in—case; 7. Number; 8. is the nominative to—, or the predicate nominative after—(if the nominative); 9. is governed by—(if governed), 9. Rule.

2. ADJECTIVE.—1. Declension; 2. Decline it; 3. Compare it (if compared); 4. It is found in—case; 5. Number; 6. Gender; 7. agrees with—; 8. Rule.

3. PRONOUN.—1. Kind (i. e. personal, relative or adjective,); 2. Decline it; then—

If personal, 3. Person; 4. found in—case; 5. Number; 6. Reason of the case; 7. Rule; 8. stands for—

If a Relative pronoun, 3. found in—case; 4. Number; 5. Reason of the case; 6. Rule; 7. Its antecedent; 8. Rule.

If an Adjective pronoun; then, 3. Kind (i. e. possessive, indefinite, demonstrative, &c.), 4. It is found in—case; 5. Number; 6. Gender. 7. Agrees with; 8. Rule.

4. VERB.—1. Kind, viz: Transitive, or Intransitive. 2. Conjugation (or Irregular, if it is so); 3. Conjugate it; 4. Derived from (if derived); 5. Compounded of (if compounded); 6. It is found in—tense; 7. Mood; 8. Voice; 9. Person; 10. Number; 11. agrees with—as its subject. 12. Rule 13. give a Synopsis.

5. ADVERB.—1. Derived from (if derived); 2. Compounded of (if compounded); 3. Compared (if compared); 4. It modifies—; 5. Rule.

6. PREPOSITION.—1. Governs—case; 2. Rule; 3. It points out the relation between—and—.

7. INTERJECTION.—1. Kind; 2. Governs, or is put with the—case; 3. Rule.

8. CONJUNCTION.—1. Kind; 2. Connects—; 3. Rule.

775.—Example of Parsing by the foregoing Scheme.

The sentence construed (773) may serve as an example of Etymological and Syntactical parsing, and for this purpose we arrange it in the order of translation, as above.

“Et enim omnes artes, quæ pertinent ad humanitatem, habent quoddam commune vinculum, et continentur inter se quasi quâdam cognatione.”

Et enim . Conjunction, casual, connecting the following sentence with the preceding, as containing the cause or reason of what is there stated.

omnes . . . An adjective, third declension, omnis, -is, -e, &c.; not compared, because incapable of increase,—in the nominative, plural, feminine, and agrees with artes, (Rule,) “An adjective agrees,” &c.

artes . . . A noun (or substantive), feminine, third declension, ars.* artis, &c.—in the nominative plural,—the nominative to, (or subject ei;) habent.

quæ . . . Relative pronoun,—in the nominative plural, feminine, nominative to pertinent, agrees with its antecedent artes, Rule III, and connects its clause with artes which it restricts.

pertinent, Verb intransitive, second conjugation, pertinẽo, -ẽre, -ui, perentum; compounded of per, and tenẽo,—in the present indicative, active, third person plural, and agrees with quæ. Rule IV “A verb agrees,” &c.

* As all nouns are common except proper nouns; to save time in parsing, this may always be taken for granted, mentioning, however, when the noun is proper. For the same reason, the words “gender,” “number,” “mood,” “tense,” may be omitted, these being sufficiently indicated by the words masculine, singular, indicative, &c.

- ad* . . . . Preposition, governs the accusative, and shows the relation between pertinent and humanitatem.
- humanitatem*, Noun, feminine, third declension, humanitas,—atis, &c. Abstract, derived from humānus (33-2), in the accusative, singular, governed by ad. Rule XLVIII. "Twenty-eight prepositions," &c.
- hābent*, Verb transitive, second conjugation, habeo, -ere, -ui, -itum,—in the present indicative active, third person plural—and agrees with artes. Rule IV. "A verb agrees," &c. Synopsis.
- quādam*, Indefinite adjective pronoun, quādam, quādam, &c., compounded of quis and the syllable dam,—in the accusative, singular, neuter, and agrees with vinculum. Rule II. "An adjective agrees," &c.
- vinculum*, Noun, neuter, second declension, vinculum, -i. &c.—in the accusative singular, governed by hābent. Rule XX. "A transitive verb in the active voice," &c.
- et*, . . . . . A conjunction, copulative, connecting continentur with hābent, which are consequently in the same construction (721), and have the same nominative, artes.
- continentur*, A verb transitive, second conjugation; contineo, continēre, continui, contentum; compounded of con and teneo,—in the present indicative passive, third person plural, and agrees with artes. Rule IV. "A verb agrees," &c. Synopsis.
- inter*, . . . A preposition which governs the accusative, and here points out the relation of reciprocity between the individuals represented by se. 118-5.
- se*, . . . Substantive pronoun, third person, in the accusative plural, feminine, governed by inter. Rule XLVIII. "Twenty-eight prepositions," &c., refers to artes, the subject of continentur, and is here taken reciprocally. 118-5.
- quāsi*, . . An adverb of manner modifying continentur. Rule XLV. "Adverbs are joined," &c.
- quādam*, Indefinite adjective pronoun, quādam, quādam, &c., compounded of quis and the syllable dam,—in the ablative singular, and agrees with cognatiōne. Rule II. "An adjective agrees," &c.
- cognatiōne*, A noun, feminine, third declension, cognatio, -ōnis, &c., from cognātus, "related by birth," (from con and nascor)—in the ablative of manner, relating to continentur inter se. Rule XXXV. "The cause, manner," &c.

Note.—In this way, by stating everything respecting a word in the shortest manner, and without waiting to be questioned, parsing may be done rapidly, and much time saved; and then such questions may be put as will draw attention to anything not included in the above scheme. By a little attention, on the part of the teacher, in leading the pupil to understand and apply the preceding rules for arranging a sentence in the order of translation, he will save much time and labor to himself afterwards and teach the learner to form the important habit of reasoning out a difficult sentence, and so, by repeated victories, to gain confidence in his own powers.

PART FOURTH.

PROSODY.

776.—PROSODY, in its common acceptation, treats of the quantity of syllables, and the construction of verses; in other words, of Quantity and Metre.

§ 154. OF QUANTITY.

777.—QUANTITY means the relative length of time taken up in pronouncing a syllable.

1. In respect of quantity, every syllable is either long or short. When a syllable is sometimes long, and sometimes short, it is said to be common.

2. The quantity of syllables is determined by certain established rules; or, when no rule applies,—by the authority of the poets.

3. The rules of quantity are either general or special; the former apply alike to all the syllables of a word; the latter, to particular syllables.

§ 155. GENERAL RULES.

778.—RULE 1. A vowel before another vowel is short; as, dēus, alius, nihil.

779.—EXPLANATION.—This rule applies to a vowel before another vowel or diphthong in a different syllable, whether it be in the same, or in a different word. The letter h, in verse, being considered as only a breathing is wholly disregarded; hence, such words as, nihil, mihi, dhe, &c., come under this rule. A diphthong before a vowel does not come under this rule, except as in Rule V., Exc. 1.

780.—EXCEPTIONS.

1. A is long in āer, Cāi, anlāi, terrāi, and the like.
  2. E is long after i in the genitive and dative of the fifth declension as, speciīi; not after i, it is common.
- E* is long in ēher, Pompēz.

3 I not before er, is long in fo; as, fīo, fīebam. Also in alius, the genitive of alius.

I is common in Diāna (Dīāna or Diāna), and genitives in ius; but is short in alterius. Genitives in ius, in prose, have i long.

4. O is common in Ohe.

5. Greek words vary. As a general rule, when the vowel before another represents a long vowel or diphthong in the Greek word, it is long; other wise it is short.

781.—RULE II. A vowel before two consonants, or a double consonant, is long by position; as,

arma, fallo, axis, gaza, mājor.

782.—EXPLANATION.—When a final syllable is long by another rule, this rule does not apply; the double consonants under this rule are, the same consonant doubled; as, ll, tt, rr, &c., and the letters, j, x, and z, equivalent to dç, ks, ds.

783.—EXCEPTIONS.

1. A short vowel in the end of a word, before two consonants in the next, is common; before sc, sp, sq, st, it is usually long; before a double consonant, it is short.

2. A vowel before j, is short in compounds of jūgum; as, bijūgus.

784.—RULE III. A vowel before a mute and a liquid, is common; as, volūcris, or volūcris.

785.—EXPLANATION.—Under this rule, the vowel must be naturally short, and the mute must come before the liquid, and be in the same syllable with it. But if the vowel is naturally long, it remains so; as, mātris (from μήτηρ), salūbris, &c. If the mute and the liquid are in different syllables, the vowel preceding is long by position; as, ābluo, ōbruo. In Latin words, the liquids are l and r only. In Greek words, l, r, m, n.

786.—Obs. 1. This rule is properly an exception to Rule II. A short vowel in the end of a word, is seldom affected by a mute and a liquid in the next.

787.—RULE IV. A contracted syllable is always long; as, Nūl, for nihil; mī, for mihī; alius, for alius; īl, for iit; sōdes, for sīudes; nōlo, for non vōlo; bīgæ, for bijūgæ; scīlicet, for scīre licet, &c.

788.—RULE V. A diphthong is long; as, Cēsar, Aūrum, Fībūa.

789.—EXCEPTIONS.

1. Præ, in composition, before a vowel, is commonly short; as, præris, præustus, &c.

2. Also, æ is sometimes short in the end of a word, when the next begins with a vowel; as, Insulæ Ionio, &c.

Note.—U, after q and g, does not form a diphthong with a vowel following it, but has a force similar to the English w; as, lingua, queror &c., pronounced lingwa, kweror. 8-2.

SPECIAL RULES.

§ 156. FIRST AND MIDDLE SYLLABLES.

790.—RULE VI. Preterites of two syllables lengthen the former; as, vēni, vīdi, vīci.

791.—Exc. 1. Those which are short by Rule I; as, rūi, lūi, &c

Exc. 2. Seven have the first syllable short; viz: bībi, dēdi, fēdi (from fr̄idē), scīdi, stēti, stīti, and tūli.

792.—RULE VII. Preterites which double the first syllable, shorten the first and second; as, cēcīdi, tētīgi, pēpūli, &c., from cādo, tango, pello.

Exc. Cēcīdi, from cādo; and pepēdi, have the second long.

793.—RULE VIII. Supines of two syllables lengthen the former; as, cāsum, mōtum, vīsum, from cādo, mōveo, vīdeo.

794.—Exc. Ten have the first syllable short; viz: cītum (from ciēo), dātum, itum, litum,—quītum, rātum, rūtum, sātum,—sītum, and stātum.

795.—RULE IX. In polysyllables, a, e, and u, are long before tum, of the Supine; as, amātum, delētum, indūtum.

796.—RULE X. In polysyllables, i is short before tum, of the Supine; as, monūtum. I is long in divīsum.

797.—Exc. But Supines in itum, from preterites in ivi, have i long; as, cupīvi, cupītum; audīvi, audītum, &c.

798.—Obs. Recensēo has recensītum, from ni in the preterite, because originally from censio, censīvi. Eo and its compounds have i short; as, itum, redītum, &c. Except ambio, ambītum, fourth conjugation.

799.—RULE XI. Participles in rus have u long in the penult—as, amatūrus, &c.

800.—§ 157. INCREMENT OF NOUNS.

1. A noun is said to increase, when any of its cases has more syllables than the nominative singular; as, rex, regis; sermo, sermōnis.

2. With only few exceptions, nouns have but one increase in the singular number: iter, supellex, and compounds of cāput ending in ps, have two; as, itinēris, supellectilis, prācipitis, from prāceps.

3. The increment, or increasing syllable, to which the following rules apply, is never the last syllable, but the one preceding it, if there is only one increment; or the two preceding it, if there are two.

4. The rules for the increase of nouns, apply to adjectives and participles.

5. Nouns of the fourth declension have no increment in the singular. Nouns of the first and fifth, have none but what come under Rule I. (778).

and its exceptions. (780.) In the second declension, those only increase in the singular which end in r, according to the following—

801.—RULE. The increment of the second declension is short; as—

Puëri, vïri, satÿri, &c., from puer, vir, sätur.

Exc. But Iber and Celtiber, have Ibëri and Celtibëri.

INCREMENTS OF THE THIRD DECLENSION.

802.—XII. Increments of the third declension, have a and o long; e, i, and u, short; as—

Pietätis, honöris, muliëris, lapïdis, murmuris.

Rules with Exceptions.

A.

803.—1. Increments in a, of the third declension, are long.

Exc. 1st. The increment in a, from masculines in al and ar is short, also from par and its compounds;—from anas, mas, vas (vädis), baccar, hepar, jubar, lar, nectar, and sal.

Exc. 2d. The increment in a, from nouns in s, with a consonant before it, is short; as, Arabs, Arabis.

Exc. 3d. The increment in a, from Greek nouns in a, -ätis; and as, -ädis, is short; as, poëma, poemätis; lampas, lampädis.

Exc. 4th. Also the following in ax; viz: abax, anthrax, Atax, Atrax, climax, colax, corax, dropax, fax, harpax, panax, phylax, smilax, and styrax, increase with ä short.

O.

804.—2. Increments in o, of the third declension, are long.

Exc. 1st. The increment in o, from neuter nouns is short; as, marmor, marmöris; corpus, corpöris. But os, öris, and neuter comparatives increase in ö long; ador has adöris, or adöris.

Exc. 2d. The increment in o, from nouns in s with a consonant before it, is short; as, scrobs, scrobis; inops, indöpis. But Cercops, Cyclops, and Hydrops, have ö long.

Exc. 3d. Generally from Gentile and Greek nouns in o and on, the increment is short; as, Macëdo, Macedönis; but some are long, and some are common.

Exc. 4th. Greek nouns in or, shorten the increment; as, Hector—öris.

Exc. 5th. Greek nouns in pus (πούς); as, tripus, Polypus; also, arbor mëmor, bos, compos, imps, and lepupus, have o short in the increment; as, tripus, tripödis, &c.

E.

805.—3. Increments in e, of the third declension, are short.

Exc. 1st. The increment in -ēnis from en and o is long; as, Siren, Sirēnis; Anio, Aniēnis.

Exc. 2d. The increment in e is long, from hæres, locuples, mansues, merces, and quies. Also, from Iber and ver—from lex, rex, and verves—plebs, seps, and halec.

Exc. 3d. Greek nouns in er and es increase e long; as, crater, cratēris; magnes, maguētis.

I.

806.—4. Increments in i, of the third declension, are short.

Exc. 1st. Verbals in trix, and adjectives in ix, have i long; as victrix, victricis; felix, felicis.

Also, cervix, eicatrix, cornix, coturnix, lodix, matrix, perdix, phanix, radix, and vibex.

Exc. 2d. Greek nouns in is and in, with the genitive in inis, increase long; as, Salamis, Salamīnis.

Exc. 3d. Dis, glis, and his, with Nesis, Quiris, and Samnis, increase long.

U.

807.—5. Increments in u, of the third declension, are short.

Exc. 1st. Genitives in ūdis, ūris, and ūtis, from nominatives in us, have the increase long; as, palus, palūdis, &c. But Ligus, intercus and pecus, increase with ū short.

Exc. 2d. Fur, frux, lux, and Pollux, have ū long.

Y.

808.—6. Increments in y are short.

Exc. Greek nouns, with the genitive in ynis, have the increase long. Also, Bombyx, Ceyx, and gryps, which increase long.

INCREMENTS OF THE PLURAL NUMBER.

809.—A noun in the plural number, is said to increase, when it has more syllables in any case, than in the nominative plural.

810.—An increment in the plural, can occur only in the genitive, dative, and ablative; and in these, it is the syllable next to the last. When any of these cases has no more syllables than the nominative, it has no plural increment. Thus, sermōnum, puēris, capitum, have no plural increase, because they have no more syllables than sermōnes, puēri, capita; still, they all have the increment of the singular, because they have more syllables than sermo, puer, and caput. But sermōnibus, puērōrum, and capitibus, have both the singular and plural increment.

811.—RULE XIII. Plural increments in a, e, and o, are long; in i and u, short; as,

	Musārum ,	rērum ,	virōrum ,	partibus ,	lacūbus .
from	Musæ ,	res ,	viri ,	partes ,	lacus .

§12.—EXPLANATION.—All the increments of the singular remain in the plural, and to these the plural increment is added. The rule here given, applies to the plural increments only, and not to the increments of the singular in the plural. Thus, in itinēribus from iter, the second and third syllables are increments of the singular, to be found in itinēris; the fourth is the plural increment, which comes under this rule.

§ 158. INCREMENT OF VERBS.

§13.—A verb is said to increase when it has more syllables in any part, than in the second person singular, of the present indicative, active; as, amas, amātis, amābātis, &c.—A verb in the active voice may have three increments, and in the passive four. If there is but one increment, it is the syllable next the last. If there are two, the second increment is the syllable next the last, and the first the syllable preceding that, &c.; thus.

1                    1 2                    1 2 3
ā-mas,—am-ā-mus,—am-ā-bā-mus,—am-āv-ēr-ā-mus, &c.

The increments of deponent verbs, are determined in the same manner as if they had an active form.

§14.—RULE XIV. In the increments of verbs, a, e, and o are long; i and u, short; as,

• Amārēmus, amātōte; legimus, possūmus.

§15.—Exceptions in A.

1. The first increment of do is short: as, dāmus, dābāmus, dārēmus, &c.

Exceptions in E.

2. E is short before ram, rim, and ro.

But when contracted by syncope, it is long; as, fērarn, for fēvēram.

3. In the third conjugation, e is short before r in the first increase of the present and imperfect; as,

Legere, legērem, Act. Legērēris, legērēre, legere, Pass.

4. In the first and second conjugations, e is short in—bēris and—bēre.

Note.—erunt and ere in the perfect come under the general rule; some times they are shortened. 867-5.

Exceptions in I.

5. In preterite tenses, i is long before v; as—

Audi, audivēram, audivērim, &c.

6. In the first increase of the fourth conjugation, except imus of the perfect, i not before a vowel is always long; as, Pres. venimus; Perf. venimus. So, also, ibam, and ibo, from eo.

7. I is long in simus, silis, velimus, velitis; and their compounds; as, possimus, nohimus, &c.

8. In rimus and ritis of the future perfect indicative, and perfect subjunctive, i is common; as,

Dixerimus, or dixerimus; videritis or videritis.

Note.—U long before turn of the supine comes under Rules VIII and IX. It is long also in the penult of the perfect participle by the same rules, because the perfect participle is always derived from the supine.

§ 159. QUANTITY OF PENULT SYLLABLES.

§16.—For the quantity of penult syllables, no definite rule can be given which is not rendered nearly useless by the number of exceptions occurring under it. The following observations are usually given rather as a general guide, than certain rules; and they might be easily extended, were it of any practical advantage.

1. Patronymies in IDES or ADES usually shorten the penult; as,

Priamides, Atlantiades, &c. Unless they come from nouns in eus; as, Pelides, Tyrides, &c.

2. Patronymies, and similar words, in AIS, EIS, ITIS, OIS, OTIS, JNE, and ONE commonly lengthen the penult; as,

Achais, Ptolemais, Chryseis, Aeneis, Memphitis, Latöis, Icarotis, Nerine, Acrisioe. Except Thebais, and Phocais short; and Nereis, which is common.—Nereis or Nereis.

3. Adjectives in ACUS, ICUS, IDUS, and IMUS, for the most part shorten the penult; as,

Aegyptiacus, academicus, lepidus, legimus: also superlatives; as, fortissimus, &c. Except opacus, amicus, apricus, puclicus, mendicus, anticus, posticus, fidus, infidus (from fido) bimus, quadrinus, patrimus, matrimus, optimus; and the two superlatives, imus, and primus: but perfidus, fraus per and fides, has the penult short.

4. Adjectives in ALIS, ANUS, ARUS, IVUS, ORUS, OSUS, lengthen the penult; as,

Dotalis, urbanus, avarus, aestivus, decorus, arcuosus. Except barbarus, viparus.

5. Verbal adjectives in ILIS shorten the penult, as agilis facilis, &c. But derivatives from nouns usually lengthen it; as,

Anilis, civilis, herilis, &c. To these add exilis, subtilis; and names of months, Aprilis, Quintilis, Sextilis: Except humilis, parilis; and also similis. But all adjectives in atilis, are short; as, versatilis, volatilis, umbratilis, plicatilis, fluviatilis; saxatilis, &c.

6. Adjectives in INUS, derived from words denoting inanimate things, as plants, stones, &c., also from adverbs of time, commonly shorten the penult; as,

Amaracinus, crocinus, cedrinus, faginus, oleaginus; adamantinus, crystallinus, crastinus, pristinus, perendinus, carinus, annotinus, &c.

Other adjectives in INUS are long; as,

Agninus, caninus, leporinus, binus, trinus, quinus, austrinus, clandestinus, Latinus, marinus, supinus, vespertinus, &c.

7. Diminutives in OLUS, OLA, OLUM; and ULUS, ULA, ULUM, always shorten the penult; as,

Urceolus, filiola, musceolum; lectulus, ratiunculula, coreulum, &c.

8. Adverbs in TIM lengthen the penult; as,

Oppidatim, viritum, tributum. Except affatim, perpetim, and statim.

9. Desideratives in URIO shorten the antepenult, which, in the second and third persons, is the penult; as,

Esurio, esuris, esurit. But other verbs in urio lengthen that syllable; as, ligurio, liguris; scaturio, scaturis, &c.

817.—PENULT OF PROPER NAMES

1. The following proper names lengthen the penult: Abdëra, Abÿdus Adönis, Æsöpus, Ætöulus, Ahäla, Alaricus, Alcides, Amyclæ, Andronicus, Anöbis, Archimedes, Ariaräthes, Ariobarzanes, Aristides, Aristobulus, Aristogiton, Arpinum, Artabanus; Brachmanes. Basiris, Bathrotus; Cethëgus, Chalcëdon, Cleobulus, Cyrène, Cythëra, Cures; Darici, Demonius. Diomedes. Diöres, Dioscöri; Ebüdes, Eriphyle, Eubulus, Euclides, Euphrates, Eumedes, Euripus, Euxinus; Garganius, Gætulus, Gramicus; Heliogabalus, Henricus, Heraclides, Heraclitus, Hippönax, Hispanus; Irène. Latöna, Leucäta, Lugdunum, Lycöras; Mandäne, Mausölus, Maximinus, Meleäger, Messäla, Messäna, Milëtus; Nasica, Nicänor, Nicetas; Pælynus, Pindöra, Pelöris & -us, Pharsälus, Phoenice, Polites, Polyelëtus, Polynices, Priäpus; Sardanapälus, Sarpëdon, Seräpis, Sinöpe, Stratonice, Suffetes; Tigranes, Thessalonica; Veröna, Veronica.

2. The following are short: Anäthus, Amphipölis, Anabäsia, Antieÿra, Antigonus, & -ne, Antiochus, Antiochia, Antiochia, Antipas, Antipater, Antiphanes, Antiphates, Antiphila, Antiphon, Anÿtus, Apulus, Arcopagus, Arimimum, Armenus, Athësis, Attälus, Attica; Bitunx, Bructeri; Caläber, Callicrates, Callistratus, Candäce, Cantäber, Carneades, Cheilus, Chrysobolmus, Cleombrotus, Cleomenes, Corycös, Constantinopölis, Craterus, Cratylus, Creuëra, Crustumëri, Cybèle, Cyclades, Cyzeus; Dalmanäta, Dandales, Dardänus, Dejóres, Dejólarus, Democritus, Demiphö, Didymus, Dio gēnes, Drepānum, Dumnōrix; Empedōcles, Ephēsus, Evergētes, Eumēnes, Eurymlēlon, Euripylus; Fucinus; Geryōnes, Gyārus; Hecyra, Helipōlia, Hermiōie, Herodōtus, Hesiodus, Hesione, Hippocrātes, Hippotāmos, Hypāta, Hypānis; Icārus, Ictas, Illyris, Iphitus, Isnārus, Ithāca; Laodice, Laomēdon, Lampācius, Lamyrus, Lapithæ, Lucretilis, Libānus, Lipāre, or -a, Lyimāchus, Longimānus; Marāthon, Marnālus, Marmarica, Massagētæ, Matrōna, Megāra, Melitus, & -tu, Metropōlis, Mutina, Micōnus; Neōcles, Neritos, Noricum; Omphāle; Patāra, Pegāsus, Pharnāces, Pisisrātus, Polydāmus; Polyxēna, Porsēna, or Porsenna, Praxitēles, Putcōli, Pylādes, Pythagōras; Sarmātæ, Sarsina, Semēle, Semirāmis, Sequāni, & -a, Sisylus, Sicōris, Socrātes, Sōlōma, Sotādes, Spartācus, Sporādes, Strongyla, Stymphālus, Sylāris; Taygētus, Telegōnus, Telemāchus, Tenēdos, Tarrāco, Theopānus, Theophilus, Tomyris; Urbicus; Venētī, Vologēsus, Volūsus; Xenocrātes; Zoilus, Zopyrus.

5. The penult of several words is doubtful; thus, Batavi. LUCAN. Batavi. JUV. and MART. Fortuitus. HOR. Fortuitus. MARTIAL. Some make fortuitus of three syllables, but it may be shortened like gratuitus. STAT. Patrimus, matrimus, prastolor, &c., are by some lengthened, and by some shortened; but for their quantity there is no certain authority.

§ 160. FINAL SYLLABLES.

A final.

§18.—RULE XV. A, in the end of a word, declined by cases, is short; as, Musā, templā, &c.

Exc. 1. The ablative of the first declension is long; as, Musā, &c.

Exc. 2. The vocative of Greek nouns in as, is long; as, O Ænēa, O Pallā.

§19.—RULE XVI. A, in the end of a word not declined by cases, is long; as, amā, frustrā, ergā, intrā, &c.

§20.—Exc. Itā, quā, ejā, postē, putā (adv.), are short; sometimes, also, the prepositions, contrā and ultrā; and the compounds of ginta, as trigintā, &c. But, contrā and ultrā, as adverbs, are always long.

E final.

§21.—RULE XVII. E in the end of a word is short; as, natē, sedilē, ipsē, possē, nempē, antē.

§22.—Special Rules and Exceptions.

RULE 1. Monosyllables in e are long; as, mē, tē, sē.

Exc. The enclitics quē, vē, nē, are short; also, ptē, cē, tē.

RULE 2. Nouns of the first and fifth declensions have final e long; as, Calliōnē, Anchisē, diē, &c.

Also Greek neuter plurals; as, Cetī, melē, Tempē, &c.

RULE 3. Verbs of the second conjugation have e long in the second person singular of the imperative active, as, docē, nanē, &c. But cave, vale, and vide, are sometimes short.

RULE 4. Adverbs, from adjectives of the first and second declensions, have final e long; as, placidē, pulchrē, valdē (contracted for validē). So, also, fermē, ferē, and ohē.

Exc. But, benē, malē, infernē, and supernē, are short.

I final.

823.—RULE XVIII. I final is long; as, domīnī, filī, &c.

Exc. 1. I final is common in mihī, tibi, sibi; also in ibi, ubi, nisi, quasi. Sometimes uti, and cui as a dissyllable, have i short. Sicutī, sicubī, and necubī, are always short.

Exc. 2. I final is short in Greek vocatives and datives; as, Alexī, Daphnī; Palladī, Troasī, and Troasin.

O final.

824.—RULE XIX. O final is common; as, Virgo, āmo, quando.

Exc. 1. Monosyllables in o are long; as, O, dō, stō, prō.

Exc. 2. The dative and ablative in o are long; as, librō, dominō. Also Greek nouns in o; as, Didō, Sapphō.

Exc. 3. Ablatives used as adverbs have o long; as, certō, falsō, paulō; quō, eō, and their compounds; illō, idcirco, citrō, retrō, ultrō, ergō (for the sake of).

Exc. 4. Egō, sciō, the defective verb cedō; also homō, citō, illico, immō, duō, ambō, modō, and its compounds; quomōdō, dummōdō, postmōdō, are almost always short.

Exc. 5. In Virgil, the gerund in do is long; in other poets, mostly short.

U, and Y, final.

825.—RULE XX. U final is long; Y final is short; as, vultū, Molj.

B, D, L, M, R, T, final.

826.—RULE XXI. B, D, L, R, and T, in the end of a word, are short; as, āb, apūd, semēl, consul, patēr, capūt.

827.—EXPLANATION.—This rule does not apply, if any of these final letters are preceded by a diphthong, or if the syllable is contracted, or made long by position: as, aut, abit for abiit, amant.

828.—EXCEPTIONS.

Exc. 1. Sal, sol, and nil are long.

Exc. 2. Aër and æthër, have the final syllable long. Also nouns in er, which have ëris in the genitive; as, Cratër, Ibër, &c.

Exc. 3. Far, lar, Nar, par, cur, and fur, are long.

Exc. 4. The Hebrew names Jöb, Daniël, are long; but David and Begme are common.

829.—Obs. M final anciently made the preceding vowel short; as Militüm octo. By later poets it is usually cut off, by Echthipsis (§ 166-2.), when the next word begins with a vowel. When not so cut off, it is short.

C, N, final.

830.—RULE XXII. C and N in the end of a word are long, as, ac, sic, illuc, en, non, &c.

Exc. 1. Nec and donec are short; hic and fac, common.

Exc. 2. Forsitan, in, forsän, tamèn, ün, vidèn, are short.

Exc. 3. En having nis in the genitive is short; as, carmèn, carmënis. Also Greek nouns in an, on, in, yn, originally short, and the dative plural in sin, have the final syllable short; as, Ilion, Eratïon, Maiän, Alexin, chelijñ, Troasïn, &c.

As, Es, Os, final.

831.—RULE XXIII. As, es, os, in the end of a word are long; as, mäs, quiës, bonës.

Exc. 1. As is short in anäs, and Greek nouns which have adis or ados in the genitive; as, Arcäs, lampäs, &c.

Exc. 2. Es is short, 1st, in nouns and adjectives which increase short in the genitive; as, hospës, linës, hebës. But Cerës, pariës, ariës, abiës, and pës, with its compounds, are long. 2d. Es from sum, and penës are short. 3d. Greek neuters in es, and nominatives and vocatives of the third declension which increase in the genitive otherwise than in cos, have es short; as Arcadës, Troës, &c.

Exc. 3. Os is short in compös, impös, ðs (ossis),—in Greek words of the second declension, and in neuters and genitives of the third; as, Ilïös, Tyrös chaös, epös, Palladös, &c.

Is, Us, Ys, final.

832.—RULE XXIV. Is, us, and ys, in the end of a word are short; as, Turrïs, legïs, legimüs, Capÿs.

Exc. 1. Plural cases in is and us are long; but the dative and ablative in bus are short.

Exc. 2. Nouns in is with the genitive in üs, ïnis, or entis are long; as, Samnïs, Salamïs, Simoïs.

Exc. 3. Is is long in glis, vis, gratts, forts. And in the second person singular, present indicative, active, of the fourth conjugation; as, audis. Also in fīs, īs, sīs, vīs, velīs, and their compounds possīs, quamvīs, malīs, nolīs, &c.

Exc. 4. Monosyllables in us are long; as, grūs, sūs, &c.

Also those which have ūris, ūdis, ūtis, untis, or ōdis, in the genitive; as tellūs, incūs, virtūs, Amathūs, tripūs. To these add Greek genitives in us; as, Didūs, Sapphūs, &c.

Exc. 5. Tethys is sometimes long, likewise nouns in ys, which have also yx in the nominative: as, Phorcȳs or Phorcȳn.

§ 161. QUANTITY OF DERIVATIVES AND COMPOUNDS.

833.—RULE XXV. Derivatives follow the quantity of their primitives; as,

Amicus,	from āmo.	Decōro,	from decus, -ōris
Auctiōnor,	auctio, -ōnis.	Exūlo,	exul, -ūlis
Auctōro,	auctor, -ōris.	Pāvidus,	pāveo.
Auditor,	auditum.	Quirīto,	Quiris, -ītis
Auspēcor,	auspex, -īcis.	Radicītus,	radix, -icis.
Caupōnor,	caupo, -ōnis.	Sospīto,	sospes, -ītis
Competītor,	compētītum.	Nātūra,	nātus.
Cornīcor,	cornix, -icis.	Māternus,	māter.
Custōdio,	custos, -ōdis.	Lēgēbam, &amp;c.	lēgo.
Decōrus,	decor, -ōris.	Lēgēram, &amp;c.	lēgi.

834.—EXCEPTIONS.

1. Long from Short.

Dēni, from dēcem.		Mōbīlis, from mōveo
Fōmes, fōveo.	Sēdes, sēdeo.	Hūmor, hūmus.
Hūmānus, hōmo.	Sēcūs, sēcūs.	Jūmentum, jūvo.
Rēgūla, rēgo.	Pēnūria, pēnus.	Vox, vōcis, vōco, &amp;c.

2. Short from Long.

Arēna and ārista, from āreo.	Lūcerna, from lūceo.
Nōta and nōto, nōtus.	Dux, -ūcis, dūco.
Vādum, vādo.	Stābīlis, stābam.
Fīdes, fīdo.	Dītio, dis, dītis.
Sōpor, sōpio.	Quāsīllus, quālus, &amp;c.

835.—EXPLANATION.—This rule applies to all those parts of the verb derived or formed from the primary parts, §§ 51 and 52, i. e. the quantity of the primary part remains in all the parts formed from it.

836.—RULE XXVI. Compounds follow the quantity of the simple words which compose them; as, adāmo, from ād and āmo; dedūco, from dē and dūco.

837.—Obs. 1. The change of a vowel or diphthong, in forming the compound, does not alter its quantity; as, cādo, concīdo; cædi, concido; claudo, reclūdo; æquus, iniquus, &c.

838.—Obs. 2. When a short syllable in the first part of the compound ends with a consonant, it becomes long by position when joined to another word beginning with a consonant; as, përmaneo, from për and maneo; but if the second word begin with a vowel, the first retains its quantity; as, përambūlo, from për and ambūlo.

839.—Obs. 3. When the second part of a compound word begins with a vowel, the vowel ending the first part is short by Rule I. When it begins with two consonants, or a double consonant, the vowel preceding is long by Rule II. But if it begins with a simple consonant, followed by a vowel or diphthong, the vowel preceding is sometimes long, and sometimes short, by the following—

Special Rules for the first part of a compound, ending with a vowel.

840.—Rule 1. The first part of a compound, if a preposition of one syllable, has the final vowel long; as, dēcido, prōtendo.

Exc. 1. Pro is short in prūcella, prōfanus, prōfari, prōfecto, prōfestus, prōficiscor, prōfiteor, prōfugio, prōfugus, prōfundus, prōnepos, prōnespiis, prōpero, and prōtervus. It is common in procūro, profundo, propāgo, proello, propino, propulso.

Exc. 2. The Greek pro (before), is always short; as, prōphēta, prōlogus.

Note.—The final vowel of a preposition of more than one syllable, retains its own quantity; as, contrādīco, antēcedo.

841.—Rule 2. The inseparable prepositions, se and di, are long; re is short; as, Sēpono, dīvello, rēpello.

Exc. 3. Di is short in dīrimo and dīsertus. Re is long in rēfert.

842.—Rule 3. The first part of a compound, not a preposition, has final a long; e, i, o, u, and y, short; as,

Māle, nēfas, ūceps, philōsophus, dūcenti, Polŷdōrus.

843.—EXCEPTIONS.

Exc. 1. A—In quāsi, eādē, not in the ablative, and in some Greek compounds, a is short.

Exc. 2. E—The e is long in nēmo, nēquam, nēquando, nēquaquam, nēquidquam, nēquis, nēquitia; mēmet, mēcum, tēcum, vēcors, vēsanus, venēficius. Also in words compounded with se for sex, or semi; as, sēdecim, sēmcstris, &c. E is common in some compounds of facio; as, liquefacio, rarefacio, &c.

Exc. 3. I.—When the first part of a compound is declined, i is long; as quidam, quilibet, reipublicæ, &c., or when the first can be separated from the last, and yet both retain their form and meaning; as, ludi-magister, lucrifacio, si-quis, agri-cultura, &c.

I is sometimes made long by contraction; as, bigæ, scilicet, bimus, &c., for bijugæ, scire licet, bis annus, or biennius. It is also long in idem (masculine), ubique, utrobique, ibidem, nimirum, and the compounds of dies, such as, biduum, pridie; meridies, &c. In ubicunque and ubivis, it is common.

Exc. 4. O—Contro, intro, retro, and quando, in compounds, have the final o long; as, contröversia, intröduco, retröcedo, quandöque, (except quandöquidem.)

O is long in compounds of quo; as, quömodo, quöcunque, quöminus, quöcirca, quövís, quöque, (from quisque;) but in quöque, the conjunction, it is short.

Exc. 5. U—Jupiter, jüdex, and jüdicium, have u long; also usücapio and usüvenio, being capable of separation, as in Exc. 3.

844.—RULE XXVII. The last syllable of every verse is common.

845.—EXPLANATION.—This means that a short syllable at the end of a line, if the verse requires it, is considered long; and a long syllable, if the verse requires it, is considered short.

846.—N. B. A syllable which does not come under any of the preceding rules, is said to be long, or short, by “authority,” viz. : of the poets.

§ 162. VERSIFICATION.

847.—A verse is a certain number of long and short syllables, disposed according to rule. The parts into which a verse is divided are called Feet.

FEEET.

848.—A foot, in metre, is composed of two or more syllables, strictly regulated by time, and is either simple or compound. The simple feet are twelve in number, of which four consist of two, and eight of three syllables. There are sixteen compound feet, each of four syllables. These varieties are as follows :

849.—Simple feet of two Syllables.

Pyrrhic	— —	as Dëus.
Spondee	— —	as fündünt.
Iambus	— —	as ërânt.
Trochee	— —	as ärmă

850 — Simple feet of three Syllables.

Tribrach	— — —	as fācērē.
Molossus	— — —	as cōtēndūt.
Dactyl	— — —	as cōrpōrā.
Anapæst	— — —	as dōmīnī.
Bacchius	— — —	as dōlōrēs.
Antibacchius	— — —	as Rōmānūs.
Amphibrach	— — —	as hōnōrē.
Amphimacer	— — —	as chārītās.

851.—Compound feet of four Syllables.

852.—ISOCHRONOUS FEET.

1. In every foot, a long syllable is equal in time to two short ones. To constitute feet isochronous, two things are necessary: 1st. That they have the same time: 2d. That they be interchangeable in metre.

2. Feet have the same time which are measured by an equal number of short syllables; thus, the Spondee, Dactyl, Anapæst, and Proceleusmaticus, have the same time, each being equal to four short syllables.

3. Feet are interchangeable in metre, when the ictus or stress of the voice falls, or may fall, on the same portion of the foot. The part of the foot that receives the ictus, is called arsis, or elevation: the rest of the foot is termed thesis, or depression.

4. The natural place of the arsis, is the long syllable of the foot. Hence, in the Iambus, it falls on the second syllable, and in the Trochee, on the first. Its place in the Spondee and Tribrach cannot be determined by the feet themselves, each syllable being of the same length.

5. In all kinds of verse, the fundamental foot determines the place of the arsis for the other feet admitted into it; thus, in Dactylic verse, and Trochaic verse, the Spondee will have the arsis on the first syllable;—in Anapæstic and Iambic, on the last. In Trochaic verse, the tribrach will have the arsis on the first syllable, — — —, in Iambic on the second,

6. Those feet, then, according to the ancients, were called isochronous, which were capable of being divided into parts that were equal in time so that a short syllable should correspond to a short; and a long to a long, or to two short; thus, in Iambic and Trochaic verse,

In Dactylic and Anapæstic; thus,

853.—But feet which cannot be divided in this manner, are not isochronous, though they have the same time; thus, the Iambus and Trochee, though equal in time, cannot be divided so as to have the corresponding parts of equal length; thus,

854.—Hence these feet are not interchangeable, or isochronous; and for this reason a Trochee is never admitted into Iambic verse nor an Iambus into Trochaic. The same is true of the Spondee, (— —) and Amphibrach (⌋ — ⌋), and of the Amphibrach with the Dactyl or Anapæst.

855.—§ 163 OF METRE.

1. Metre, in its general sense, means an arrangement of syllables and feet in verse, according to certain rules; and, in this sense, applies, not only to an entire verse, but to part of a verse, or to any number of verses. A metre, in a specific sense, means a combination of two feet (sometimes called a syzygy), and sometimes one foot only.

The distinction between rhythm and metre is this:—the former refers to the time only, in regard to which, two short syllables are equivalent to one long; the latter refers both to the time and the order of the syllables. The rhythm of an anapæst and dactyl is the same; the metre different. The term rhythm, is also understood in a more comprehensive sense, and is applied to the harmonious construction and enunciation of feet and words in connection; thus, a line has rhythm when it contains any number of metres of equal time, without regard to their order. Metre requires a certain number of metres, and these arranged in a certain order. Thus, in this line,

Panditur interea domus omnipotentis Olympi, there is both rhythm (as it contains six metres of equal value in respect of time) and metre, as these metres are arranged according to the canon for Hexameter heroic verse, which requires a dactyl in the fifth, and a spondee in the sixth place. Change the order thus, and the rhythm remains as perfect as before, but the metre is destroyed it is no longer a Hexameter heroic line.

Omnipotentis Olympi panditur interea domus.

2. The principal metres used in Latin poetry are six; namely 1. Iambic. 2. Trochaic. 3. Anapæstic. 4. Dactylic. 5. Choriambic. 6. Ionic. These are so called from the foot which prevails in them.

These different kinds of verse, in certain varieties, are also designated by the names of certain poets, who either invented them, or made special use of them in their writings. Thus, we have Asclepiadic, Glyconian, Alcaic, Sapphic, Phœreeratian, &c., from Asclepiades, Glycon, Alcaeus, Sappho, Phœreerates, &c.

3. In Iambic, Trochaic, and Anapæstic verse, a metre consists of two feet (sometimes called a dipodia, or syzygy), in the other kinds, of one foot.

4. A verse consisting of one metre is called Monometer; of two metres, Dimeter; of three, Trimeter; of four, Tetrameter; of five, Pentameter; of six, Hexameter; of seven, Heptameter; &c. Hence, in Trochaic, Iambic, and Anapæstic verse, a monometer will contain two feet; a dimeter, four; a trimeter, six; &c. In the other kinds of verse, a monometer contains one foot; a dimeter, two; a trimeter, three; &c.

5. A verse or line of any metre may be complete, having precisely the number of feet or syllables that the canon requires; or, it may be deficient; or it may be redundant. To express this, a verse is variously characterized as follows; viz:

- (1.) Acatalectic, when complete.
- (2.) Catalectic, if wanting one syllable.
- (3.) Brachycatalectic, if wanting two syllables, or a foot.
- (4.) Hypercatalectic, or hypermeter, when it has one or two syllables more than the verse requires.
- (5.) Acephalous, when a syllable is wanting at the beginning of the line.
- (6.) Asynartete, when different measures are conjoined in one line.

Hence, in order fully to describe any verse, three terms are employed the first expressing the kind of verse; the second, the number of metres and the third, the character of the line; thus,

Nōn vūl- | tūs in- | stāntīs | tŷrān | nī | is described; as, Iambic, dimeter, hypercatalectic.

5. Verses, or parts of verses, are further designated by a term expressive of the number of feet, or parts of feet, which they contain. Thus a line, or a part of a line, containing—three half feet is called trimimer, five half feet,       “ penthemimer,

 seven half feet,     “ hephthemimer.

These are of use to point out the place of—

THE CÆSURAL PAUSE.

856.—Cæsura, in metre, is the separation, by the ending of a word, of syllables rhythmically or metrically connected.

It is of three kinds, 1. Of the foot; 2. of the rhythm; 3. of the verse

1st. Cæsura of the foot occurs when a word ends before a foot is completed; as in the second, third, fourth, and fifth feet of the following line:

Silvēs- | trēm tēnū- | ī Mū- | sām mēdī- | tāris ā- | vēnā.

2d. Cæsura of the rhythm is the separation of the arsis from the thesis by the ending of a word, as in the second, third, and fourth feet of the preceding line.

This has sometimes the effect of making a final short syllable long, by the force of the ictus; as,

Pectōrī- | būs inhī- | āns spī- | rāntiā | cōnsūlīt | extā.

Note.—This effect is not produced by the Cæsura of the foot, nor of the verse, unless they happen to coincide with the cæsura of the rhythm.

3d. The Cæsura of the verse is such a division of the line into two parts, as affords to the voice a pause or rest, at a proper or fixed place, without injuring the sense by pausing in the middle of a word.

857.—The proper management of this pause is a great beauty in certain kinds of verse, and shows the skill of the poet. In pentameter verse, its place is fixed; in hexameter and other metres, it is left to the poet. When it occurs at the end of the third half foot, it is called trimimeris;—of the fifth, penthemimeris;—of the seventh, hephthemimeris.

858.—The situation of each foot in a verse is called its place

§ 164. DIFFERENT KINDS OF METRE.

The canons, or rules of the different kinds of metre used in Latin poetry are the following:

859.—1. IAMBIC METRE.

1. A pure iambic line consists of iambic feet only; as,

Phāsē- | būs il- | lē quēm | vidē- | tīs hōs- | pītēs. |

Here the single line marks the end of the foot; the double line, the end of the metre; and the italic syllable, the cæsural pause.

2. A mixed iambic line admits a spondee into the first, third and fifth places; and again in all these a dactyl or an anapæst is sometimes admitted for a spondee, and a tribrach for the ambus.

3. This verse occurs in all varieties of length, from the dimeter catalectic to the tetrameter.

4. The cæsura commonly takes place at the fifth half foot.

5. Different varieties of this metre are denominated as follows :

1st. Senarian, or Trimeter acatalectic, used in tragedy and comedy

2d. Archilochian, or Trimeter catalectic.

3d. Archilochian, or Dimeter hypermeter.

4th. Anacreontic, or Dimeter catalectic.

5th. Gallianbus, or Dimeter catalectic, double ; i. e. two verses in one line.

6th. Hipponactic, or Tetrameter catalectic.

7th. Choliambus, or Trimeter Acatalectic. This is called, also, Scazon and Hipponactic trimeter, and has a spondee in the sixth place, and generally an iambus in the fifth.

8th. Octonarius, or Tetrameter acatalectic, called also quadratus.

9th. Acephalous, or Dimeter, wanting the first syllable of the first foot. This may be resolved into Trochaic dimeter catalectic.

860.—II. TROCHAIC METRE.

1. A pure trochaic line consists of trochees only. These, however, are but seldom used. An acephalous trochaic becomes an iambic line ; and an Acephalous iambic becomes a trochaic line.

2. A mixed trochaic line admits a spondee, a dactyl, an anapæst, and sometimes a proceleusmatic in even places, i. e. in the 2d, 4th, 6th, &c. But in the odd places, a trochee, or a tribrach, and in the last place, a trochee only.

3. This verse may be used in all varieties, from the Monometer hypercatalectic (two trochees and one syllable) to the tetrameter, or octonarius catalectic. The varieties most used by the Latin poets, are,

1st. The Trochaic tetrameter catalectic, rarely pure :

2d. The Sapphic, consisting of five feet, viz. : a trochee, a spondee, a dactyl, and two trochees. It has the cæsural pause after the fifth half foot ; thus,

Intĕ | gĕr vī | tæ | scĕlē- | risquĕ | pūrūs. HOR.

3d. The Phalacian, or Phaleucian, consisting of five feet, viz. : a spondee, a dactyl, and three trochees ; thus,

Nōn ĕst | vivĕrĕ | sĕd vā- | lĕrĕ | vitā. MART.

This verse neither requires nor rejects a cæsura.

4th. The Trochaic dimeter catalectic, or Acephalous iambic dimeter See I. 9th.

- 5th Other varieties, but seldom used, are: 1. The Pancretic, monometer hypercatalectic. 2. The Ithyphalic, dimeter brachycatalectic. 3. The Euripidean, dimeter catalectic. 4. The Alcmanic, dimeter acatalectic. 5. Anacreontic, dimeter acatalectic, with a pyrrhic in the first place. 6. The Hipponactic, tetrameter acatalectic.

861.—III. ANAPÆSTIC METRE.

1. A pure Anapæstic line consists of Anapæsts only.
2. The mixed anapæstic line has a spondee or a dactyl, feet of equal length, in any place.
3. The following varieties occur, viz.: 1st. The Anapæstic Monometer, consisting of two anapæsts. 2d. The Anapæstic dimeter, consisting of four Anapæsts.

Obs. Anapæstic verses are usually so constructed, that each measure ends with a word, so that they may be read in lines of one, two, or more measures.

4. Other varieties not much in use are the Simodian; monometer catalectic. The Partheniac; dimeter catalectic. The Archebulian; trimeter brachycatalectic.

862.—IV. DACTYLIC METRE.

1. A pure dactylic verse consists of dactyls only, which have the arsis on the first syllable of the foot.

Of this verse, one foot constitutes a metre, and the lines range in length from dimeter to hexameter. Of these, the most important are—

1. Hexameter or Heroic verse.

Hexameter or Heroic verse consists of six feet, of which the fifth is a dactyl, the sixth a spondee, and each of the other four, a dactyl or a spondee; as,

Lădĕřĕ | quă vĕl- | lĕm călă- | mō pĕr- | mĭřit ř- | grĕřti. VIRG.

Respecting this verse the following things may be noticed.

1st. When a spondee occurs in the fifth place, the line is called spondaic. Such lines are of a grave character, and but rarely occur.

2d. When the line consists of dactyls, the movement is brisk and rapid, when of spondees, slow and heavy. Compare in this respect the two following lines: the first expresses the rapid movement over the plain, of a troop of horse eager for the combat;—the other describes the slow and toilsome movements of the Cyclops at the labors of the forge.

Quădrŭpĕ- | dăntĕ pŭ- | trĕm sŏnĭ- | tŭ quătĭt | ŭngŭlă | cămpŭm.

Illi m- | tĕr sĕ- | sĕ măg- | nă vĭ | brăchĭă | tŏllŭnt. VIRG.

3d. The beauty and harmony of a Hexameter verse depends on the proper management of the cæsura. The most approved cæsural pause, in heroic poetry, is that which occurs after the arsis of the third foot. Sometimes called the heroic cæsural pause; thus,

At dŏmŭs | intĕrĭ- | ōr || rĕ- | gălĭ | splĕndĭdă | lŭxŭ VIRG.

In reading this line with due attention to quantity, we naturally pause where the caesural pause is indicated by the double line, and the whole movement is graceful and pleasing. Compare now with this, a line in which no attention is paid to the caesura, or in which, if one is made, you have to pause in the middle of a word, and the difference is manifest.

Rōmā | mōeniā | tēr- || rūit | impīgēr | Hānuibāl | ārmīs.

Sometimes the caesura falls after the thesis of the third foot, or the arsis of the fourth. In the last case, a secondary one often occurs in the second foot. The pause at the end of the third foot was the least approved. The following lines are examples of each of these:

1. Infān- | dūm rē- | gīnā || jū- | bēs rēnō- | vārē dō- | lōrēm.
2. Prīmā tē- | nēt, || plaū- | sūquē vō- | lāt || frēmī- | tūquē sē- | cūndō.
3. Cui nōn | diētūs Hý- | lās pūr || ēt Lā- | tōniā | Dēlōs.

2. A species of Hexameter is the Priapean. It is divisible into two portions of three feet each, of which portions, the first begins generally with a trochee, and ends with an amphimacer, and the second begins with a trochee; as follows,

O cō- | lōniā | que cūpis || pōntē | lūdērē | lōngō. CATULL.

These parts, however, may very well be scanned, the first as a Glyconic, and the second, as a Pherecratic verse, of which see under (V) Choriambic verse.

3. Pentameter verse consists of five feet. It is commonly arranged in two portions or hemistichs, of which the first contains two feet, dactyls or spondees, followed by a long syllable which ought to end a word; and the second, two dactyls followed by a long syllable; thus,

Māximā | dē nihī- | lō || nāscitūr | histōrī- | ā—Propert.
Pōmāquē | nōn nō- | tis || lēgīt āb | ārbōrī- | būs | TRIBULL.

Where the first distich does not end a word, or, if there be an elision by Synalæpha or Echthlipsis, the verse is considered harsh.

This verse is commonly used alternately with a hexameter line, combination which is commonly called Elegiac verse. †

4. Dactylic tetrameter, of which there are two kinds.

1st. Dactylic tetrameter a priore, called also Alemanian dactylic tetrameter, which consists of the first four feet of a hexameter line, the fourth being always a dactyl; as

Sclvītūr | aerīs hý- | ēms grā- | tā vicē. HOR.

2d. Dactylic tetrameter a posteriore, called also Spondaic tetrameter, which consists of the last four feet of a hexameter line; as,

Sic trīs- | tēs āf- | fātūs ā- | micōs. HOR.

5. Dactylic trimeter (or Choriambic Trimeter Catalectic), consists of the last three feet of a hexameter line (See Choriambic verse); as,

Grātō | Pýrrhā sūb | āntrō. Hor.

6. Dactylic trimeter catalectic, also called Archilochian penthemimeris, consists of the first five half feet of a hexameter line; as,

Arbōrī | būsquē cō- | mā. Hor.

7. Dactylic dimeter or Adonic—commonly used to conclude a Sapphic Stanza—consists of a dactyl and spondee; thus,

Rīsīt A- | pōllō.

863.—V. CHORIAMBIC METRE.

In Choriambic verse, the leading foot is a choriambus; but in the varieties of this metre, different other feet are admitted, chiefly at the beginning or end of the line, or both. The principal varieties are the following:

1. The Choriambic tetrameter consists of a spondee, three choriambi, and an iambus; as,

Tū nē | quāsiērīs | scīrē nēfās | quēm mīhī quēm | tībī.

2. Choriambic tetrameter, consists of three choriambi, or feet equivalent in length, and a Bacchius; as,

Jānē pātēr | Jānē tūēns | divē bīcēps | bīfōrmīs.

Horace altered without improving this metre, by substituting a spondee for the iambus in the first foot; as,

Tē dēōs ō- | rō Sýbārīn | &c.

Note.—Choriambic tetrameter was originally called Phalæcian, from Phalæcus, who made great use of it.

3. Asclepiadic tetrameter, consists of a spondee, two choriambi, and an iambus; thus,

Mæcē- | nās ātāvīs | ēditē rē- | gībūs. Hor.

This form is uniformly used by Horace. Other poets sometimes make the first foot a dactyl.

The cæsural pause occurs at the end of the first choriambus.

This verse is sometimes scanned as a Dactylic pentameter catalectic thus,

Mæcē- | nās ātā- | vīs | ēditē | rēgībūs.

4. Choriambic trimeter, or Glyconic, consists of a spondee (sometimes an iambus or trochee), a choriambus, and an iambus; as,

Stē tō | d'vā pōtēns | Cýpri. Hor.

When the first foot is a spondee, it may be scanned as dactylic trimeter
as,

Sic tē | divā pō- | tēns Cypri.

5. Choriambic trimeter catalectic, or Pherecratic, consists of a spondee, choriambus, and a catalectic syllable; as,

Grātō | Pýrrhá súb ān- | trō.

Here, also, the first foot is sometimes a trochee or an iambus. When a spondee, it may be scanned as Dactylic trimeter. See IV. 5.

6. Choriambic dimeter, consists of a choriambus and a Bacchius; as,

Lýdiā die | pēr ōmnēs. Hor.

864.—VL IONIC METRE.

1. The Ionic a majore, or Sotadic metre, consists of three Ionics a majore, and a spondee; as,

Hās eūm gēmī- | nā cōmpēdē | dēdicāt cā- | tēnās.

Obs.—In this metre, an Ionic foot is often changed for a ditrochee, as in the third foot of the preceding line; and a long syllable is often resolved into two short ones.

2. The Ionic a minore, consists generally of three or four feet, which are all Ionics a minore; as,

Pūēr ālēs | tībī tēlis | ōpērōsā- | quē Mīnervā. Hor.

§ 165. COMPOUND METRES.

865.—A compound metre or Asynartete, is the union of two kinds of metre in the same verse or line. Of these the following are the chief:

1. Greater Alcaic. Iambic mon. hyper. + Chor. dim. acat.

Thus,  $\bar{\cup} - | \cup - | - || - \cup \cup - | \cup -$

2. Lesser Alcaic. Dactylic dim. + Trochaic mon.

Thus,  $- \cup \cup | - \cup \cup || - \cup - \cup$

3. Archilochian Hept. or Dact. tetr. a priore + Troch. dim. B. C.

Thus,  $\bar{\cup} \bar{\cup} \bar{\cup} | \bar{\cup} \bar{\cup} \bar{\cup} | \bar{\cup} \bar{\cup} \bar{\cup} | - \cup \cup || - \cup | - \cup | - \cup$

4. Dactylic-Iambic. Dactylic trim. cat. + Iambic dim.

Thus,  $\bar{\cup} \bar{\cup} \bar{\cup} | - \cup \cup | - || \bar{\cup} \cup | - \cup | \bar{\cup} - | \cup -$

5. Iambico Dactylic. Iambic dim. + Dactylic trim. cat.

Thus  $\bar{\cup} - | \cup - | \bar{\cup} - | \cup - || \bar{\cup} \bar{\cup} \bar{\cup} | - \cup \cup | -$

§ 166. SCANNING.

866.—Scanning is the measuring of verse, or the resolving of a line into the several feet of which it is composed.

To do this properly, a previous acquaintance with the rules of quantity, and the structure of each kind of verse, is indispensable,—and also with the various ways by which syllables in certain situations are varied by contraction, elision, &c. These are usually called Figures of Prosody and are as follows:

867.—FIGURES OF PROSODY.

1. Synalæpha, cuts off a vowel or diphthong from the end of a word, when the next word begins with a vowel, or h with a vowel following it, thus converting two syllables into one; as,

Terra antiqua by Synalæpha, terr' antiqua; Dardanidæ infensi, Darlanid' infensi; vento huc, vent' uc; thus:

Quidve moror? si omnes uno ordine habetis Achivos. VIRG.

Scanned thus,

Quidvē mōr- | rōr' ſ' ōm- | nēs ū- | n' ōr dīn' hā- | bētīs A- | chīvōs.

The Synalæpha is sometimes neglected, and seldom takes place in the interjections, O, heu, ah, proh, væ, vah, hei.

Long vowels and diphthongs, when not cut off, are sometimes shortened; as,

Insulæ | Iōm' | in māg- | nō quās | dirā Cē- | lānō. VIRG.

Crēdimūs | ān qui ā- | mānt ip- | sī sībī | sōmniā | fīngunt. ID.

2. Ecthlipsis cuts off m with a vowel preceding it, from the end of a word, when the next word begins with a vowel, or h followed by a vowel; as,

Monstrum horrendum, informe, ingens, cui lumen ademptum.

Scanned thus,

Mōnstr' hōr- | rēnd,' in- | fōrm,' in- | gēns cui | lūmēn ād- | ēmptūm.

This elision was sometimes omitted by the early poets; as,

Corporum | officii- | um est quoni- | am preme- | re omnia de- | orsum. LUCR.

Obs. A Synalæpha and Ecthlipsis are sometimes found at the end of a line, where, after the completing of the metre, a syllable remains to be joined to the next line, which of course must begin with a vowel; thus,

Sternitur | infe- | lix ali- | one | vulnere | coelum | que
Adspicit, &c.

Here the que and adspicit are joined; as, qu' adspicit.

Jamque iter | emen- | si, tur- | res ae | tecta La- | tino- | rum

Ardua, &c., where the -rum and ardua are joined; as, r' ardua.

3. Synæresis, sometimes called Crasis, contracts two syllables into one; as, Phæthon, for Phaëthon; this is done by forming two vowels into a diphthong; æë, eï, oï, into æ, ei, oi; or, pronouncing the two syllables as one; thus, ea, iu, as if ya, yu, &c.; as, aurea, aurya; filius, filyus; and ua, ui, &c., as if wa, wi; thus, genua, genwa; tenuis, tenwis.

4. Diæresis divides one syllable into two; as, aulæi, for aulæ; Troïæ, for Trojæ; Persæus, for Perseus; milæus, for milæus; soluït, for solvit; voluït, for volvit; aquæ, suctus, sua sit, Sûcros, relunguït, reliquias, for aquæ, suctus, &c.; as,

Aulæi in medio libabant poeula Bacchi. VIRG.

Stamina non ulli dissolvienda Deo. Pentam. TIBULLUS.

5. Systole makes a long syllable short; as, the penult in tulerant; thus,

Matri | longa de- | cem tulë- | runt fas- | tidia | menses. VIRG.

6. Diastole makes a short syllable long; as, the last syllable of ãmôr in the following verse:

Consi- | dant, si- | tantus a- | môr, et | mcenia | condant. VIRG.

§ 167. STANZA.

868.—A poem may consist of one or more kinds of verse. When a poem consists of one kind of verse, it is called monocolon; of two, dicolon, of three, tricolon.

869.—The different kinds of verse in a poem are usually combined in regular portions called stanzas, or strophes, each of which contains the same number of lines, the same kinds of verse, and these arranged in the same order.

870.—When a stanza or strophe consists of two lines, the poem is called distrophon; of three lines, tristrophon; of four, tetrasrophon. Hence poems, according to the number of kinds of verse which they contain, and the number of lines in the stanza, are characterized as follows:

Monocolon, one kind of verse in the poem.

Dicolon distrophon, two kinds of verse, and two lines in the stanza.

Dicolon tristrophon, two kinds of verse, three lines in the stanza.

Dicolon tetrasrophon, two kinds of verse, four lines in the stanza.

Tricolon tristrophon, three kinds of verse, three lines in the stanza.

Tricolon tetrasrophon, three kinds of verse, four lines in the stanza.

§ 168. COMBINATIONS OF METRES IN HORACE.

871.—Horace makes use of nineteen different species of metre combined in eighteen different ways. They are arranged as follows, according to the order of preference given them by the poet. The references here where not marked, are to § 164.

- No. 1. Two lines Greater Alcaic. § 165. 1. One Archilochian trimeter hypermeter, I. 2. 5. 3d; and one Lesser Alcaic. § 165. 2.
- No. 2. Three lines Sapphic, II. 2. One Adonic, or Dactylic dim. IV. 7
- No. 3. One line Choriambic trim. or Glyconic, V. 4. One choriambic tetram. or Asclepiadic. V. 3.
- No. 4. One line Iambic trim. or Senarian, I. 3. 5. 1st. One Iambic dim. I. 2. 3.
- No. 5. Three lines, Chor. tetram. or Asclepiadic, V. 3. One Chor. trim. or Glyconic, V. 4.
- No. 6. Two lines Chor. tetram. or Asclepiadic, V. 3. One Chor. trim. cat., or Pherecratic, V. 5. One Chor. trim. or Glyconic, V. 4.
- No. 7. Choriambic tetrameter, or Asclepiadic alone, V. 3.
- No. 8. One line Dactylic Hexameter, IV. 1. One Dactylic tetram. a posteriore, IV. 4. 2d.
- No. 9. Choriambic pentameter only, V. 1.
- No. 10. One line Dactylic Hexameter, IV. 1. One Iambic dim. 1 2. 3.
- No. 11. Iambic trimeter Senarian only, I. 2. 5. 1st.
- No. 12. One line Choriambic dim. V. 6. One Chor. tetram. (altered) V. 4.
- No. 13. One line Dactylic Hexameter, IV. 1. One Iambic trim. sen. I. 3. 5. 1st.
- No. 14. One line Dactylic Hexameter, IV. 1. One Archilochian Dactylic trimeter catalectic, IV. 6.
- No. 15. One line Dactylic Hexameter, IV. 1. One Iambico dactylic, § 165. 5.
- No. 16. One line Iambic trim. Senarian, I. 3. 5. 1st. One Dactylic Iambic. § 165, 4.
- No. 17. One line Archilochian Heptameter. § 165. 3. One Archilochian Iambic trimeter, Catalectic, I. 2. 5. 2d.
- No. 18. One line Iambic dimeter Acephalous, I. 5. 9th.; and one Iambic trimeter catalectic, I. 5. 2d.
- No. 19. Ionic a minore only, VI. 2. The first line contains three feet, the second, four.

Note.—The Satires and Epistles are in Dactylic Hexameter, IV. 1

APPENDIX.

1 ROMAN COMPUTATION OF TIME.

1. Divisions of the Year.

873.—Romulus is said to have divided the year into ten months as follows: 1. Martius, from Mars, his supposed father; 2. Aprilis, from Aperio, "to open;" 3. Maius, from Maia, the mother of Mercury; 4. Junius, from the godless Juno. The rest were named from their number, as follows: 5. Quintilis, afterwards Julius, from Julius Cæsar; 6. Sextilis, afterwards Augustus, from Augustus Cæsar; 7. September; 8. October; 9. November; and 10. December. Numa afterwards added two months; viz: 11. Januarius, from the god Janus; 12. Februarius, from febru, "to purify."

874.—As the months were regulated by the course of the moon, it was soon found that the months and seasons did not always correspond, and various expedients were adopted to correct this error. Much confusion however still remained till about A. U. 707, when Julius Cæsar, assisted by Sosigenes, an astronomer of Alexandria, reformed the Calendar, adjusted the year according to the course of the sun, and assigned to each of the twelve months the number of days which they still contain.

2. The Roman Month.

875.—The Romans divided their month into three parts, called Kalends, Nones, and Ides*. The first day of every month was called the Kalends; the fifth was called the Nones; and the thirteenth was called the Ides; except in March, May, July, and October, when the Nones fell on the seventh, and the Ides on the fifteenth; and the day was numbered according to its distance, (not after but) before each of these points; that is, after the Kalends, they numbered the day according to its distance before the Nones; after the Nones, according to its distance before the Ides, and after the Ides, according to its distance before the Kalends—both days being always included. The day before each of these points was never numbered, but called Pridie, or ante diem Nonarum, or Iduum, or Kalendarum, as the case might be; the day before that was called tertio, the day before that, quarto, &c.; scil. Nonarum, Iduum, Kalendarum.

876.—Various expressions and constructions were used by the Romans in the notation of the days of the months. Thus, for example, the 29th December or the 4th of the Kalends of January, was expressed differently as follows:

- |                                  |                                 |
|----------------------------------|---------------------------------|
| 1st. Quarto Kalendarum Januarii. | Abbreviated, IV. K: I. Jan., cr |
| 2d. Quarto Kalendas Januarii.    | “ IV. Kal. Jan., cr             |

* The first day was named Kalends, from the Greek, καλέω, to call, because when the month was regulated according to the course of the moon, the priest announced the new moon, which was of course the first day of the month. The Nones were so called because that day was always the ninth from the Ides. The term Ides is derived from an obsolete Latin verb iduar, to divide, it is supposed, because that day being about the middle of the month, divided it into two nearly equal parts.

8d. Quarto Kalendas Januarinas. Abbreviated. IV. Kal. Jan., or 4th. Ante diem quartum Kal. Jan. " a. d. IV. K. Jan.

In these expressions, quarto agrees with die understood; and die governs Kalendārum in the genitive. Kalendas is governed by ante understood. In the first expression, Januarii is considered as a noun governed by Kalendārum; in the second, as a noun governed by Kalendas; in the third, Januarius is regarded as an adjective agreeing with Kalendas; in the fourth, ante diem quartum is a technical phrase for die quarto ante, and frequently has a preposition before it; as, in ante diem, &c., or, ex ante diem, &c.

The notation of Nones and Ides was expressed in the same way, and with the same variety of expression.

The correspondence of the Roman notation of time with our own, may be seen by inspection of the following

3. Rules for reducing Time.

As, however, this table cannot be always at hand, the following simple rules will enable a person to reduce time without a table.

I. TO REDUCE ROMAN TIME TO OUR OWN.

For reducing Kalends.

878.—Kalendæ are always the first day of the month:—Pridie Kalendarum, always the last day of the month preceding. For any other notation, observe the following—

879.—RULE. Subtract the number of the Kalends given, from the number of days in the preceding month; add 2, and the result will be the day of the preceding month; thus,

X. Kal. Jan.—Dec. has days  $31-10=21+2=23$ d of Dec'r.

XVI Kal. Dec.—Nov. has days  $30-16=14+2=16$ th of Nov'r

For reducing Nones and Ides.

880.—RULE. Subtract the number given, from the number of the day on which the Nones or Ides fall, and add 1. The result will be the day of the month named; thus,

IV. Non. Dec.—Nones on the  $5-4=1+1=2$ , or 2d Dec'r

VI Id. Dec.—Ides on the  $13-6=7+1=8$ , or 8th Dec'r.

IV. Non. Mar.—Nones on the  $7-4=3+1=4$ , or 4th March.

VI Id. Mar.—Ides on the  $15-6=9+1=10$ , or 10th March.

II. FOR REDUCING OUR TIME TO ROMAN.

881.—If the day is that on which the Kalends, Nones, or Ides fall, call it by these names. If the day before, call it Pridie Kal. (of the following month), Prid. Non., Pridie Id. (of the same month). Other days to be denominated according to their distance before the point next following, viz.: those after the Kalends and before the Nones, to be called Nones; those after the Nones and before the Ides, to be called Ides, viz.: of the month named; and those after the Ides and before the Kalends, to be called Kalends, viz.: of the month following; as follows:

For reducing to Kalends.

882.—RULE. Subtract the day of the month given, from the number of days in the month, and add 2. The result will be the number of the Kalends of the month following; thus,

Dec. 23d.—Dec. has days  $31-23=8+2=10$ , or X. Kal. Jan.

Nov. 16th.—Nov. has days  $30-16=14+2=16$ , or XVI Kal. Dec

For reducing to Nones and Ides.

883.—RULE. Subtract the day of the month given, from the day of the Nones (if between the Kalends and Nones), or from the day of the Ides (if between the Nones and Ides), and add 1. The result will be the number of the Nones or Ides respectively ; as,

Dec. 2d.—Day of the Nones  $5-2=3+1=4$ , or IV. Non. Dec.

Dec. 8th. “ Ides  $13-8=5+1=6$ , or VI. Id. Dec.

March 4th. “ Nones  $7-4=3+1=4$ , or IV. Non. Mar.

March 10th. “ Ides  $15-10=5+1=6$ , or VI. Id. Mar.

Division of the Roman Day.

884.—The Roman civil day extended, as with us, from midnight to midnight, and its parts were variously named ; as, media nox, gallicinium, canticinium diluculum, mane, antemeridianum, meridies, pomeridianum, &c

885.—The natural day extended from sunrise (solis ortus) till sunset (solis occasus), and was divided into twelve equal parts, called hours, (horæ) ; which were, of course, longer or shorter according to the length of the day. At the equinox, their hour and ours would be of the same length : but, as they began to number at sunrise, the number would be different, i. e. their first hour would correspond to our 7 o'clock, their second to our 8 o'clock, &c.

886.—The night was divided by the Romans into four watches (vigiliæ), each equal to three hours ; the first and second extending from sunset to midnight, and the third and fourth, from midnight to sunrise.

II. OF ROMAN NAMES.

887.—The Romans at first seem to have had but one name ; as, Romulus, Remus, Numitor ; sometimes two ; as, Numa Pompilius, Ancus Martius, &c. ; but when they began to be divided into tribes, or clans, (gentes) they commonly had three names—the prænomen, the nomen, and the cognomen ; arranged as follows :

1. The Prænomen stood first, and distinguished the individual. It was commonly written with one or two letters ; as, A. for Aulus ; C. for Caius . Cn. for Cneius, &c.

2. The Nomen, which distinguished the gens. This name commonly ended in ius ; as, Cornelius, Fabius, Tullius, &c. ; and

3. The Cognomen, or surname, was put last, and marked the family ; as, Cicero, Caesar, &c.

Thus, in Publius Cornelius Scipio, Publius is the prænomen, and denotes the individual ; Cornelius is the nomen, and denotes the gens ; and Scipio is the cognomen, and denotes the family.

4. Sometimes a fourth name, called the Agnomen, was added, as a memorial of some illustrious action or remarkable event. Thus, Scipio was named Africânus, from the conquest of Carthage in Africa.

888.—The three names, however, were not always used—commonly two, and sometimes only one. In speaking to any one, the prænomen was commonly used, which was peculiar to Roman citizens.

889.—When there was only one daughter in a family, she was called by the name of the gens, with a feminine termination ; as, Tullia, the daughter of M. Tullius Cicero ; Julia, the daughter of C. Julius Caesar . II there were two, the elder was called Major, and the younger Minor; as, Tullia Major, &c. If more than two, they were distinguished by numerals; as, Prima, Secunda, Tertia, &c.

890.—Slaves had no prænomen, but were anciently called by the prænomen of their masters; as, Marcipor, as if Marci puer; Lucipor (Lucii puer), &c. Afterwards they came to be named either from their country or from other circumstances; as, Syrus, Dāvus, Gēta, Tīro, Laurea; and still more frequently from their employment; as, Medicō, Chirurgi, Pada-gōqi, Grammatici, Scribæ, Fabri, &c.

891.—The most common abbreviations of Latin names, are the following, viz.:

A., Aulus .	M. T. C., Marcus Tullius	Q., or Qu., Quintus .
C., Caius .	Cicero.	Ser., Servius .
Cn., Cneius .	M., Manius .	S., or Sex., Sextus .

III. DIVISIONS OF THE ROMAN PEOPLE.

892.—The Roman people were originally divided as follows:

1. Patres. Fathers, or Senators, called also patrōnes, from their relation to the plebeians, to whom they were the legal protectors.
2. Plebes, or common people, called also clientes.

There were afterwards added—

3. Equites, or Knights, persons of merit and distinction, selected from the two orders, whose duty at first was to serve in war as cavalry, but they were afterwards advanced to other important offices. It was necessary for them to be over 18 years of age, and to possess a fortune of four hundred thousand sesterces.
4. Liberti, or Libertini. Freedmen—persons who had once been slaves, but obtained their freedom, and ranked as citizens. They were called liberti in relation to the person by whom they were set free, and libertini in relation to all others.
5. Servi. Slaves.

893.—When Romulus arranged the affairs of the new city, he appointed a council of 100 Patres from the Romans, and afterwards added to them 100 more from the Sabines. Tarquinius Priscus, the fifth king of Rome, added 100 more, called Patres minorum gentium, in relation to whom the former senators were called Patres majorum gentium, making 300 in all. A great part of these were slain by Tarquin the proud; and after his expulsion, Brutus, the first consul, chose a number to supply their place, who were called Patres conscripti, because they were enrolled with the other senators. This title was afterwards applied to all the senators in council assembled, and is supposed to be abbreviated for Patres et conscripti.

894.—The sons of the Patres were called Patricii, or Patricians. Besides these distinctions among the Romans, there were also distinctions of rank or party, as follows:

Nobiles, whose ancestors or themselves held any curule office, i. e. had been Consul, Prætor, Censor, or Curule Ædile.

Ignobiles, who neither themselves, nor their ancestors, held any curule office.

Optimâtes, those who favored the senate.

Populâres, those who favored the people.

IV. DIVISIONS OF THE ROMAN CIVIL OFFICERS.

895.—At first Rome was governed by kings for the space of 244 years. The ordinary magistrates after that, till the end of the republic, were,

1. Consuls, or chief magistrates, of whom there were two.
2. Prætors, or judges, also two in number, next in dignity to the consuls.
3. Censors, who took charge of the census, and had a general supervision of the morals of the people.
4. Tribunes of the people, the special guardians of the people against the encroachments of the patricians, and who, by the word "Veto," I forbid, could prevent the passage of any law.
5. Ædiles, who took care of the city and had the inspection and regulation of its public buildings, temples, theatres, baths, &c.
6. Quæstors, or Treasurers, who collected the public revenues.

896.—Under the emperors there were added,

1. Præfectus Urbis, or Urbis, Governor of the city.
2. Præfectus Prætorii, Commander of the body guards.
3. Præfectus Annonæ whose duty it was to procure and distribute grain in times of scarcity.
4. Præfectus militaris æarii, who had charge of the military fund.
5. Præfectus Classis, Admiral of the fleet.
6. Præfectus Vigilum or captain of the watch.

V. THE ROMAN ARMY.

897.—The Romans were a nation of warriors. All within a certain age (17 to 45), were obliged to go forth to war at the call of their country

When an army was wanted for any purpose, a levy was made among the people, of the number required. These were then arranged, officered, and equipped for service.

898.—The Legion. The leading division of the Roman army was the legion, which when full consisted of 6000 men, but varied from that to 4000.

899.—Each legion was divided into ten cohorts; each cohort, into three maniples; and each maniple, into two centuries.

900.—The complement of cavalry (equitatus), for each legion was three hundred, called Ala, or justus equitatus. These were divided into ten turme or troops; and each turma into three decuriæ, or bodies of ten men.

Division of the Soldiers.

901.—The Roman soldiers were divided into three classes, viz

1. Hastati, or spearmen; young men who occupied the first line.
2. Principes, or middle-aged men, who occupied the middle line.
3. Triarii; veterans of approved valor, who occupied the third line.

Besides these, there were,

4. Velites, or light armed soldiers; distinguished for agility and swiftness.
5. Funditores, or slingers.
6. Sagittarii, or bowmen.

902.—The Officers of the Legion were,

1. Six Military tribunes, who commanded under the consul in turn usually a month.
2. The Centuriones, who commanded the centuries.

The Officers of the Cavalry were,

1. The Præfectus Alæ, or commander of the wing.
2. The Decuriones, or captains of ten.

903.—The whole army was under the command of the consul or proconsul, who acted as commander-in-chief. Under him were his Legati, or lieutenants, who acted in his absence, or under his direction; or, as his deputies, were sent by him on embassies, or on business of special importance.

VI. ROMAN MONEY—WEIGHTS—AND MEASURES.

Roman Money.

904.—The principal coins among the Romans were—Brass: the As and its divisions; Silver: Sestertius, Quinarius, and Denarius, called bigati and quadrigati, from the impression of a chariot drawn by two or four horses on one side; Gold: the Aureus or Solidus.

905.—Before the coining of silver, the Romans reckoned by the As, a brass coin called also libra. This coin was originally the weight of the Roman libra or pondus, but was afterwards reduced at different times, till at last it came to one twenty-fourth of a pound, and was called libella. It was divided into twelve equal parts called Unciæ, every number of which had a distinct name, as follows:

$\frac{1}{12}$	Uncia.	$\frac{6}{12}$ or $\frac{1}{2}$	Semis, sem-	$\frac{9}{12}$ or $\frac{3}{4}$	Dodrans.
$\frac{2}{12}$ or $\frac{1}{6}$	Sextans.		bella.	$\frac{10}{12}$ or $\frac{5}{6}$	Dextans.
$\frac{3}{12}$ or $\frac{1}{4}$	Quadrans.	$\frac{7}{12}$	Septunx.	$\frac{11}{12}$	Deunx
$\frac{4}{12}$ or $\frac{1}{3}$	Triens.	$\frac{8}{12}$ or $\frac{2}{3}$	Bes, or bes-
$\frac{5}{12}$	Quincunx.		sis.

906.—After the use of silver money, accounts were kept in Sesterces (sestertii). This coin emphatically called nummus (money), was originally  $2\frac{1}{2}$  asses, as the name sestertius means. Its symbol was L. L. S. Libra Libra Semis, or the numeral letters, thus, IIS. or with a line HS. Other coins were multiples of this; thus, the denarius was equal to 4 sesterces, or 10 asses, and the aureus, a gold coin, was equal to 100 or 100 sestertii. When the as was reduced in weight after A. U. C. 686, the sestertius was worth 4 asses, and the denarius, 16.

A thousand sestertii was called sestertium (not a coin but a sum), and was indicated by the mark IIS. This word was never used in the singular; and any sum less than 2000 sesterces was called sestertia; 2000 was called duo or bina sestertia; 10,000, dēna sestertia; 20,000, vicēna sestertia, &c., up to a million of sesterces; which was written decies centēna millia sestertiōrum, or nummōrum, ten times a hundred thousand sesterces. This was commonly abbreviated into decies sestertium, or decies nummum, in which expressions centēna millia, or centies millia is always understood.

908.—The following table will show the value of the Roman as, in federal money, both before, and after, the Punic war, and of the larger coins at all times.

909.—The Roman foot (pes), like the as, was divided into 12 unciæ, different numbers of which were sometimes called by the same names as those of the as; viz.: Sextans, quadrans, &c. The measures less than the uncia were the digitus = ¼; the semiuncia = ½; the siciliquus = ¼; and the sextula = 1-6th of the uncia; i. e. the pes, or foot, contained 12 unciæ, or 16 digiti, or 24 semiunciæ, or 48 siciliqui, or 72 sextula.

VII. DIFFERENT AGES OF ROMAN LITERATURE.

910.—Of the Roman literature, previous to A. U., 514, scarcely a vestige remains. The Roman writers, subsequent to that period, have been arranged into four classes, with reference to the purity of the language at the time in which they lived. These are called the Golden age, the Silver age, the Brazen age, and the Iron age.

911.—The Golden age extends from the time of the second Punic war, A. U. 514, to the death of Augustus, A. D., 14, a period of about 250 years. In that period, Facciolatus reckons up in all 62 writers, of many of whose works, however, only fragments remain. The most distinguished writers of that period are Terence, Catullus, Cæsar, Nepos, Cicero, Virgil, Horace, Ovid, Livy, and Sallust.

912.—The Silver age extends from the death of Augustus to the death of Trajan, A. D., 118, a period of 104 years. The writers who flourished in this age are about twenty-three in number, of whom the most distinguished are Celsus, Villeius, Columella, the Senecas, the Plinys, Juvenal, Quintilian, Tacitus, Suetonius, and Curtius.

913.—The writers of the Brazen age, extending from the death of Trajan till Rome was taken by the Goths, A. D., 410, were 35; the most distinguished of whom were Justin, Terentianus, Victor, Lactantius, and Claudian.

914.—From this period commenced the Iron age, during which the Latin language was much adulterated by the admixture of foreign words, and its purity, elegance, and strength, greatly declined.

VIII. ENGLISH PRONUNCIATION OF LATIN.

915.—For reasons stated in the note, § 2, the continental pronunciation of the Latin language, as presented in that section, is considered the best. But since there are many who prefer the English, or Walkerian pronunciation, a brief statement of the principles by which it is regulated is here introduced. In doing this it is necessary to state, and for the learner always to bear in mind, that the English accentuation and vowel sounds have nothing to do with the quantity of the syllables as established by the rules of Latin prosody. These indeed are often directly opposed to each other. A vowel which by the rules of English orthoepy is long, having both the accent and the long English sound, is short in Latin; as pǎ-ter, Dǎ-us. On the other hand, a syllable that is short, being without the accent and having the short English sound, is long in Latin; as, am"-ā-bá-mus, mon"-ē-bá-tis. When, therefore, a vowel is said to have the long sound, or the short sound—to be accented or unaccented, nothing is affirmed respecting the quantity of the syllable, as long or short. Here indeed there is an incongruity, but it is inseparable from the system.

916.—According to this mode of pronunciation, the sound of a vowel or diphthong depends entirely on two things; viz, the accent and the place of the vowel in the syllable. Again, the division of words into syllables depends, in a great measure, on the place of the accents; and that again on the quantity of the penult syllable. Hence to present this matter fully and properly, we must reverse this order, and consider,

- I. The quantity of the penult syllables.
- II. The accent.
- III. The division of words into syllables; and
- IV. The sounds of the letters in their combinations.

☞ For the division of letters into vowels and consonants, the combination of the former into diphthongs, and the division of the latter into mutes, liquids, &c.; as also for the meaning of the terms monosyllable, dissyllable, &c., penult and antepenult, and the marks for long, short, and accented syllables, see § 1

I. THE QUANTITY OF THE PENULT SYLLABLES.

917.—For quantity in general, see the Rules, §§ 154–161; and particularly for penult syllables, §§ 156–159. The following are general, being applicable to other syllables as well as the penult, and are of extensive application:

1. A vowel before another vowel is short; as, vía, dǎus.
2. A vowel before two consonants, or a double consonant is long by position; as, arma, fallo, axis.
3. A vowel before a mute and a liquid (l and r), is common; i. e. either long or short; as, volúcris, or volúcris.
4. A diphthong is always long; as, Cǎsar, aúrum.

Note.—When the quantity of the penult is determined by any of these rules, it is u t marked; otherwise it is marked.

II. THE ACCENT.

918.—ACCENT is a particular stress of voice laid on a particular syllable of a word, and marked thus ( ' ); as, pa'-ter, an'-i-mus. Its place is on the penult or antepenult.

919.—When a word has more accents than one, the last is called the primary accent, the one preceding it, the secondary, marked ( " ); preceding that, is often a third, marked ( ' ' ); and sometimes even a fourth, marked ( ' ' ' ); and all of them subject to the same rules. These are as follows:

920.—RULES.

1. Words of two syllables have the accent on the first, or penult; as, pā'-ter, mū'-sa, āū'-rum.

2. Words of more than two syllables, when the penult is long, have the accent on the penult; as, a-mī'cus: when the penult is short they have the accent on the antepenult; as, dom'-i-nus.

3. When the enclitics que, ve, ne, are added to a word, the two words are considered as one, and it is accented accordingly; as, pa-ter'-que, am''-i-cus'-ne, dom''-i-nus'-ve.

4. If only two syllables precede the primary accent, the secondary accent is placed on the first; as, dom''-i-nō'-rum.

5. If three or four syllables precede the primary accent, the secondary is placed sometimes on the first and sometimes on the second; as, tol''-e-ra-bil'-i-us, de-mon''-stra-ban'-tur.

6. Some words which have four syllables before the primary accent, and all that have more than four have a third accent; and in longer words even a fourth; as, pab'''-u-la''-ti-ō'-nis, pab''''-u-la''-ti-on''-i-bus'-que.

III. THE DIVISION OF WORDS INTO SYLLABLES.

920.—In Latin, every word has as many syllables as there are separate vowels or diphthongs. Hence the following—

RULES.

1. Two vowels coming together and not forming a diphthong, must be divided; as, De'-us, su'-us, au'-re-us.

2. A single consonant, or a mute and a liquid (l, r) between the last two vowels of a word, or between any two unaccented vowels, are joined to the last; as, pa'-TER, al'-a-CER, al'-a-CRIS, tol''-e-RA-bil'-i-us, per''-e-GRI-nā''-ti-ō'-NIS.

Exc. But tib-i and sib-i join it to the first.

3. A single consonant, or a mute and a liquid before an accented vowel, are joined to that vowel, and so also is a single consonant after it, except in the penult; as, i-TIN'-ē-ra, HOM'-i-nes.

Exc. 1. A single consonant, or a mute and a liquid, after a, e, o, accented, and followed by e or i before a vowel, are joined to the latter; as, sō-CI-us, A-DI-us, dō-CE-o, pā-TRI-us.

Exc. 2. A single consonant, or a mute and a liquid after u, accented, must be joined to the following vowel; as, mū-LI-er, tū-TI-or, lū-BRI-cus.

4. Any two consonants, except a mute and a liquid coming before or after an accented vowel, and also a mute and a liquid after an accented vowel (the penult and the exceptions to Rule 3 excepted), must be divided; as, tem-por'-i-bus, lec'-tum, tem'-vō-rum, mel'-rī-cus.

Also gl, tl, and often cl, after the penultimate vowel, or before the vowel of an accented syllable; as, At'-las, At lan'-ti-des, ec-lec'-ta.

5. If three consonants come between the vowels of any two syllables, the last two, if a mute and a liquid, are joined to the latter vowel; as, con'-tra, am''-pli-a'-vit; otherwise, the last only; as, comp'-tus, re-demp'-tor.

6. A compound word is resolved into its constituent parts, if the first part ends with a consonant; as, AB-es'-se, SUB'-i-it, IN'-i-tur, CIRCUM'-ā-go. But if the first part ends with a vowel, it is divided like a simple word; as, DEF'-ē-ro, DI'-i-go, PRÆS'-to.

921.—These rules are useful here, only as a guide to the pronunciation in the Walkerian mode, the vowel sounds being always different when they end a syllable, and when followed by a consonant; thus, di'-i-go and præs'-to would be pronounced very differently if divided thus, di'-i-go and præ'-sto, though the quantity and accent would be the same in both. It is therefore manifest, that in order to correct pronunciation in this mode, it is necessary to be familiar with, and ready in applying, the rules of syllabication.

IV. OF THE SOUNDS OF THE LETTERS.

922.—The sound of the Vowels.

1. Every accented vowel at the end of a syllable has the long English sound; as in the words fate, me, pine, no, tube; thus, pa'-ter, de'-dīt, vi'-vus, to'-tus, tu'-ba. Ty'-rus.*

2. At the end of an unaccented syllable, e, o, and u, have nearly the same sound as when accented, but are sounded shorter; as, re' te, vo'-lo, ma'-nu; a has the sound of a in fa-ther; as, mu'-sa, e-pis'-to-la.

I, ending an unaccented syllable, has always its long sound in the following positions:

* Y has the sound of i in the same situation.

1st. In the end of a word; as, dom'ī ni. Except in tib-ī and sib-ī, in which final i sounds like short e.

2d. In the first syllable of a word (the second of which is accented), either when it stands alone before a consonant; as i-do'-nē-us, or ends the syllable before a vowel; as, fi-ē'-bam.

In all other situations at the end of an unaccented syllable not final, i has an obscure sound resembling short e; as, nob' i-lis, rap' i-dus, fi-dē'-lis, &c.

3. When a syllable ends with a consonant, its vowel has the short English sound, as in fāt, met, pin, not, tub, symbol; thus mag'-nus, reg'-num, jin'-go, hoc, sub, cyg'-nus.

Exc. Es at the end of a word, has the sound of the English word case as, fi'-des, ig'-nes.

923.—2. The sound of the Diphthongs.

Æ and œ are pronounced as e in the same situation; as, æ'-tas, cæt'-ē-ra, pœ'-na, œs'-trum.

Au is pronounced like aw,—eu like long u,—and ei, not followed by another vowel, like long i; as, au'-di-o, eu'-ge, hei.

Exc. In Greek proper names, au are separated; as, Men''-e-la-us.

Note.—ua, ue, ui, uo, and uu, in one syllable after q, g, s, are not properly diphthongs, but the u takes the sound of w, 8-2.

After g and s these vowels are often pronounced separately, or in different syllables; as, ar'-gu-o, su'-a, su'-i, su'-us.

Exc. Ui in cui and huic, has the sound of i long.

924.—3. The sound of the Consonants.

The consonants are in general pronounced in Latin as in English. The following may be noticed.

C before e, i, y, æ, α, has the sound of s; as, cé-do, cí-vis, cyg'-nus, Cæ'sar, cæ'-na; before a, o, u, l, r, and at the end of a syllable, it has the sound of k; as, Ca-to, con-tra, cur, Clo-di-us, Cri-to.

Ch, generally has the sound of k; as char'-ta chor'-da, chró-ma.

G before e, i, y, æ, α, has its soft sound like j; as, gē'-nus, re'-gis; also before another g soft; as, agger. In other situations it is hard; as in the English words, bag, go.

Ch and ph before th in the beginning of a word, are not sounded; as, Chthonia, Phthia; also when a word begins with mn, gn, tm, ct, pt, ps, the first letter is silent, or but slightly sounded; as, mne-mos'-y-ne, gná-vus, tmé-sis, Ctē-si as, Ptol-e-mæ'-us, psal'-lo.

Other consonants in their combinations resemble so closely their sounds in English words, that further illustration is unnecessary.

In this admirable treatise the author has aimed to preserve the great principles and facts of the science in their integrity, and so to arrange, explain, and illustrate them that they may be clear and intelligible to the student.

"We take great pleasure in calling the attention of teachers and students to this truly excellent book. Both the plan and execution of the whole are equally admirable. It is not a milk-and-water compilation, without principles and without demonstration. It contains the elements of the science in their proper integrity and proportions. Its author is a learned man and a practical instructor, as the author of every school-book should be. The style is a model for a text-book, combining in high degree, perspicuity, precision, and vivacity. In a word, it is the very best elementary work on Astronomy with which we are acquainted."—Connecticut Common School Journal.

"This is a compact treatise of 320 pages, containing the elements and most of the important facts of the science clearly presented and systematically arranged. It is very finely illustrated. It is worthy of a careful examination by all who wish to secure the best text-books."—Ohio Journal of Education.

"I have examined Keetels' New Method of Learning the French Language, and find it admirably adapted for conveying a thorough knowledge of the French language. It is an easy and sure method of both writing and speaking French with accuracy and elegance."—DANIEL LYNCH, S. J., Director of Studies in Gonzaga College, Washington.

"The 'New Method of Learning the French Language,' by Professor Keetels, appears to be exceedingly well adapted as an introduction into the study of French. It is emphatically a practical book, and bears the mark that it has resulted from the author's own experience in teaching. I shall take pleasure in soon giving it the test of a trial in my own Institute."—OSWALD SEIDENSTICKER, Principal of the Commercial and Classical Institute, Philadelphia.

"I have examined several books designed for pupils studying the French language, and among them Keetels' 'New Method of the French.' The last work I consider superior to any other which I have examined, and shall use it in my classes as the best text-book upon the subject."—S. A. FARRAND, Trenton, N. J.

PEISSNER'S GERMAN GRAMMAR.

A Comparative English-German Grammar.

Based on the affinity of the two languages. By Prof. ELIAS PEISSNER, late of the University of Munich, and of Union College, Schenectady. New edition. 316 pp., .

"Prof. Peissner's German Grammar has been, from its first publication, and is now, used as a text-book in this College, and has by the teachers here, as in many other Institutions, been esteemed a superior work for the end to be subserved by it, in attaining a knowledge of the elements of the German language. I cordially recommend it to the attention and use of such American Academies and Colleges as are designed to give instruction in the German language."—L. P. HICKOK, President Union College, N. Y.

Olney's Geography and Atlas.

Revised and improved, by the addition on the Maps of the latest information and discoveries. New Plates and Woodcuts. Atlas, 28 Maps. Geography, 18mo, 304 pages,

These favorite text-books, of which more than a million have been sold, are kept up to the times by the publishers, who add the latest geographical information on the large and beautiful Maps and in the Text-Books, so as to make them worthy of the claim that they are the best works for the study of Geography now published.

PALMER'S BOOK-KEEPING.

Palmer's Practical Book-Keeping.

By JOSEPH H. PALMER, A.M., Instructor in New York Free Academy. 12mo. 167 pages, . . . . .

Blanks to Do. (2 numbers, Journal and Ledger), each . . . . .

Key to Do. . . . . .

This work is adopted by the Boards of Education of the cities of New York and Brooklyn, where it is generally used in schools and recommended by teachers. It is also recommended by accountants of prominent commercial firms, and the Press.

Whately's Elements of Logic.

By RICHARD WHATELY, D.D., Archbishop of Dublin.
New revised edition, with the Author's last Additions.
Large 12mo. 484 pages, . . . . .

"This work (Elements of Logic) has long been our text-book here. The style in which you have published this new edition of so valuable a work, leaves nothing to be desired in regard of elegance and convenience."—Prof. DUNN, Brown University.

"Its merits are now too widely known to require an enumeration of them. The present American edition of it is conformed to the ninth English edition, which was revised by the author, and which contains several improvements on the former issues."—North American Review

Whately's Elements of Rhetoric.

Comprising an Analysis of the Laws of Moral Evidence and of Persuasion, with Rules for Argumentative Composition and Elocution. New edition, revised by the Author. Large 12mo. 546 pages, . . . . .

"The Elements of Rhetoric has become so much a standard work that it might seem superfluous to speak of it. In short, we should not dream of teaching a College class from any other book on Rhetoric. Communion with Whately's mind would improve any mind on earth."—Presbyterian Quarterly Review.

The above are the editions formerly published by JAMES MUNROE & Co., Boston, and the best in the market. They are used in all the principal Colleges and Academies in the United States.

Key to Stoddard & Henkle's University Algebra.

"I have examined Stoddard & Henkle's University Algebra. It is a thorough and elaborate work. It combines clearness and simplicity in its method and illustrations, and constitutes a valuable addition to the mathematical works of the day."—CYRUS NUTT, A.M., Professor of Mathematics in the Indiana Ashbury Univ'y.

"I have examined Stoddard's American Intellectual Arithmetic, and cheerfully recommend it to teachers and parents as a valuable elementary work, and one well adapted to the wants of pupils in the first stages of arithmetic. It is constructed upon sound and practical principles, and will be found an important addition to the text-books now in use in our Common Schools."—Hon. SAMUEL S. RANDALL, Supt. of New York City Schools.

"Stoddard's Arithmetical Series is now in general use in the schools of this county. They have stood the test for four years as the text-books in Arithmetic in our schools, and are considered by our teachers superior to any others now before the public."—Mr. S. A. TORRILL, late Supt. of Public Schools of Wayne County, Pa.

HOOKER'S PHYSIOLOGIES.Hooker's First Book in Physiology.

For Public Schools, . . . . .

Hooker's Human Physiology and Hygiene.

For Academies and general reading. By WASHINGTON HOOKER, M.D., Yale College, . . . . .

These books are text-books almost wherever they are known. The "First Book" is a text-book in the Public Schools of Boston, New York, Buffalo, and San Francisco.

"Professor Hooker's work on Physiology has been in use for the last year in the Normal School in this city, and it gives me great pleasure to express my convictions of its excellence as a text-book. In the course of my experience as a teacher, I have used the books of various authors on the subject of Physiology, but the work of Professor Hooker satisfies me much more fully than any other that I have used. It has the double advantage of being accurately scientific in its matter and arrangement, and of being expressed in correct and elegant English, a combination of the highest importance, and yet seldom attained to the extent exhibited in this book. I know of no book for which I would be willing to exchange it."—RICHARD EDWARDS Esq., Pres. Ill. Normal University, Bloomington, Ill.

The Elements of Intellectual Philosophy.

By FRANCIS WAYLAND, D.D. 1 vol. 12mo, . . . .

This clearly written book, from the pen of a scholar of eminent ability, and who has had the largest experience in the education of the human mind, is unquestionably at the head of text-books in Intellectual Philosophy. The author's practical suggestions on the cultivation of the several faculties of the mind, aiding the student's efforts to discipline and strengthen his intellectual energies, and the numerous references to books of easy access, specifying the places where topics treated of are more fully discussed, make this book a valuable addition to the readable books of any teacher or professional man.

The Exhibition Speaker and Gymnastic Book.

Carefully compiled and arranged for School Exhibitions, by P. A. FITZGERALD. To which is added a complete System of Calisthenics and Gymnastics, with instructions for Teachers and Pupils, illustrated by numerous Engravings. 1 vol. 12mo, . .

Shaw's Outlines of English Literature.

By THOS. B. SHAW, with a sketch of American Literature, by HENRY F. TUCKERMAN, Esq. 1 vol. royal 12mo,

"Its merits I had not now for the first time to learn. I have used it for two years as a text-book, with the greatest satisfaction. It was a happy conception, admirably executed. It is all that a text-book on such a subject can or need be, comprising a judicious selection of materials, easily yet effectively wrought. The author attempts just as much as he ought to, and does well all that he attempts; and the best of the book is the genial spirit, the genuine love of genius and its works which thoroughly pervades it, and makes it just what you want to put into a pupil's hands."—Prof. J. H. RAYMOND, University of Rochester.

"Of 'Shaw's English Literature' I can hardly say too much in praise. I hope its adoption and use as a text-book will correspond to its great merits."—Prof. J. C. PICKARD, Ill. College.
